Automobile Firm Heads Vanished, Macy Says

Trade Practices Probe Group Wants To Examine Books; May Asks Warrants

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Representative W. Kingsland Macy (R., N. Y.) charged yesterday that officers of a Washington area new car agency had disappeared to avoid examination of books and records by the House subcommittee investigating questionable trade practices.

Macy, chairman of the subcommittee, said consideration is being given to the idea of asking District Court to issue bench warrants against the officers of the firm.

According to Subcommittee Counsel John T. M. Reddan, requests for such warrants would be routed first to House Public Works Committee, of which Macy's group is a subcommittee, and from there to the office of George Morris Fay, United States attorney for the District.

Action along these lines will be a matter for the next Congress to take up, Macy said.

Willful Interference Charge

Reddan said that the offense which would be charged in such warrants would be willful interference with a Government function, that is, with the work of the subcommittee.

The auto dealers' disappearance was reported to the House by Macy in a summary review of his subcommittee's investigation of new and used car distribution policies in the Washington area.

He said that abuse turned up in the hearings could be eliminated by manufacturers, but that manufacturers say they have been reluctant to take positive action for fear of violating antitrust statutes.

"The subcommittee feels that the manufacturers have not been sufficiently diligent in policing their own industry," Macy said.

Reports Soothing Effort

"While they have sought to soothe the public and build good will by announcing their policies relating to fair distribution and sale of automobiles, most companies have made very little real effort to see that these policies were put into practice," the report summary said.

"The public has long since recognized that in many instances such pledges are not worth the paper on which they are written and, from the complaints we have received, it appears that the public is becoming more than annoyed at being treated like children in this matter.

"Automobile manufacturers, by veiled reference to antitrust cases, take the position that there

Canadian Liar's Flying Postholes Win 1948 Crown

Burlington, Wis., Dec. 31 (AP).—L. W. Tupper of Patricia, Alberta, Canada, is the champion liar of the world for 1948 by reason of his tale of 2000 postholes and a northwester, the Burlington Liars Club, Inc., announced today.

"Up here in Alberta we really have some windstorms," Tupper related. "Last summer a rancher had just finished digging 2000 postholes, when along came a northwester and blew every last one of those postholes out of the ground and out of the country. The rancher finally located them 125 miles away, but they were a total loss. After bouncing 125 miles cross-country, over cactus, they were so full of holes that they wouldn't hold dirt out any more."

Tupper's tall one took the championship out of the United States for the first time since the competition began in 1929.

Here's the runnerup lie of J. F. McKale, director of athletics, University of Arizona, Tucson, Ariz.: "As a die-hard Republican voter with 41 years of experience, I knew Harry was going to win all the time."

Both Revelry and Prayer

Washingtonians Go All-Out To Welcome the New Year In

By Ben Bradlee
Post Reporter

Washington said good riddance to 1948 in a multitude of ways last night, and joined the rest of the Nation in welcoming 1949 with open arms and hopeful hearts.

Although 1948 was technically a year of peace, and for that everyone was grateful, the tumult and shouting that swept Washington last night came from voices of people who hoped that 1949 would be a year of real peace without cold wars, military coups or human hostility.

Celebrations ran the gamut from quiet family parties which barely kept alive until midnight to giant New Year's Eve revelries at Washington hotels and nightclubs with "Standing Room Only."

Hundreds dedicated themselves peacefully to Christian principles at watch night services in the District churches.

Movie theaters ran special midnight shows, at special higher rates, although the dialogue was generally drowned out by noisemakers brought from earlier celebrations.

Freezing windy weather kept most of the revelers off the streets and persuaded them to celebrate in only one place. The cold also boosted liquor sales and convinced many that spirits had an additional, medicinal, value.

Baby-sitters had a field day, celebrating the one night in the year when parents pay them a dollar an hour and are glad to get them at that price. Part-time Mothers, Inc., Courtesy Associates and Playland, the three Washington baby-sitting firms listed in the classified directory, all reported they had been unable to come close to the demand. Some of their regular sitters they accused of bootlegging for higher rates.

Railroad engineers, telephone operators, taxi drivers, waiters, bartenders, policemen and newspaper reporters welcomed the new year at their throttles, switchboards, cabs, tables, bars, beats and typewriters.

Resolutions for 1949 were conveniently forgotten until after today's hangover as cup after cup of kindness was lifted, and chorus after chorus of "Auld Lang Syne" rose over the din of noise-makers.

Balloons, hats, screeching horns and whirligig noise-makers were standard equipment in every public place. The balloons made dancing and even talking difficult, until the lighted cigarette was remembered as the perfect defense.

Revelers paid about the same price for their celebrations this year as they did last. The Shoreham featured the same $12 package which included dinner, favors,

Court Refuses To Halt Quiz Of Chambers

Hiss' Lawyers Given Right to Continue Over U. S. Protests

Baltimore, Dec. 31 (AP).—Depositions that the Government claimed might help Alger Hiss in his trial on perjury charges will continue to be taken from admitted former Communist Whittaker Chambers.

Federal Jurge W. Calvin Chesnut today declined to order Hiss' lawyers to suspend questioning of Chambers until after the perjury trial in New York.

Chambers has been giving the depositions in connection with a $75,000 libel suit against him by Hiss. Hiss claimed he was libeled when he was called a Communist by Chambers.

The Department of Justice objected to further interrogation of Chambers until after Hiss' perjury trial, which it said was set for February 24.

The department argued the depositions would afford Hiss an advantage at his perjury trial by using them as a basis of cross-examination of Chambers.

Judge Chesnut's memorandum allowing the questioning to continue stated the purpose of both the civil and criminal suits should be "to prosecute with the object to find the real and true relevant facts."

The judge stated that during the examination of Chambers by Hiss' lawyers last month the admitted Communist first mentioned documents that he later produced from a pumpkin on his Westminster (Md.) farm. The documents turned over to the Department of Justice were revealed to be copies of secret papers in the files of the Department of State.

The memorandum said Chambers claimed the documents were given to him by Hiss while Hiss was a State Department official. Hiss denied the statement, which Chambers repeated to a New York grand jury and which resulted in the perjury indictments.

Judge Chesnut said his memorandum followed a conference of lawyers for both men and the Justice Department. He called the conference after learning the department was objecting to resuming the depositions in the libel suit, the judge stated.

The memorandum mentioned that lawyers for Chambers did not object to having him answer any questions relevant to the issue. No date has been set for the libel suit.

2 Kelly Killers' Lives Spared By President

Clemency Refused Triggerman Slated To Die January 14

President Truman yesterday commuted to life imprisonment the death sentences previously imposed on Joseph M. Gray, 19, and Herbert H. Hall, 18, for the holdup slaying of Frank C. Kelly, a Government electrician, of 4004 New Hampshire ave. nw., March 11, 1947.

Mr. Truman turned down a plea for clemency in behalf of the triggerman in the slaying, Shirley Harris, 23. Harris will go to the electric chair alone on January 14.

Harris, Gray and Hall were convicted in District Court before Judge Alexander Holtzoff of fatally shooting Kelly in front of 2533 11th st. nw. as the latter was walking to a streetcar on his way home from a meeting at Central High School.

At the trial, it was brought out that Harris actually pulled the trigger although, under the law, his accomplices in the holdup, a felony, are held to be equally guilty of the murder.

In petitions for clemency, Attorney Wesley Williams, representing Gray, and Atorney Curtis Mitchell, for Hall, pleaded that the youths had been coerced into accompanying Harris and that they were actually fleeing the scene when Harris let go with a blast from his pistol. The latter was defended by Attorney Robert I. Miller.

Dutch Hostilities Finished in Java, U. N. Informed

Batavia, Java, (Saturday) Jan. 1 (AP).—Dutch hostilities in Java, except against "rebellious elements," ended with the new year, the Netherlands spokesmen announced today.

The Dutch proclaimed no formal cease-fire, however, explaining that the Netherlands had informed the U. N. Security Council in Paris on December 29 that hostilities would cease in Java at midnight, Friday December 31. No further announcement was necessary, it was explained.

The Dutch announcement in Paris last Wednesday said hostilities would cease in Sumatra a day or two later.

Communications Damaged

2 Dead, Property Loss Heavy In Northeastern Area Floods

By The Associated Press

Torrential rains turned streams and rivers into raging currents that leaped their banks in six Northeastern States yesterday bringing death, property destruction, disrupted communications and wholesale evacuation of families.

Property damage ran into the hundreds of thousands of dollars in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Vermont and Maine. Railroad lines and highways were inundated.

Two deaths were reported, one in Massachusetts and one in New York.

The village of Risingdale, Mass., population 500, feared for a time that total evacuation would be needed when turbulent waters churned near the brink of a power dam on the Housatonic River. However, only a few families had to be taken out as crews threw up sandbag barricades around factories and homes.

Flood conditions around Albany, N. Y., forced the New York Central Railroad to reroute its Chicago-to-Boston trains.

Tens of thousands of telephones were put out of commission.

Some sections of New England were drenched under more than 6 inches of rain.

In Newark, N. J., where 3.1 inches of rain were measured from Wednesday through yesterday morning, the Weather Bureau said if there had been snow the fall would have been between 30 and 40 inches.

The Hudson River burst its banks and flooded parts of Albany and Troy, N. Y. The Mohawk River spilled into some waterfront streets in Schenectady.

Rain, wind and high tides lashed Maine. Several small streams overflowed and a few Portland wharves were flooded.

In New Jersey, some 500 persons were evacuated from their homes. Three communities—Manville, South Bound Brook and Bradley Gardens in Bridgewater in Central Jersey—were completely cut off by flood waters.

Reds Get Peace Offer From Chiang

Communist Radio Scornfully Rejects His Terms, Boasts Of Coming Victory

By Harold K. Milks

Nanking, Dec. 31 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek tonight offered the Chinese Communists peace on his own terms or war to the bitter end.

[The Communists immediately broadcast an indirect effective rejection. They scorned "permitting the wounded beast to nurse his wounds and then spring up again one day to throttle the revolution."

[Instead, the Communists boasted, "they dominate China north of the Yangtze River and soon intend to cross that stream and "liberate all China."]

Chiang's highly hedged offer of negotiation was contained in his annual New Year's message. It came during a battlefield lull, but with the Communists in a commanding position.

Confronting the direct crisis in his 27 years as leader of China, Chiang, 62, suggested that he himself was willing to step aside if necessary for peace, but fixed these conditions:

"If negotiated peace is not detrimental to national independence and sovereignty, but will contribute to the welfare of the people, and if the constitution is not violated, constitutionalism is preserved, a democratic form of government maintained, the entity of the armed forces safeguarded, and if the people's free mode of living and minimum living standards are protected, then I shall be satisfied.

"If the Communists are not sincerely desirous of peace and will insist on continuing the armed rebellion, the government shall have no alternative, but will fight them to a finish.

"I firmly believe the government will win out in the end, and it will also mark the turning point in the war."

Agreements Disregarded

Of himself he said: "I am not concerned with my own position. In this I will follow only the consensus of the people." He attacked the Communists for "disregarding every agreement and obstructing every peace effort ever made."

[The Communists fired their answer back to Chiang like a rocket, even though they evidently had not heard of his statement at the time.

[A Communist broadcast, heard in San Francisco by the Associated Press, was devoted to an editorial by the Communist New China News Agency, entitled "Carry the Revolution to the Very End." It lashed out against compromise and said there was no "middle road."

[As if to erase any doubts about peace, the Communist broadcast repeated its Christmas Day list of government "war criminals" headed by Chiang and called for "using revolutionary methods to firmly, thoroughly and completely wipe out clean all reactionary forces."]

Langer Report Assails Bars To Negro Postmen in South

By Charles E. Davis, jr.
Post Reporter

Federal postoffices in many Southern cities discriminate against Negroes in hiring new workers.

Evidence of such a policy was contained in a report made public yesterday by Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.), chairman of the Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee.

The report, made by a subcommittee of the Langer committee, includes specific proposals to curb discrimination.

"These proposals," said Langer, "can become as moderate or as drastic as conditions warrant. They will lead to outright discharge from the service of those who persist upon making discrimination their careers."

The report contains results of an investigation launched by the subcommittee after the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People charged that discriminatory practices prevail in postoffices in New Orleans and Shreveport, La.; Memphis and Knoxville, Tenn.; Winston-Salem, N. C.; Dallas, Tex., and Birmingham, Ala.

Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson did not comment. He had not yet read the report.

The report also urged Congress to remove postmasterships from the "political plum" system of patronage so that more importance would be attached to a candidate's examination score and less to his political sponsorship.

The report points out that despite an executive order of November 7, 1940, declaring there should be no discrimination in Civil Service appointments, the Civil Service Commission since October, 1941, has handled 1871 complaints of discrimination.

It adds that discrimination became so pronounced during World War II that President Roosevelt was personally known to have telephoned appointing officers to caution them against infringement of the no-discrimination rule.

The report says the subcommittee's investigator found racial discrimination practiced by the postoffice and all other Federal agencies in Jackson, Miss.

This is one case cited in Jackson:

A Negro veteran of World War II wanted to take the examination for the position of mail clerk-carrier. The secretary of the Civil Service Board told him no application blanks were available. Later he saw a white applicant furnished blanks. He got his, too, then. He passed the examination, but heard nothing further.

In one Jackson postoffice appointment, the investigator found a deliberate violation of the Civil Service rule that one of the top three eligible be chosen.

The top three were Negroes.

San Francisco Jarred; Quake Blacks Out Two Towns to South

Monterey, Calif., Dec. 31 (AP).—An earthquake—possibly part of a series which has shaken the West Coast all week—blacked out two nearby towns tonight.

It also was felt in the western coastal residential district of San Francisco, 120 miles to the north.

The blackout in nearby Pacific Grove and New Monterey was caused when the tremblors knocked high-tension power lines together.

No other damage was reported, either here or to the north in San Francisco.

Residents in the western residential part of San Francisco—known as the Sunset District—reported two sharp shocks swayed chandeliers.

Earthquakes were reported in Nevada, northern California and off the coast of British Columbia.

Reno, Nev., the divorce capital, was hit by strong shocks earlier this week and has had mild ones off and on all week.

Salinas, 20 miles northeast of Monterey, reported two sharp shocks between 6:16 and 6:18 p. m.

Berlin Gets Its 100,000th 'Lift' Cargo

Berlin, Dec. 31 (U.P.).—An American plane swept down on Tegel Airport today with the 100,000th cargo which Allied airmen have brought to this blockaded city since the airlift service of supply started June 26.

Capt. G. E. Patton, Harlingen, Tex., pilot; First Lieut. Roger W. McGuire, Preston, Va., copilot, and S/Sergt. R. C. Hosmer, New Haven, Conn., engineer, brought the plane into the airport, which is in the French sector, from Fassberg air base in the British occupation zone.

Allied airmen are now exceeding the daily lift made by the fliers of the Burma-China "hump" over the Himalayas during the war.

In the Berlin operation, 17 Americans and 9 Britons have given their lives.

Today's was Captain Patton's last airlift flight. He has made 87 trips and is now going home under the rotation system.

Allied fliers are trying to bring 40,000 tons of food, coal and general supplies to Berlin this week. At noon today their total so far this week was 36,208 tons and given good weather they will easily exceed their goal. They have brought in 138,043 tons so far this month and 724,160 tons since June 26. The daily need of Berlin is 4000 tons. The Allies are bringing in 6000 at present.

Way Is Cleared For Negro to Head House Committee

The way was cleared yesterday for a Negro to head an important House committee.

Representative John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), ranking member of the Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments, announced he would step aside—an act that will enable Representative William L. Dawson (D., Ill.), to become chairman.

"From the time of my reelection as majority leader, I intended to take this step," McCormack said. "It is a source of pleasure to me that Mr. Dawson will become chairman of this important committee. In addition, it will be a happening of great and pleasant significance.

"In my opinion, Mr. Dawson will make a great chairman. He will perform his duties with ability, with dignity and with courage."

1950 Budget Deficit Pared To $2 Billion

Truman Is Expected To Ask Tax Hike That Will Cut It to Zero

By The Associated Press

President Truman's final licks on the budget have pared a prospective deficit for fiscal 1950 to less than two billion dollars, official sources said yesterday.

There were indications that the President would seek to avoid any deficit by asking for a tax increase.

New tax discussions so far have centered around an increase in the levy on business, either as an excess-profits tax or a corporate income rate hike. But there has also been talk about a supplemental raise in tax rates on upper level personal incomes.

The President and his chief lieutenants have repeatedly insisted that provision must be made not only to balance the budget, but also to reduce the 252-billion dollar national debt. So far, they have been silent on specific tax plans.

Mr. Truman's 15-billion-dollar ceiling on 1950 military spending and the increase in tax revenues resulting automatically from rising personal incomes have trimmed the deficit outlook from opposite ends of the budget columns.

Nevertheless, Mr. Truman's spending proposals for fiscal 1950, beginning next July 1, will set a peacetime record high, ranging around 42 billion dollars or more, according to private word in official circles.

The President's budget message, scheduled to go to Congress January 10, is expected to show a mild deficit for the current fiscal year, which reaches its midpoint today. But it reportedly will reflect considerable improvement from the $1,500,000,000 deficit the President foresaw last August.

Fate of Airliner With 32 Aboard Still a Mystery

Miami, Fla., Dec. 31 (AP).—An old wartime plane wreck was thought for a time today to be the burned remains of a missing charter airliner which disappeared Tuesday with 32 persons aboard while en route from San Juan, Puerto Rico, to Miami.

The mystery of the missing airliner continued after a land party flown to the wreck on Andros Island on the Bahamas, definitely identified it as old.

Two air-sea rescue planes spotted the wreckage today.

Search will continue tomorrow.

Wife Vows She Still Loves Miscegenation Defendant

By Richard L. Morris
Post Reporter

Roanoke, Va., Dec. 31.—The 19-year-old white wife of Clark Council Hamilton, 22, a carpenter, held here on charges of violating Virginia's miscegenation laws, has written him that she still loves him.

This was reported here today by a reliable source who declared that the letter also spoke of renewing their marital life together after Hamilton's trial.

Another letter, apparently from his mother, was received by the youth, the informant told a Washington Post reporter.

A confidant of Mrs. Ada L. Hammond, mother of the bride, referring to a dream Mrs. Hammond experienced which led her to swear out a warrant against Hamilton, revealed that in the dream Mrs. Hammond saw her son-in-law as a Negro.

A preliminary hearing in Roanoke County Trial Justice Court for Hamilton today was set for January 12.

The hearing tentatively had been scheduled for today, and the small courtroom in Salem was crowded at the designated hour.

T. Warren Messick, Roanoke attorney representing Hamilton, had asked yesterday, however, that the case be continued.

Messick was engaged to represent Hamilton by the defendant's wife, the former Florence M. Hammon, on Sunday.

Eugene W. Chelf, Commonwealth's attorney, said he would have requested the continuance if Messick had not. Chelf is awaiting receipt of a certified copy of the birth certificate of a Clark Council Hamilton, "colored," who was born in Franklin County, Ala.

Hamilton was arrested in Baltimore last week on a warrant obtained November 6 by the mother of Florence Hammond, who was married to Hamilton in Salem last May 22.

Democrats Name Lucas Floor Leader, Myers Whip

McKellar Chosen President Pro Tem; 80th Congress Folds Its Tents Quietly

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Eightieth Congress, bitterly attacked by the President as the "second worst," yesterday quietly gave up the ghost without a partisan retort.

The gavel fell in the House at 1:20 p. m. and the Senate closed doors seven minutes later to make way for the "Second Truman Honeymoon" Eighty-first Congress convening Monday.

Both parties hastened to ring out the old and in the new in a series of organizing conferences:

1. Senate Democrats unanimously elected Senator Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) Senate floor leader to succeed Vice President-elect Alben W. Barkley. They named Senator Francis J. Myers (Pa.) majority whip. In a close race for the honorary post of President pro tem, 79-year-old Kenneth McKellar nosed out Senator Millard E. Tydings (Md.), 27 to 25.

It's Martin by Acclamation

2. Without a "Young Turk" challenge, House Republicans by acclamation named Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.) to serve as their floor leader when he steps down from the House rostrum Monday. They chose a "committee on committees" to reshuffle GOP committee assignments. Martin predicted the group will pick Representative Leslie C. Arends (Ill.) for Republican whip.

House Democrats will organize today, returning Representative Sam Rayburn (Tex.) to the Speaker's rostrum and Representative John W. McCormack (Mass.) as floor leader. The first Democratic tiff of the session may come in today's caucus over a move to clip the "bottleneck" power of the House Rules Committee.

One Major Business Hem

Yesterday's drab closing of the Eightieth Congress was marked by only one piece of major business. Both Houses adopted a resolution granting a 60-day extension for the Commission on Reorganization of the Executive Branch headed by former President Herbert Hoover. Later President Truman signed the resolution, giving the commission more time to prepare its voluminous reports.

The old House went out of business with a ripple of laughter. Retiring House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) produced the laugh. He was a member of the traditional committee named to notify the President Congress was ready to adjourn.

The President, reported Hal-

Ruling by BBC On Bagpipes Irks Scotland

London, Dec. 31 (AP).—The Scottish pipers have really got their wind up.

There were even suggestions today that Scotland should secede from the empire after a British Broadcasting Corp. ruling which stated in effect that bag piping is not music. The heather withered at Aberdeen.

The flagrant insult to the pipes came in the BBC's interpretation of the rules governing the broadcast of music.

The Chelsea artists will hold their usual fantastic New Year's Eve party at Albert Hall and the climax at midnight is to be televised. The musicians' union said okay, but the band must stop playing while the broadcast is under way. British musicians refuse to broadcast from points outside BBC studios.

But bag piping is different, BBC held. Not being music, the racket may be broadcast without violating any of the rules, the corporation's legal advisers said. Bagpipes are just noise.

"The ruling is, of course, outrageous and does violence to the sensibilities of Scots everywhere," said Douglas McPherson, member of the Scottish Pipers' Association. "But it does have a bright aspect. The pipes will be heard, while British listeners will be spared the caterwauling of trombones, kettle drums and other inferior instruments.

"There will be piping, and it will be music."

Truman Tightens Liaison With Hill

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman moved yesterday to bring about a closer working arrangement between the White House and Capitol Hill.

Henceforth, he will meet every Monday morning at 10 o'clock with the Big Four of Congress—Vice President-elect Alben W. Barkley, Speaker-to-be Sam Rayburn, Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois, prospective majority leader of the Senate, and Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, prospective majority leader of the House.

Mr. Truman disclosed this plan yesterday in a conference with Rayburn, Lucas and McCormack. Vice President-elect Barkley had a cold, and did not accompany the others to the White House.

In deciding on regular Monday morning meetings with congressional leaders, Mr. Truman was going back to an arrangement that was followed for a time in the Roosevelt Administration.

When he himself took over the Presidency in 1945, he made a change whereby meetings with congressional leaders were held only intermittingly.

Complaints of poor liaison between the White House and the Hill were frequently voiced, off the record, by Democrats. They said Mr. Truman sometimes sent messages to Congress without any prior notice to his party leaders in the National Legislature.

The prospective Speaker, Representative Rayburn, told reporters at the White House yesterday that he, Lucas and McCormack had a "nice chat" with the Chief Executive. He said Mr. Truman discussed with them the contents of his message on the state of the Union, and then told them about his decision on the Monday morning meetings.

Rayburn was asked about a report that Mr. Truman would recommend a tax increase to produce $3,500,000,000.

"I'm not going to discuss anything in the message," Rayburn said. "That's the President's business."

Lucas Named Floor Leader

fleck, "said it was all right with him."

Extreme harmony in both Houses contrasted with the sharp bitterness of the campaign. The House heard Rayburn pay a ringing tribute to the "fairness" and ability of the man he will succeed, retiring Speaker Martin. Martin responded in kind.

It heard speakers from both sides in glowing eulogies to two Democrats who have died since the House last met, Milton H. West of Texas and John J. Delaney of New York.

Three new House members were sworn in, thus giving them a three-day seniority over other freshmen Congressmen who take office Monday. The three, chosen to fill vacancies, were all Democrats, Lloyd M. Bentsen, jr., Texas; Clarence G. Burton, Virginia, and Paul C. Jones Missouri.

As at most last sessions, the noise on the floor was so great with greetings that members could seldom hear what was going on. Representative Margaret Chase Smith (R., Maine), who takes office as Senator from Maine Monday, was applauded as she reached the floor. No roll call was held, but it was evident that many members, particularly those who failed of reelection, were not present.

Across the Capitol the Senate rose in applause when Senator Lucas offered a resolution thanking Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) "for the courteous, dignified, and impartial manner" in which he has presided over the Senate as President pro tem.

The Senate, too, swore in three new members—Senators Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.), who resigned his House seat yesterday; J. Melville Broughton (D., N. C.) and Russell B. Long (D., La.).

Tributes to retiring Senators and Senate officials took up most of the hour and 27 minutes. Speeches in praise of Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.) and Senator Wallace H. White, jr. (R., Me.) came from both sides of the aisle and Vice-President-Elect Barkley, home with a cold, was congratulated in absentia, on his election. There was laughter when Acting Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.), in a slip of the tongue, referred to Barkley's election "to the Presidency."

There was another round of speeches in praise of Carl Loeffler, who started at the Capitol as a page boy and is now retiring as Secretary of the Senate.

Then Senator White, leaving the Senate voluntarily after 32 years service in both Houses, performed his last official act as Republican leader. He moved that the Senate adjourn, sine die.

Save for the spirited contest for President Pro Tem, the harmonious Senate Democratic caucus just preceding the session was in marked contrast to the leadership battle shaping up for the Senate Republican conference on Monday. Thirteen Senate GOP insurgents will challenge the bid of Senator Robert A. Taft (Ohio) to succeed himself as policy chairman. They will put up Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (Mass.) against Taft.

Lucas was named by acclamation to serve not only as Democratic floor leader, but as chairman of the caucus and chairman of the party's policy and steering committees when Barkley steps down January 20. Barkley will serve as floor leader until then. Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) was unanimously reelected secretary of the conference.

Other unanimous votes returned Leslie L. Biffle, director of the Democratic Policy Committee, to his former post as Secretary of the Senate, and Felton M. Johnson, now secretary of the minority, to continue his floor duties as secretary to the majority.

The note of harmony even extended to Senator Glen Taylor (R., S. Dak.), who ran with Wallace on the Progressive ticket. Taylor attended the caucus as a Democrat.

In the equally peaceful House Republican conference, Martin was nominated by retiring House Republican Leader Halleck, who will go back to his former post on the House Interstate Commerce Committee. Martin said Halleck will continue to assist him at times in the floor leadership.

Asked if any "insurgency" developed, Halleck smiled, "We have no young turk movement here."

Representatives John Phillips (Calif.), William S. Hill (Colo.), John Sanborn (Idaho), Leo E. Allen (Ill.), Karl M. LeCompte (Iowa), Thruston B. Morton (Ky.), Frank Fellows (Me.), Edward T. Miller (Md.), George J. Bates (Mass.), Roy O. Woodruff (Mich.), August H Anderson (Minn.), Dewey Short (Mo.), Wesley A. D'Ewart (Mont), Carl T. Curtis (Nebr.), Norris Cotton (N. H.), Robert W. Kean (N. J.), James W. Wadsworth (N. Y.), William Lemke (N. Dak.), Thomas A. Jenkins (Ohio), Lowell Stockman (Oreg.), Richard M. Simpson (Pa.), Harold O. Lovre (S. Dak.), Charles A. Plumley (Vt.), Walt Horan (Wash.), and Frank A. Barrett (Wyo.).

The following Republicans were named to the GOP Congressional Campaign Committee:

Carl Hinshaw (Calif.), Hill (Colo.), J. Caleb Boggs (Del.), Sanborn (Idaho), Chauncey W. Reed (Ill.), Ben F. Jensen (Iowa), James S. Golden (Ky.), Robert Hale (Me.), J. Glenn Beall (Md.), Richard B. Wigglesworth (Mass.), George A. Dondero (Mich.), Joseph P. O'Hara (Minn.), Short (Mo.), D'Ewart (Mont.), Karl Steffan (Nebr.), Chester E. Merrow (N. H.), Charles A. Wolverton (N. J.), Leonard W. Hall (N. Y.), Usher L. Burdick (N. Dak.), John M. Vorys (Ohio), Homer D. Angell (Oreg.), Samuel K. McConnell, jr. (Pa.), Francis Case (S. Dak.), Plumley (Vt.), Hal Holmes (Wash.) and Barrett (Wyo.).

As House Democrats prepared to caucus today, Democratic leaders were reported backing a slate of six Democrats with a "progressive" House record to fill party vacancies on the House Ways and Means Committee.

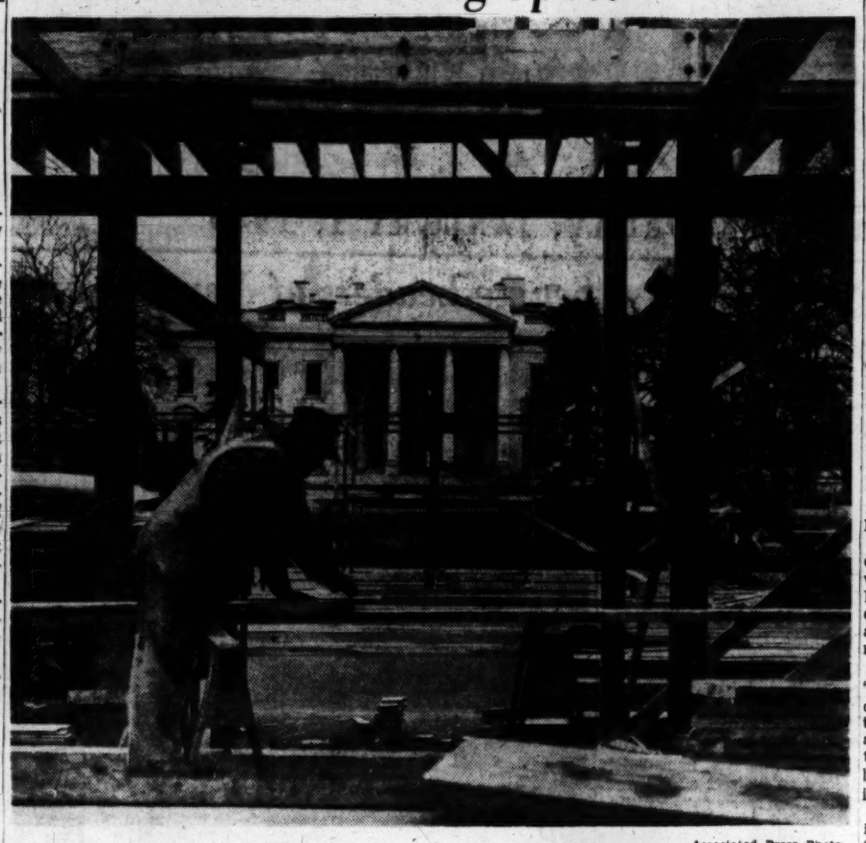

These six, if confirmed as expected by the caucus today, will sit with nine incumbent Democratic members of the group on a party committee on committees charged with filling all other Democratic committee vacancies.

They are Cecil R. King (Calif.), Thomas J. O'Brien (Ill.), John A. Carroll (Colo.), J. M. Combs (Tex.), Hale Boggs (La.) and Walter B. Huber (Ohio).

The six "Democratic progressives," added to five liberal Democratic incumbents on the committee, will give the party's so-called progressive forces an 11-to-4 majority of the committee's Democratic vote.

Caucus plans to push for a change in the rules curbing the power of the House Rules Committee to "pigeonhole" legislation meanwhile were thrown in doubt by reports that a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition may line up against the change if it is offered in the House Monday. Democratic leaders were reported still undecided on the "method" of the rules change. A row may break around it at today's party caucus.

Presidential Stands Going Up . . .

INAUGURAL FRAMEWORK—Work was under way yesterday on the elaborate stand (near fence, center), where President Truman will sit to watch the Inaugural Day Parade. In the foreground is the spectator stand on the opposite side of Pennsylvania ave. from the President's position

The official program for the 1949 inaugural will be a 72-page book containing more feature and historical material than any such program ever produced in the past, the Inaugural Committee reported yesterday.

Melvin D. Hildreth, general chairman for the inaugural, announced that the program—now on the presses—will be available in sufficient quantity for visitors to Washington during festivities and for those persons throughout the country who may wish to purchase it as a souvenir. It will sell for 75 cents a copy.

A special de luxe edition, bound in blue and embossed in gold, will be available for $3. The volume, inscribed by Hildreth, will have the owner's name in gold on the cover.

There will be no commercial advertising in the program.

Features of the volume, edited and designed by Edward Boykin, director of the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission, will include a special signed message by President Truman as well as photographs of the Chief Executive and Vice President-elect Alben Barkley (D., Ky.).

The budget for the preparation and printing of the volume, based on a printing run of some 50,000, is $27,700, it was announced.

Duke Named Senate's 'Top Sergeant'

Joseph C. Duke, 41, of 1112 16th st. nw., was elected by Senate Democrats yesterday to be the new Senate Sergeant-at-Arms in the Eighty-first Congress.

Duke

The election promoted him from a $7500-a-year job as principal clerk in the office of the Secretary of the Senate to the $12,000--a-year position held for the past two years by Edward F. McGinnis.

Senator Scott Lucas (D., Ill.), announced the selection and said that Duke had been sponsored for the job by Senator Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.).

The sergeant-at-arms is the Senate's top police official, and Duke himself is a former policeman who once survived a gunman's bullet.

He recalled the incident yesterday. It occurred July 5, 1930, when he was a member of the Miami (Ariz.) police force. He was assigned to arrest a murder suspect, and the suspect shot him in the upper abdomen. The bullet pierced his body, and missed his spine by less than an inch.

The suspect escaped. It was nearly four years before Duke returned to work, and then received a job as assistant secretary in the office of former Senator Henry F. Ashurst (D., Ariz.).

FCC Pay Hike To $22,500 Urged by NAB

Higher pay for members of the Federal Communications Commission, commensurate with the importance of their duties, was urged yesterday by the National Association of Broadcasters.

The NAB action was taken in a letter to Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) from A. D. Willard, jr., executive vice president of NAB. A Civil Service subcommittee headed by Flanders recently proposed a bill increasing the pay of officials in executive departments. It recommended that pay of FCC members be raised to $17,500.

His association, Willard wrote, thinks they should be put in a higher bracket of $22,500, that Flanders suggested for members of the Council of Economic Advisers, Atomic Energy Commission and Federal Reserve Board.

The FCC, Willard wrote, "is contending with one of the most vital of all United States problems, the maintenance and the orderly development of our vast and complex system of electronic mass communications.

"The American people," he said, "and the multibillion dollar industries in sound broadcasting, television, facsimile, telephone and telegraph are dependent upon the highest type of leadership, both in the Government and within the industries themselves."

His association, Willard wrote, is "aware of the personal and family sacrifices made by FCC members."

". . . We feel very strongly that unless a proper adjustment is made, FCC commissionerships cannot long compete with the substantial rewards which are available to men of this capacity outside of Government. Such an eventuality could be disastrous to our whole communications system."

He added that "the task of guiding and developing an adequate Nation-wide system of sound broadcasting and television is so essential to the economic and cultural welfare of the American people, that we strongly advocate, at the very least, salary levels for FCC Commissions equal to those proposed ($22,500) . . . for others whose tasks can certainly be no more important to the national welfare than the work of the FCC."

CBS Says Benny Will Receive $1,356,000 as Share in Switch

New York, Dec. 31 (AP).—Columbia Broadcasting System said today it would pay radio comedian Jack Benny $1,356,000 in the transaction which accompanied Benny's switch from National Broadcasting Co. to CBS.

Some trade reports said 4 million dollars or more was involved.

CBS said it was speaking up because speculation on how much tax Benny would have to pay, as a result of the deal, "reflect such a misunderstanding of both their nature and magnitude as to require clarification."

CBS said it paid $2,260,000 for Amusement Enterprises, Inc., the company under which Benny's various activities are organized.

Benny, it adds, personally owned only 60 per cent of the firm, and "accordingly, the total consideration payable to him is $1,356,000."

In Washington, well-informed sources said the Bureau of Internal Revenue advised Benny he would have to pay personal income tax on the money involved.

Benny was reported to have been told unofficially the contract was not a sale of property, which would qualify it for the 25 per cent capital gains levy, but represented personal compensation taxable at the higher income tax rates.

Mrs. Hayes Shares In Million Estate

A former Washingtonian, Mrs. Dorothy Barbour Hayes, will share in the $1,308,151 residuary estate of Frank T. Barbour, Beech-Nut Packing Co. vice president who died February 4, 1948.

A dispatch from Canajoharie, N. Y., said the will has been admitted to probate in Montgomery County Surrogate's Court, N. Y., but did not state the size of Mrs. Hayes' share. A grandniece of Frank Barbour, she is the daughter of Mrs. David Sheridan Rumbough, whose home is at 1408 27th st. nw.

Nine Held in Theft, Sale of Weapons

Newark, N. J., Dec. 31 (AP).—Nine men were in custody tonight charged with stealing military weapons and ammunition which the FBI said were sold to an unsuspecting Costa Rican government official.

S. K. McKee, special FBI agent, said the military equipment came from the Raritan arsenal at Metuchen.

McKee's statement did not name the Costa Rican official but said the gang sold him 138 United States Army M-1 carbines on December 22. The State Department at Washington identified the official as Minister of Finance Alberto Marten.

License Granted

The State Department said it had granted Costa Rica an export license for 200 carbine rifles on December 17, six days after fighting broke out in that Central American country.

"The license was granted in response to a request from the (Costa Rican) Embassy which indicated that the rifles were needed for national defense," the State Department said.

"This official, who had a proper license issued by the State Department for the exporting of the guns, was unaware of the fact that they were stolen Government property," McKee said.

"Special agents of the FBI intercepted these weapons after they had been crated for shipment but before they had left the country."

The State Department said he paid about $11,000 for the stolen rifles and asked a State Department agent to check the sale after he "apparently had become suspicious about the people who were making the sale."

Operated at Night

McKee said the gang operated through its members who were civilian employes at the arsenal. Three members of the ring were guards and a fourth was a warehouseman.

"They operated at night with the warehouseman spotting the type of weapon desired," McKee said.

McKee listed the members of the ring as Fillmore Ross, 49; Walter S. Morrow, 37; Frank J. Miller, 32; David Whitenach, 50; Oscar I. Thompson, 35; Albert Joseph Dunst, 21; John L. Cain, jr., 35; Michael Russo, 55, and Frederick H. Parkhurst, 52, all of New Jersey.

They were arraigned before United State Commissioner Thomas Clohosey and released on bail. They were charged with theft of Government property or receiving stolen Government property.

No 'Show of Force'

Navy Plans Middle Sea Maneuvers

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

A sizable force of American warships will operate in the Mediterranean this month, the Navy disclosed yesterday.

While officials disclaimed that any "show of force" was intended, an announcement said that three aircraft carriers, a new radar picket submarine, three cruisers and 17 other craft will be in Mediterranean waters during most of January and February.

Briefly, the task force will be joined by 14 other war vessels at Gibraltar, January 13-14. Occasion for the concentration is the relief of the present Mediterranean Fleet by an equivalent force drawn from the Atlantic Fleet. It is the Navy custom to rotate vessels from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean.

Intensive Exercises Set

"Intensive" fleet exercises, in which the picket submarine Spinax, the flattops Midway and Philippine Sea, four high-speed minesweepers, cruisers and destroyers will take part are scheduled in the Atlantic next week and the week after, it was said.

The Essex-class carrier Philippine Sea, the light cruiser Manchester and Spokane, destroyers Everett F. Larson, Goodrich, Hanson, Herbert J. Thomas, Gearing, Eugene A. Greene, Vogelgesang, Steinaker, Kenneth D. Bailey and Charles R. Ware and the cargo ship Winston will leave East Coast ports Tuesday for the Mediterranean.

They will relieve the 45,000-ton flattop Franklin D. Roosevelt, cruisers Providence and Little Rock, destroyers Compton, Gainard, Harlan R. Dickson, Hugh Purvis, Hyman, Beatty, George K. Mackenzie, Ernest G. Small, Power and Glennon and cargo ship Montague—which now forms the Mediterranean task force—at Gibraltar January 13-14. More than 1000 fully-equipped Marines will accompany the relieving force to replace a similar number now overseas.

The 45,000-ton carrier Midway, the Spinax, and minesweepers Ellyson, Hambleton, Fitch and Gherardi will leave with the Philippine Sea task force, conducting exercises in the Atlantic.

To Visit Various Ports

In the Mediterranean, the Midway, Spinax and the minesweepers will make "goodwill visits" to various ports, between January 14 and February 21, when they will leave Gibraltar for home.

Also in the Mediterranean, during part of this time will be the carrier Tarawa and destroyers D. J. Buckley and Hawkins, now en route home from the Far East via the Suez Canal. The three ships will accompany the Midway group home.

Officials said that no war games are planned for the Mediterranean force by the Navy Department, but that Vice Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, commander of the Sixth Task Fleet in the Mediterranean, arranges whatever maneuvers are scheduled in the area.

The heavy cruiser Albany will remain in the Mediterranean, it was said, and the heavy cruiser Columbus, flagship of Admiral Richard E. Conally, commander of American naval forces in the Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean will remain in British waters. The destroyers Harold J. Ellison and Gyatt will relieve the Purdy and Briston, now in English ports, at the same time of the Mediterranean shift.

Rear Admiral Joseph J. (Jocko) Clark, leader of many carrier raids against the Japs, will head the Philippine Sea-Midway Task Force. Rear Admiral Richard H. Cruzen, commander of last year's Antarctic expedition, will be on the Manchester.

Slavs Reject Soviet Terms

Belgrade, Dec. 31 (NYHT).—Yugoslavia announced tonight that its trade delegation in Moscow had refused to accept Russian terms for 1949 and that the exchange of goods between the two countries, in the coming year, will be reduced as a result by about seven eighths.

The drastic curtailment of Russian-Yugoslav economic ties was made known to the Yugoslav public by Radio Belgrade. It said the Yugoslav delegation in Moscow "could not agree" to Russian demands.

Earlier today Radio Moscow said the unfriendly policy of Yugoslavia toward the Soviet Union made it impossible to preserve widespread economic cooperation between the two nations.

[The Associated Press said the atmosphere in Belgrade definitely is more amenable toward American representatives. Yugoslav officials, for more than two years cold and even hostile toward Americans, are cordial now.

[Even though they adhere strictly to the Soviet line and foreign policy, there have not been for several months the usual run of protests, complaints and official acts of an anti-American nature.]

He Forgot to Remember

London, Dec. 31 (U.P.).—Prof. Sir Frederic Bartless, Britain's leading experimental psychologist, was lecturing to 350 children yesterday on why people are able to remember things. He looked behind him for a mechanical man to show how the mind controls the muscles. Apologetically, he explained he had forgotten to bring the man along.

War Criminals

8 Germans Get Reprieve From Death

Frankfurt, Germany, Dec. 31 (AP).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American Military Governor, today commuted to prison terms the death sentences of eight German war criminals who had won last minute reprieves from the gallows.

He affirmed the death sentences of seven others.

Clay granted special reviews to all 15 after appeals by prominent German clergymen to save them from joining 91 others in a series of Friday hangings at Landsberg Prison. All were charged with killing captured Allied airmen or with murder and mistraetment of concentration camp prisoners.

Rudolf Kansmeyer, who admitted giving disciplinary beatings to fellow inmates in Gusen concentration camp but denied any killings, had his death sentence commuted to 10 years.

The death sentences of the others were commuted to life imprisonment because the evidence was found doubtful or conflicting. They were:

Hans Eisele, SS medical officer at Dachau and Buchenwald; Michael Heller, Romanian SS guard at Mauthausen; Albert Zeitraeg, SS sergeant at Mathausen; Wilhelm Grill, concentration camp guard; Willi Auerswad, SS camp guard; Jacob Valentin Seiler, navy lieutenant, who Clay found had not been proved guilty of taking direct part in killing American fliers on Borkum Island; and Wilhelm Kanschat, army captain, spared because of conflicting testimony about his part in killing American fliers.

Negro Postal Bars Assailed

They were passed over and the appointment went to the fourth name on the list, a white man.

"The rules and regulations of the Civil Service Commission were flagrantly violated," says the report.

At the Vicksburg, Miss., postoffice, the investigator found "a tendency to maintain a solidly colored carrier force and a white clerical force."

The report also details discriminatory practices in the postoffices of Natchez, Miss., New Orleans, Memphis and Birmingham.

It reports, too, that during the war when the armed forces were appealing for personnel to man their camp postoffices, one Negro applicant received this reply from the Navy Recruiting Station in New Orleans:

"We regret to advise you that the openings in the Navy for postal employes are limited to those persons who have experience as mail clerks. The ratings are only open for members of the white race."

The report recommends that:

1. There be a clear definition of what constitutes discrimination.

2. There be a full-time tribunal on which the public would be represented to "seek out instances of racial discrimination."

3. Congress receive a quarterly report with all details of cases in which Negroes were rejected for employment.

4. Repetition of "willful and malicious" discriminatory abuses in an agency or department be sufficient ground for dismissal of the officials involved, such dismissal barring them for life from further civilian employment by the Government.

5. Departments and agencies compile statistics on the number of Negroes employed during the fiscal year.

6. The Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee continue its study of racial discrimination for the next three years so it can shape necessary legislation.

Hungary Calls Lovett a Liar; Plots Alleged

Budapest, Dec. 31.—Hungary today called Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett a liar, and denounced him and other United States officials as "accomplices" of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, who has been jailed as a traitor and a spy.

An official communique cited the texts of letters allegedly exchanged by Mindszenty and American diplomats as evidence that the cardinal had been plotting with "American imperialists" against Hungary's Communist-led government.

Lovett's declaration in Washington Wednesday that the charges against the Roman Catholic prelate were "patently false" was called an attempt at whitewashing.

Well-informed government quarters said the cardinal would be brought to trial early in February.

Budapest newspapers today printed what they said were fcsimilies of letters exchanged by Mindszenty and United States envoys regarding political changes in Hungary.

The press said the letters—allegedly written by Mindszenty, former United States Minister Arthur Schoenfeld and United States Minister Selden Chapin—were found in a metal capsule buried in the cellar of the cardinal's's palace.

Schoenfeld was quoted as stating that Mindszenty had "requested the assistance of the United States Government in altering certain conditions which your eminence deplores."

The American diplomat's purported reply said that Mindszenty must be aware of "the United States Government's long-standing policy of noninterference in the internal affairs of other nations."

Mindszenty Anticipated Arrest, Perhaps Torture

Vienna, Dec. 31 (AP).—Josef Cardinal Mindszenty knew in advance he was going to be arrested and probably forced to make a "confession," informed sources said here tonight.

These sources said the cardinal had told the Hungarian Branch of Bishops he had participated in no conspiracy, would make no confession and would not resign.

He told the bishops that if they heard he had resigned or confessed and if these acts were made authentic by his own signature, they should consider his actions the result of "human frailty." He declared any such steps null and void in advance.

Einstein's State Held Satisfactory

New York, Dec. 31 (AP).—Prof. Albert Einstein was reported in satisfactory condition tonight after undergoing an abdominal operation at Brooklyn Jewish Hospital.

The 69-year-old physicist "withstood the operation well," the hospital said.

Einstein was operated upon to correct a "long-standing abdominal condition" which was reported to be nonmalignant." Dr. Rudolf Nissen, attending surgeon at the hospital, performed the operation.

Bashful Bear, Cards and Song Helped Enliven Icecap Ordeal

New York, Dec. 31 (U.P.).—Steaks, cigars, carol singing, Christmas presents, poker games and a timid polar bear made life pleasant even while marooned in a so-called "white hell" in igloos on a Greenland icecap at 40 below zero with 50-mile gales blowing.

The was the story brought back today by 12 of the American airmen who were whisked off the Greenland mountain Wednesday in a jet-boosted C-47.

The seven rescued fliers and the two officers who saved them arrived at LaGuardia Field shortly after noon.

Their story was a heroic, yet partly comic, account of adjustment to a grim environment; of complete confidence that rescue would come, and of high competence in the final evacuation after seven of the men had been stranded for 19 days.

Arriving today were Lieut. Col. Emil G. Beaudry, South Hadley, Mass., and Lieut. Charles H. Blackwell, San Antonio, Tex., the pilot and copilot of the ski-equipped C-47 which made the rescue. They were accompanied by these rescued men: Lieut. Robert J. McDonald, Bridgeport, W. Va., pilot of the plane which crashed on the icecap December 10; Sergt. Francis J. Somers, West Manayunk, Pa.; Sergt. Francis J. Duffy, Windsor, Conn.; Lieut. Charles Ferguson, Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and Lieuts. A. M. Hedvall, James F. Buerke and Howard L. Halstead, all of Greenville, S. C.

It got to be somewhat of a joke when each rescue attempt failed and more men were stranded on the 7000-foot mountain. When Beaudry and Blackwell landed in the C-47, the marooned men had two cots ready for them to sleep on. But they weren't needed.

Beaudry, whose pretty wife, Eva, was here to meet him, described the final rescue.

There was a great ned for speed, he explained, because daylight was so short and because an already bad storm was growing worse. But the men rushed for the C-47 and, with the jet equipment aiding the takeoff, the craft finally soared away from the Aretic camp.

Pope Composes New Prayer

Rome, Dec. 31 (NYHT).—Roman Catholics were asked today to memorize a new prayer requesting divine help in the work of inspiring "a hunger and thirst of social justice and traternal charity" among professedly religious people.

The new prayer was the latest of a series of recent Vatican statements in which Pope Pius XII has indicated his feeling that persons who call themselves religious too often leave to the Communists the care of the interests of the poor.

The 400-word prayer will be the official one for the "Holy Year" of the Roman Catholic Church, which will begin during the final week of 1949. It was composed by 72-year-old Pope Pius XII at the request of Holy Year Organizers.

The Vatican announced tonight that the prayer will be translated into "every language" and that Catholic families will be asked to recite it in their homes as well as in churches and cathedrals.

Battle Rages In Negev as 1949 Arrives

Tel Aviv, Israel, Dec. 31 (AP).—The new year came to Palestine with fighting continuing in the Negev and the possibility one more military campaign will have to be fought before the Holy Land gets peace.

An Israeli military spokesman, for the first time, disclosed today that the Jews' second offensive in the southern desert crossed the partition lines set by the United Nations.

The spokesman said the Israeli army also captured Bier Asluj, half way on the 50-mile desert road between Beersheba and the Egyptian border post of Auja. This did not involve crossing the partition lines.

The partition lines were crossed southwest of Beersheba and southeast of RAFA, big Egyptian frontier base near the coast, but the spokesman declined to comment on reports the Jews actually had fought into Egypt itself and captured an airfield intact.

The spokesman said Gaza, Egyptian-held port, was almost but not quite cut off. It was believed here that the road southward was not cut but was under Israeli fire.

Soviets Held Still in Korea

Seoul, Dec. 31 (AP).—President Syngman Rhee said today a Moscow radio announcement that all Soviet troops had completed evacuation of North Korea by Christmas Day was contrary to his information.

Rhee said that Russia's good faith regarding Korea would be tested after the return of a United Nations Commission (in mid January) "when we will undertake to hold general elections in North Korea."

[Premier Lee Bum Suk of the South Korean Republic said Russia still has 10,000 "frontline" troops in North Korea and apparently intends to keep them there, the United Press reported.

[Lee said it would take the Soviets only four hours to reoccupy the areas which they claim to have evacuated. He said the majority of the Soviet troops merely moved "a few miles across the border," in the area around Vladivostok.]

Sober Celebration Urged

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 31 (U.P.).—Official newspapers, warning that drunkenness on New Year Eve is "fitting" only in capitalist countries, today urged workers here to celebrate soberly.

White Wife To Stand by African King

London, Dec. 31 (AP).—Ruth Williams Khama said tonight she will stand by her husband—king of an African tribe—even if his subjects won't accept her as their queen because of a white color bar.

"As queen or as just another wife," the 24-year-old typist told a reporter, "my place is beside my husband."

Her husband is Seretse Khama, 27-year-old leader-elect of 100,000 race-proud Bamangwato tribesmen in South Africa's Bechuanaland.

They have told him they will not permit the introduction of white blood into the pure Negro strain of the royal clan. But there are rumors of a compromise.

Seretse is en route to London to see Ruth, whom he married while a law student in England.

Ruth said she has heard indirectly that the tribesmen may be willing for Seretse to have her as his wife if her rights and privileges are strictly limited.

"Whatever happens, my place is with him," she said.

"I am not disturbed by some talk around here about the propriety of marrying a colored man.

"I don't care anything, in fact, not two pence, about what the British may think.

"But what the people of the Bamangwato tribe may think is quite another matter.

"If I should live among them as queen or just as a wife, I should want them to like me."

She said her impression is that the black elders of Bechuanaland have raised a color-bar against her.

The Colonial Office regards the tribe as a comparatively enlightened group. Tribesmen of higher rank live in European type houses and many have automobiles. More primitive tribesmen live in mud huts surrounded by stockades.

U. S. Says Soviet Move Lonehanded

By The Associated Press

United States officials said yesterday that Russia's withdrawal of troops from northern Korea was a lone-handed action taken without consulting the United States or the United Nations. They emphasized that American troops would not be withdrawn from southern Korea until the American supported government there has an armed force to deal with any Communist threat from the north.

U. S. Stands Firm in Refusal To Support or Oppose Chiang

By The Associated Press

The United States stood fast yesterday in its refusal to take any part in either maintaining Chiang Kai-shek as President of China or seeking to bring about his resignation.

This Government's hands-off attitude in China's present political crisis was reaffirmed by the State Department.

Meanwhile, Madame Chiang Kai-shek, here on a so-far-unsuccessful mission to obtain greater aid for her husband's hard-pressed government, issued a New Year's statement praying for world peace, toleration and understanding.

She said that for China 1949 "will probably be as tortured, as bitter as the year 1948 has been."

"We shall pray fervently that our travail shall not be beyond endurance and that we shall not fail," she said.

The question of China policy came up again yesterday in a news conference held by Michael J. McDermott, State Department press officer. He was questioned about published reports that President Truman had decided there would be no new American aid program for China until Chiang Kai-shek resigns.

McDermott was asked whether the United States desires the resignation of Chiang Kai-shek. He said:

"There is absolutely no basis for such stories. This Government continues to support Chiang Kai-shek as it always has. Transactions and aid shipments (under the present 400-million-dollar program) are still going forward."

He was then asked whether the United States had made any decision requiring Chiang's resignation as a condtion of any new aid program. McDermott declared that he knew of no such decision and added, "There is nothing hanging fire in this Government based on Chiang's resignation."

Other officials declared that what McDermott said is in line with the hands-off policy that the United States has been following for many weeks. It has stood up despite the urgent pleas of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek here in Washington for much greater American help and a strong statement of support for her husband's regime.

Unsegregated Airport

It seems fairly clear that racial segregation in eating places and employe facilities at the National Airport will not come to an end at once. The Civil Aeronautics Administration, on advice of the Justice Department that it has full authority to do so, has issued a new regulation barring any sort of discrimination on grounds of race or color. But the issue of legal jurisdiction over the airport is so involved that it probably cannot be straightened out short of a decision by the highest court. In the ordinary process of the law, that may take several years, during which this undemocratic practice will presumably continue in force on Federal property.

In the meantime, however, the Federal Government, in respect to the airport at least, will no longer be in the position of aiding and abetting a practice contrary to national policy. The recent report on "Segregation in the Nation's Capital" pointed out, among other things, the anomaly by which the Government in this and other cases appears to sanction and even encourage segregation while condemning its practice by others. Inasmuch as the Government's position has now been made clear with respect to the airport, it behooves the CAA and the Justice Department to press for a court decision upholding the validity as well as the justice of the nonsegregation policy. The forthright statement that segregation at the airport must go is excellent. It should be vigorously paralleled in other cases where the Government's own practice falls short of its professions.

Antitrust Laws

Among the recommendations for changes in the antitrust laws submitted for study by Congress, the House Small Business Committee suggests imposition of adequate penalties for violation of the Sherman Act and larger appropriations for the antitrust division of the Department of Justice and FTC. The meagerness of the appropriations allowed these two agencies of Government has undoubtedly hampered efforts to enforce the antitrust laws. And the lack of suitable penalties calculated to act as a deterrent to law-breaking has also militated against effective enforcement. In the absense of these essential conditions of effective enforcement, it would be worse than futile to impose additional duties on hard-pressed Government agencies by expanding the scope of existing antitrust laws.

As a matter of fact, a good many supporters of recommendations to provide more money and stiffer penalties as law enforcement aids would be willing to forgo extensive revision of the antitrust laws. They think that the major cause of trouble is traceable to faulty interpretation and application of the laws, especially by the courts. To their way of thinking the poor record of accomplishment reveals the lack of a clearly defined policy in dealing with alleged offenders. Consequently, many of the specific recommendations of the Small Business Committee aimed at particularistic abuses will meet with opposition not only from those groups who are secretly opposed to all forms of control, but also from others who believe that flexible, purposive administration of the existing laws would accomplish more good than multiplication of existing prohibitions.

On the whole this newspaper is disposed to agree with those who conclude that the remedy for present abuses will not be found in more restrictive laws but rather in improved methods of enforcing the laws already on the statute books. Certainly the remedy does not lie in trying to turn back the hands of the clock by repeal of exemptions from the antitrust laws granted to railroads and labor unions. Not only would such proposals encounter determined opposition; they ignore the fact (that might as well be admitted) that competition has ceased to function in a large area of the economy and cannot be restored by legislative action without serious impairment of productive efficiency.

The remedy for abuses arising in a mixed economy such as we now have certainly will not be found by forcing public utilities, such as railroads, to engage in competitive rate making or subjecting large industrial concerns to multiple restrictions that hamper growth. It may be possible to arrest the trend toward industrial concentration by a more vigorous enforcement of the antitrust laws, aided by a recommended change in the laws to prevent a corporation from buying the assets of another concern, if the effect of such acquisition is to restrain competition. But attempts to preserve competitive enterprise from monopolistic encroachment by piling new legislative prohibitions atop of existing prohibitions, many of which are virtually unenforceable, is a vain hope.

New Year's Day

The Greeks held that the highest virtue is contemplation, and modern man agrees with them at least once a year, New Year's Day. Today we are all taking stock and making resolutions.

More and more Americans have been convinced by the old year's happenings that an irrepressible conflict at arms is in the making between Soviet Russia and the Western world. Millions of foreigners and not a few of their leaders are banking upon it. To them a Russo-Western war means hope of a better life where none now exists under the slavery which is their portion. No shooting war, however, is inevitable. The historians show us how the War Between the States could have been avoided by statesmanship, and Allen Nevins calls our American failure in this respect "an undying reproach." The same lesson is already being dinned into our ears about the Second World War; Mr. Churchill, responding to Mr. Roosevelt's request for a name for the conflict, suggested "The Unnecessary War." It is, to use Premier St. Laurent's word, "blasphemous" to talk about a third world war, because thinking makes it so.

And the outstanding fact of our times is that no people is war-minded. It was no discovery on Mr. Truman's part, no revelation of the knowledge of human nature that he acquired in the election campaign, that the people of Soviet Russia don't want war. The Japanese people did not want war; nor, to a lesser extent, did the Germans. It is people's desire for peace that is our greatest insurance of it. Here is an initial advantage for the statesmanship of peace to work on, though the task is made heavy by two phenomena: the technical state of our Western society, which enables a handful of evil men, let alone the international conspiracy of Stalinism, to ignite a conflagration, and the seething state of Eastern society, where freedom from colonial rule might easily be terminated in bondage to Moscow.

These phenomena are reasons for prudence in the conduct of our affairs, but not for panic; for a positive approach to our problems, not a negative approach. Can we say that in the past year we have pursued the positive? Not altogether. We have been timid about saying yes to our free institutions in our anxiety to protect them. A contradiction in terms? Yes, but, nevertheless, a fact. The tactic is defensive, and is not calculated either to win the cold war abroad or to save our own free institutions at home. We are in danger of copying the other fellow's technique in order to protect ourselves from it. Passionately to believe in freedom and to practice it passionately—this is how to extend the area of it.

To be positive is to insure the path of true security, though it is to dare much. This cold war is being fought in the atomic age of sudden attack and sudden obliteration. It is so wearing on the nerves that General Bradley fears war out of sheer frustration. The United States has not been inured to the kind of rugged life that frontier peoples have known for centuries. In reviewing his work in his History of Europe, H. A. L. Fisher says, "The lesson of European history is that Europe is never settled, but always restless and uneasy." That should give us courage to be positive as well as prudent in our conduct. Confusion is the enemy. The best antidote is the reexamination of our heritage and the reaffirmation of faith in it. That will make us more pro than anti—less likely to be driven, in our fear of the Left, into the excesses of the Ultraright—less squint-eyed as well as less starry-eyed.

No task will be more difficult than to steer a true American course through the succession of emergencies that are indicated for the new year. In a volume survey of World Communism Today, Martin Ebon concludes that the two questions facing the world today are: Will the majority of people defy propagandist confusion? Will the Western world avoid self-destruction in the next economic crisis? They are, indeed, the basic questions as we enter 1949.

German Conditions

The German people have been accustomed to living under a highly regulated economy in which free enterprise functioned within a limited field. In prewar years the prices of many articles were fixed by regulated monopolies or cartels. It was not to be expected, therefore, that a currency reform and the return to a system of more or less free interchange of goods alien to German prewar experience would function very well after the bloom had worn off. This is proving to be the case.

Letters to relatives and friends from Germans tell a story that has become monotonous from constant repetition: namely, that rationed foods are somewhat more abundant but the extras that relieve the deadly monotony of potatoes, black bread and a few tasteless vegetables are beyond the reach of working men's families. Now a reduction in the bread ration looms as a threat, because German farmers are not delivering grain needed to maintain ration levels. Bavaria has already announced a cut in the bread ration next month, and other states in the Bizonal area are expected to take the same step. The British-American military government has warned the German officials who administer the collection program that if a state fails to meet its quota this month its allocation of imported grains will be cut by an amount equal to the deficiency. If January and February deliveries fall short, two tons of imported grain will be deducted for each missing ton that should have been collected to meet state quotas.

While this drastic measure is designed to speed deliveries, it appears to be a very dubious disciplinary measure, calculated to inflict hardship on the German masses without altering the conditions that hamper efficient administration of the grain collection program. For, as our own experience under OPA proves, a partial system of rationing and price control inevitably results in diversion of controlled goods into uncontrolled trade channels yielding higher returns to producers and distributors. Moreover, it is especially difficult to discover and dislodge farm products withheld from the market in the hope of later sale at higher prices. With price stability so conspicuously lacking in Germany, it is foolish to talk of currency stability.

Industry And The Atom

How to insure fuller use of nonclassified information about atomic energy is a serious concern both outside and within the top ranks of the Atomic Energy Commission. Secrecy snowballs. It now encompasses vast amounts of data on atomic energy that are not rightfully secret at all. Indeed, something very much akin to a secrecy psychosis has grown up on atomic energy. An example is related by Herbert Marks in a recent article in the University of Chicago Law Review. When asked to take a passenger to the Public Health Building, a Washington taxi driver replied: "Why, that's where the Atomic En—— but I shouldn't be saying that!"

Some of the responsibility for this condition must fall on laymen, including industry and the press, for failure to pursue nonsecret information more aggressively. That the Atomic Energy Commission itself is not doing enough to encourage dissemination of information, however, is the burden of a new report by the commission's Industrial Advisory Group. Industry, says the report, "has no way of determining whether important opportunities in fact exist in which to take part" in atomic energy development.

There can be no doubt that such opportunities do exist outside the control of the basic stuff of atomic energy, which for security reasons must remain a Government monopoly. The relationship of atomic energy to such important areas as the chemical, petroleum, power and metallurgic industries has barely been scratched. Private firms are now doing extensive work under contract with the commission, both in the production of fissionable material and in research. But the only significant independent industrial activity is with radioisotopes made available by the commission.

More industrial participation is essential for two reasons: first, it is the only way through which the benefits of atomic energy can be made available to the public on an expanding scale; and, second, more knowledge brought to bear on peaceful uses probably would result in the solution of technical problems related to military applications. But industry must first be educated as to where the opportunities lie. For example, the report notes that data about significant new techniques in chemistry and metallurgy discovered on existing projects are "still buried in the files."

The Atomic Energy Commission has made an effort to publish some information for public guidance. The trouble is that this information is spotty and widely scattered, and it is virtually impossible for outsiders to correlate it and place it in perspective. The Industrial Advisory Group has done a real service in focusing attention on the need for more personal contact and for a concerted effort to release nonsecret data on techniques, patent policy and the structure of the commission itself. This involves not only the important contributions that industry can make toward atomic energy but also the even more vital field of public policy. Greater understanding is essential to wise decisions if the nonmilitary potentialities of atomic energy are ever to be realized.

Strategic Research

Among the many arguments for strengthening the Joint Chiefs of Staff, one of the most compelling is the parlous relationship between the Joint Chiefs and the Research and Development Board. "Until adequate strategic guidance can be provided," the RDB report to Secretary Forrestal asserts, "the board cannot make authoritative decisions regarding the priorities of projects and the distribution of research moneys between the military programs." The same lapse in liaison had been observed by the Eberstadt task force of the Hoover Commission. It follows that if the Research and Development Board is in the dark as to the military outlook, then it is not in a position to instruct scientists on working levels what projects require concerted effort. The danger is obvious. Strategic planning and research are complementary, and unless the one hand knows what the other is doing, we may find that we have concentrated on weapons that may not be needed and ignored those that will.

The most practicable solution would be to do away with the dual capacity of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in which they must serve both as strategic planners and advocates of their particular services—in other words, relieve them of the burden of administration so that they can give their major efforts to decisions affecting the defense establishment as a whole. With more staff at their disposal, they should be able to accomplish the vital liaison with other top-level agencies that depend on their decisions. The same device might well be applied to the Research and Development Board itself as a protection against log-rolling by the three services. If, as the RDB report notes, the principal limitation on research is not money but trained personnel, then it is more than ever important that military scientists have all the information they need to do their jobs.

Prayer For Peace

"O God, our Father, grant that we may have peace on earth, with good will, good faith, and fair dealing among all nations, and among all the people thereof, and in the minds and hearts of all duly constituted leaders and representatives of those people.

"By this prayer, O God, we pledge ourselves to do our utmost to perpetuate that peace, and to free mankind from the menace and misery of war now and for all time, world without end. In the name of the Prince of Peace, Thy Son. Amen."

Were it possible for all the people in the world who believe we should and can have peace on earth to pause for 60 seconds once in every 24 hours of this new year of 1949 and utter the foregoing prayer, or one similar in spirit and intent, the miracle might come to pass.

As a means toward bringing this about we have the Voice of America. Let the Voice sound the call to prayer in all languages to all corners of the earth explaining the idea and suggesting the daily minute for the universal mass appeal to the Supreme Power.

This is a way, a plan, or a road to world peace which cannot be denied, abridged, vetoed, closed, or blocked by any human agency.

"Prayer is a force as real as terrestrial gravity," declares Dr. Alexis Carrel in his famous monograph, Prayer Is Power. "Today, as never before, prayer is a binding necessity in the lives of men and nations. The lack of emphasis on the religious sense has brought the world to the edge of destruction. . . . For if the power of prayer is again released and used in the lives of common men and women; if the spirit declares its aims clearly and boldly, there is yet hope that our prayers for a better world will be answered."

Americanism

I have always been rather proud of the fact that I am able to call myself an American, although that status came to me purely as a matter of birth, and with the exception of volunteer service through two World Wars, a review of my life discloses no great service that would entitle me to take my place along with great Americans, the great pioneer army of real men who laid the foundations and helped to build the structure of America as it is today.

I suppose that I am one of the some 140 million other so-called Americans who feel that the saturation point has been reached in the building of this great country and am content to bask in the reflected glories of its past. I say to myself I'm neither a Democrat or Republican and my poor little vote would not help conditions that I certainly don't like, so I stay from the polls, consoled by the asinine thought that I personally did not have anything to do with "that man" getting into office.

I am thinking to myself and out loud today, I am a citizen of the greatest country in the world, the richest when we count our store of material things and yet, less than 10 city blocks from where I sit there are slums and housing conditions unfit for human habitation, my daily papers tell me that my Government's high level offic sometimes include disloyal, crooked, and cheap spawns of a low-level political system, that our Nation's laws are the product of political compromise much too often.

Today as one of the millions of so-called Americans, I feel badly about these things and I am going to beat the gun for New Year. I resolve that for the year 1949 and thereafter I will do everything in my power as an individual to further the cause of Americanism and earn the right to be called a good American.

"No War, No Peace"

Please let me thank Mr. Walter Lippmann through your columns for his article, "No War, No Peace," of December 28. Mr. Lippmann has in the past been far too often among those observers of foreign affairs whose lack of sympathy with the Germans has helped us to get into the serious situation in which the United States now finds itself in Germany.

His reference to civil war in Germany is timely and important—for civil war is nearer there than we may realize. It is now being openly said by the Germans, "The Americans have come to teach us democracy and they are greater dictators than Hitler and not as smart."

Of course, there is a solution to the Berlin problem and we should find that solution—for millions of people to be month after month in the predicament in which the Berliners siding with the West find themselves is not endurable year upon year. What are the subsistence rations upon which these Berliners must live? No one has ever given us an adequate description of this, whatever it is. It is wearing out our airplanes, burning out our pilots and what do we gain? As Lippmann puts it, "We stand on our head" and make a fine spectacle of ourselves.

It is no compliment to our diplomats, our military or our Administration — our performance in Germany.

Six-Cent Air Mail

One unfortunate legacy of the Eightieth Congress will appear on New Year's Day — an increase in the air-mail postage from 5 to 6 cents an ounce. I think this is one thing that should be repealed as quickly as possible. Actually the Postoffice figures that it will do better under a 5-cent rate, since the volume of air-mail letters will be bigger.

There is talk that the penny increase, voted last June but not made effective until the following January (after the elections), was not unconnected with larger subsidies for the big airlines. If this is so, it is an unfair burden for the letter-writing public to be bearing. Let us go back as quickly as possible to the healthy arrangement of "Wings for a Nickel."

Agassiz's Inspiration

The December 27 editorial on the "Historical Blues" mentions some of the consequences to the the United States of the liberal European revolutions of 1848. It is noteworthy that one of these released Louis Agassiz from the service of the King of Prussia and placed him in the service of the American people. As the first scientist of European training on any Harvard faculty, Agassiz promoted, by word and deed, the development of a truly American university spirit with its emphasis upon original research and creative teaching, one expression of which is the American Historical Association.

However, the assembled historians will say little or nothing of Louis Agassiz and his kind. Yet if we would see the human spirit at its best, we must go with him to the classroom, the laboratory, the museum, the woods, the seashore, the outdoor summer school and the public lecture hall. There will we find inspiration from a living, vibrant personality whose light 100 years has not dimmed.

Nazis And The German Press

Dr. Wilhelm Batz, former publisher, Kasseler Post, Kassel, Germany, whose letter appeared in the December 27, issue of The Washington Post, may represent an isolated case and may have the best of intentions, but what he is expressing represents exactly the attitude of the former Nazi publishers who are now trying desperately to get back into business.

If German publishers were put out of business by the Nazis, and if their property was confiscated under the Nazi regime, they would have been in demand when the occupation authorities were beginning to license new newspaper publishers. The truth of the story is that good newspapermen who did not collaborate with the Nazis are at a tremendous premium in occupied Germany.

I went to Germany this spring to help with the reorganization of a chain of Social Democratic newspapers and found a most alarming situation as far as printing facilities for the new democratic press are concerned. In the overwhelming majority of cases, printing shops which were not bombed out were left in the hands of their former owners even though they were Nazi affiliates. The only thing that happened to them was that they were forced to rent their facilities to the new licensees who were thoroughly screened and had to be reliable democrats.

For months now the owners of these printing plants have tried to get the licensing setup changed so that they could start to print newspapers of their own and to put the newly created democratic press—which plays such an important part in the reeducation of Germany—out of business by discontinuing printing contracts with democratic publishers. If everybody who has the facilities in Germany were allowed to begin the publishing of newspapers, it would mean that direct and indirect Nazi propaganda would get the green light.

The licensing of newspapers in Germany certainly did not establish monopolies because in every major city at least two or three newspapers compete with each other. The licensing method, however, established the control over the type of people who have the right to handle this most important instrument of communication. Since there is no direct censorship over the German press, the only safeguard we have is screening the people who are handling the news.

The letter of Mr. Batz gives the informed observer the impression that under the guise of free enterprise reactionaries and Nazis in Germany are beginning to feel their oats and have even the nerve to carry their lobbying directly to the doors of Congress here in Washington.

Modernizing Congress

By Malvina Lindsay

Rules Of The Game

Scene—A meeting of the Association for Advancement.

CHAIRMAN—We have met to take a stand on the proposed modernizing of Congress. Any suggestions?

Mr. Vanderpuffer—What's the matter with Congress as it is? It was good enough for Webster, Calhoun, Clay, Thaddeus Stevens, Sockless Jerry Simpson, Huey Long, Bilbo——

Erasmus J. Dare—Just a minute! As president of Atomic Age Citizens, Inc., I propose a resolution calling for an end of the filibuster, for humane treatment of citizens at congressional inquisitions, for curbing the tyranny of the House Rules Committee——

Representative Rote—I rise to a point of order! As a member of Congress and also of the Association for Advancement, I demand to see the agenda for discussion.

Chairman—Why-er-who-er has the agenda?

Mr. Dare—We haven't time to fool with that. Congress meets Monday. We must demand that it immediately curb the Rules Committee if we expect any bills to get to the floor this session.

Mr. Vanderpuffer—Now, now just a minute! We don't want to get mixed up in any socialistic schemes.

Mrs. McAddle—Are they going to investigate the Rules Committee?

CHAIRMAN (rapping for order)—I see Mr. Nesselrode Groove, civic leader, is here. Any ideas, Mr. Groove?

Mr. Groove—We should beware of any hasty and ill considered action. We must make change slowly. We must crawl before we walk. Better be safe than sorry——

Mrs. March—May I interrupt to say there is no use introducing any social or welfare legislation in the next Congress if six or seven little Hitlers on the Rules Committee are going to say what the House shall vote on?

Representative Rote—I protest that those remarks are unauthorized.

Judge Pudd—The little lady seems confused. All we want is a common sense program to which sound thinking, right-minded people can subscribe. I've asked Representative Gripp to come here tonight to explain things.

REPESENTATIVE GRIPP—Ladies and gentlemen: I'm as much for progress as anybody—that is, the right kind of progress. But we must have efficiency, order, law in Congress. Hence we must keep leadership in the right hands—er—I mean experienced hands.

Mr. Dare—You mean the members of the Rules Committee.

Representative Gripp—I mean a bill can't be left entirely to the committee that is considering it, or even to the House membership.

Mrs. March—Why have a House then? Why not just elect a Rules Committee?

Representative Gripp—You've got this thing confused. What I mean is you can't have every Tom, Dick and Harry monkeying with bills.

Mrs. McArdle—Why can't we?

CHAIRMAN (rapping for order)—Mrs. Montclair St. Vitus wants to say something.

Mrs. St. Vitus—I have to leave. I'm due this minute at three other places. I want to suggest that since we can't seem to get together on modernizing the procedure of Congress, we promote a plan to put some streamlined furnishings into the Capitol, also some new electrical equipment.

Judge Pudd—The little lady has a fine idea! Completely noncontroversial.

Representative Gripp—Mr. Chairman, I want to explain further my position. Now I believe in the people as much as anybody, but—well, say a bill's before a regular committee, or the House itself. Too much popular opinion's likely to influence the outcome.

Mr. Dare—You mean the public will nose into things too much?

Representative Rote—Those remarks are unparliamentary. I again demand to see the agenda for discussion.

Representative Gripp—Anyway, what's all this fuss about the Rules Committee bottling up legislation? Everybody knows a bill can be gotten out by a discharge petition.

Mrs. March—May I remind Representative Gripp that I heard both him and Representative Rote boasting they had never signed discharge petitions and never would?

Mrs. McAddle—Why don't we just indorse some new refrigerators for Congressmen?

Representative Rote—Mr. Chairman, I demand that this meeting be terminated. It has no right to discuss any of these matters.

Mr. Dare—Why not?

Representative Rote—The Rules Committee has never given a rule for it to be held.

Steel Capacity

A Communication

WE HEAR a great deal about shortages of this and that, with attendant hardships incident to doing without things, or paying high prices for limited quantities available. This problem applies principally to the products of industry, and fundamentally works back to steel. If you find automobiles, heating plants and other equipment scarce and costly, it is probably because not enough steel can be procured to operate all the available manufacturing facilities that turn out those articles.

Undoubtedly manufacturers, both in this country and abroad, could utilize much more steel than is available for their current operations. There is no question about it, there is a shortage of steel, and there is likely to be a shortage of this vital material for a considerable time to come.

Inasmuch as this is a matter of common knowledge, it is not surprising that great pressure is being brought to bear from various quarters to influence the steel industry to increase its capacity—quickly, and to a substantial extent. Superficially, the answer to shortages seems to be found in the immediate construction of enough blast furnaces, steel conversion facilities, and rolling mills, to give manufacturers enough steel to satisfy the current demand for their products.

BEFORE considering this further, let us follow the ups and downs of steel during the current generation. At the beginning of this century, during the era of McKinley-Roosevelt prosperity, the country was reacting from the "hard times" of the early nineties. It was the time of most rapid railroad development, and steel was in great demand. A shortage of steel existed—in relative degree, much as exists today. The cry was for more and yet more production. Men and machinery were pushed to exhaustion. Production records were broken, and the Pittsburgh millionaires were the talk of the land.

The bank panic of 1907 put a stop to that. Order books dissolved over night. Steel mills shut down, prices fell, and the steel industry wallowed in the doldrums for a period of years. Then came World War I, and the industry came to life. Except for a short recession in 1920-21, there was a shortage of steel from 1916 until about a year after the stock market collapse in 1929. During the boom 20s, again was heard the cry for increased capacity and more production. A new era had arrived! We were always going to be prosperous! Remember?

WELL, that bubble burst. For years during the 30s you could stand on any hilltop overlooking the Monongahela Valley and see hardly a wisp of smoke. The great industries concentrated at the foot of Lake Michigan were stilled. There wasn't much demand for steel in those days, and as cobwebs settled over idle machinery, American labor sat at home, eking out existence on a dole.

Preparation for war, and finally our participation in World War II, revived our industrial life, and it is still going strong. We are currently engaged in filling a vacuum of manufactured goods, just as occurred during the McKinley-Roosevelt era, and again during the 20s.

Every industrial boom period is marked by certain individual features, but fundamentally they are alike—initiated by lack, and closed by satiety. The basic principles that underlie today's market are the same as have prevailed heretofore.

Some day the saturation point in the present demand will be reached. Some day the present rate of consumer buying will slow down. Some day wholesalers will find that their warehouses are bulging with goods for which no market is apparent. They will cancel their orders with the producers of raw materials. The most important of those raw materials is steel, and steel will feel the impact again, just as happened in 1907 and in 1930.

THROUGH many decades, the steel industry has been increasing its productive capacity at a normal rate and with a reasonable degree of orderliness. The rate of increase has been consistent with the rate of consumption of goods involving the use of steel. Today, as in past eras of great industrial activity, the steel industry is under pressure to increase its capacity beyond the normal rate of increase. Reluctance on the part of the steel industry to be swept off its feet by this influence has evoked taunts of "planning for the next depression."

Well, we can't have cake and eat it too. Every ton of steel that is produced today is a ton that will not be needed later. The sooner we fill today's vacuum, the sooner mills will have to shut down for lack of orders. The American public has been notoriously improvident about the long range future. Now the steel industry is being importuned to borrow from the future by building at once a tremendous expansion of production facilities.

Even if this were feasible, it does not seem to be advisable. Does anyone believe that we are living in a "new era" today, as we were told in the nineteen twenties? Of course not. It cannot be wise to anticipate the normal demand of future years in order to overgorge ourselves on today's prosperity—a prosperity that will not always be with us.

IT WOULD seem to be far better policy to husband our current prosperity, and let normal economic factors dictate a gradual increase in our steel capacity, just as in the past.

Furthermore, it is only uninformed opinion that clamors for drastic immediate increases in steel producing capacity. Such increases tend to defeat their own purpose by absorbing for new construction steel that otherwise would be available to help satisfy current demands.

Finally, it is obviously much better for all concerned to build new capacity during dull times rather than during boom times, and if this is "planning for the next depression," what's wrong with that? H. VAN ZANDT.

House Group Sees Tight Newsprint Supply in 1949-50

A prediction that the supply of newsprint will be "tight, if not short" in 1949-50 came from a congressional committee yesterday.

Along with this forecast, a special House committee noted that the demand for newsprint usually rises in periods when competition in retail trade and business becomes sharper.

"Increased demand is expected to continue in such volume as to offset much, if not all, of the gains which are being made in newsprint production," the committee said.

The House group, headed by Representative Clarence Brown (R., Ohio), was appointed in 1947 to study the newsprint and paper situation generally. Its lifetime ended yesterday.

Washington Calling

New Year Challenge

THIS IS the time when customarily we weak and groping mortals look into the future and resolve to improve our conduct. The turning of a page in the calendar and the appearance of those new and startling numerals, 1949, remind us all of the fleeting nature of our tenure of this globe.

Childs

For columnists and commentators the year just past should have been a chastening one. It should have cured or curbed temporarily at least, the chief occupational disease of this business. That is, the tendency to large pronouncements that seem to have been inscribed by the writer on tablets of stone, to sweeping predictions, to dicta handed down from lofty, cloud-enwrapped heights.

I have been thinking of these things as I have tried to frame some resolutions of my own. A strong incentive in this endeavor has been the letters in the past two months from indignant readers applying a variety of adjectives and epithets.

It is well to begin small in these matters. I resolve to be extra careful about attributing "familiar" quotations to the proper author.

I shall, in the coming year, abjure that odious and condescending phrase "the little people." I shall, to the best of my ability, resist the inroads of that insidious disease, Washingtonitis, which deludes its victims, and they are many, into believing that this Capital is the seat of all wisdom and all ability.

I SHALL try to severely ration myself in the use of the word "crisis" and the word "problem." Perhaps once a week would be enough for "crisis." I don't see, however, how I can get along without using "problem" a minimum of twice a week.

Rationing the word "crisis" is not going to be easy. It seems to jump out of so many headlines in almost any newspaper. The columnist always is shaking it threateningly in the reader's face.

But a lot can be said in defense of the habit. For with each passing week it becomes clearer that the weary world is in a state of crisis which shows no signs of abating in 1949.

Our form of civilization in the West is challenged by another form that, at times, seems to be more dynamic, and have a greater intensity. The challenge comes when the West is battered and bruised from a cycle of wars.

In our busy, rushing America we are reluctant to face up to what this means. Too often we fail to realize that what we do at home is directly related to the challenge.

The growing drive to remove the barriers of racial discrimination is being watched by peoples everywhere. So is the resistance to that drive, which often takes ugly and violent forms. The lynching of a Negro in the South is news to millions throughout Asia for whom America is only a vague name. It has echoes that never cease, and those echoes are, of course, picked up and magnified by world communism for its own propaganda purposes.

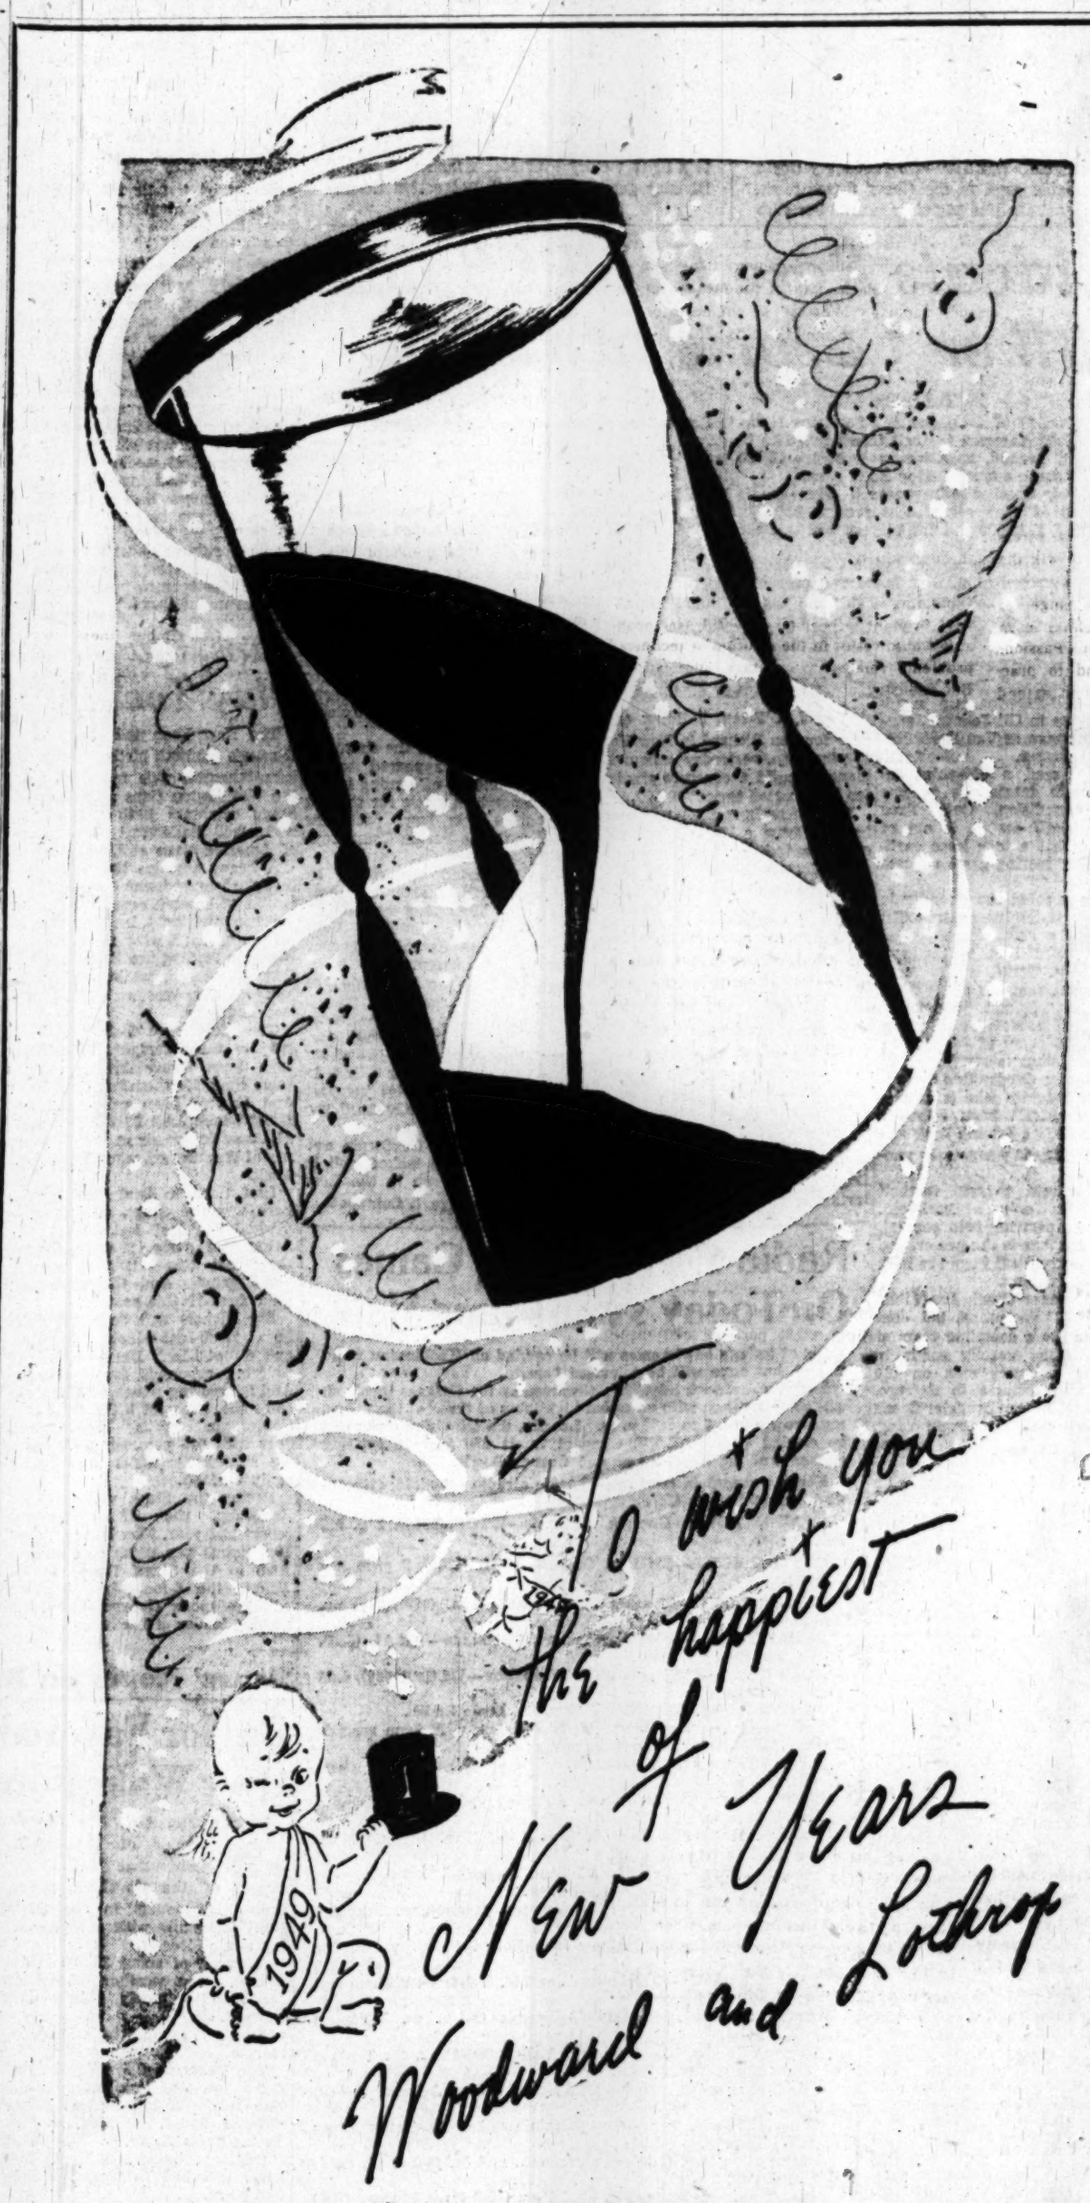

WHAT is happening in Indonesia is a part of the world struggle, a piece of the over-all crisis. Here, too, the challenger, communism, finds useful raw material that is converted into explosive propaganda.

No one who has looked at the two systems with anything like objectivity can doubt which offers the most in both material rewards and in the freedoms that give space to the development of the human spirit. Many who were deceived in the '30s by the promise of a perfect state that communism seemed to hold out long since have been undeceived by the terrifying realities of Soviet Russia.

Most of us in this country, individualists, complete and total, find it hard to comprehend that we have an individual responsibility. The challenge is directed not at an abstraction but at each and every one of us.

The best hope of peace is in the acceptance of this challenge. It is in a demonstration that our way of life is capable of continuous evolution toward higher and higher standards of freedom, equally of opportunity and material reward. That kind of peaceful conquest can finally resolve the world crisis.

I have a feeling that right at the start I have broken my most solemn resolution. But that may be what resolutions are really for.

Bryant Says He Doesn't Want to Coach Redskins

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NEW ORLEANS, DEC. 31.—Mons. Etienne de Bore, a Frenchman of early Louisiana, would doubtless exclaim "Mon Dieu" were he to behold tomorrow the transformation of his New Orleans plantation, now the site of the Sugar Bowl game.

POVICH

He was a colonial planter who originally cultivated indigo and chicory on his extensive holdings and then branched out into sugar cane. He was a determined cuss, apparently, because they warned him that cane juice would not crystalize in the Louisiana climate, and he said it would, and thus was launched one of the State's bigger industries.

And thus a hundred years later was born the Sugar Bowl game, now 15 years old, in honor of the cane industry.

But Etienne de Bore hadn't planned it exactly that way nor did he envision the day when 80,735 football-crazy fans would be traipsing into his place for a day's fun at $6 per seat to watch North Carolina's singlewing play Oklahoma's split-T.

Before the Sugar Bowl became the Sugar Bowl it was known merely as Tulane's Stadium, a modest little joint seating only 22,026. And then some New Orleans citizens started to do a nice thing for Tulane.

THEY GOT TOGETHER, 30 of 'em, businessmen, and decided to sponsor a bowl game—called the Sugar Bowl—and raised $180,000 and built the Tulane stadium up to 40,000 seats. They got their money back so fast that in 1939, they floated a $500,000 bond issue and asked for subscribers. By return mail they were over their quota, and the little Tulane stadium bloomed to 69,000 seats.

Two years ago, they decided to go really bigtime; floated another $550,000 debenture bond, and tacked on 12,000 more seats. In a couple of years they'll add 12,000 more to give the stadium a 92,000 capacity. That will give them the biggest bowl stadium in the Nation and they may be content for at least a couple of years.

If you're a Sugar Bowl Association man in New Orleans, you're some shucks. There are only 30-odd original guarantors, and they get the choice tickets. The man with Sugar Bowl tickets in New Orleans is a big man—to his clients or customers, and it is the shortest cut to commercial good will. When the old Sugar Bowlers die off, their franchise go to their sons.

YEAR IN AND YEAR OUT, the Sugar Bowl has staged the thrill-ingest of the New Year Day games. Tulane, the local school, and Pop Warner's unbeaten Temple team were the first Sugar Bowlees, in 1935. Tulane won when Monk Simons, taking a kickoff, sprinted 85 yards to a touchdown. And the next year they brought in Texas Christian, with Sammy Baugh, against Louisiana State.

In those days, Baugh was a 60-minute player, a ball-carrier and passer, and it was when he tried to run the ball that he was thrown for a safety by LSU. But late in the game Tillie Manton, who, like Baugh, was to go up to the Redskins, kicked a field goal with Baugh holding and TCU won the game, 3-2.

The Sugar Bowl is proud of the stars it has presented over the years. Their patrons have seen great passers like Baugh, and Davey O'Brien, and Glenn Dobbs, Bobby Layne and Harry Gilmer. Great runners like John Kimbrough, Charlie Trippi, Eddie Prokop, Herman Wedemeyer and Charley O'Rourke. It was in the Sugar Bowl that Frank Leahy was launched into the Notre Dame job.

Leahy had some success at Boston College but it was not until he brought his B. C. team to the 1941 Sugar Bowl game against Tennessee that he attained the national fame that fetched him a Notre Dame contract. Boston College wasn't supposed to win that game and with six minutes to play, was trailing by a touchdown.

Then Charlie O'Rourke, his quarterback, saved the day for Leahy, after panicking Tennessee with his passes, on a long march goalward. With the Vols alerted to his passing arm, O'Rourke kept the ball himself and sprinted 27 yards through tackle for the score that produced a 19-13 upset victory.

It was a play that Leahy and O'Rourke devised only the day before, and it was so secret that they worked it out behind the closed doors of the gymnasium, for greater privacy. It was the play that figuratively sent Leahy to Notre Dame, and for O'Rourke it netted a contract with the Chicago Bears.

Paul Feels Obligated to Stay On at Kentucky

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Paul (Bear) Bryant, the Redskins' first choice as their 1949 coach, last night said he didn't want the job.

From Lexington, Ky., where the former Maryland mentor is under a 10-year contract at the University of Kentucky, an Associated Press dispatch said Bryant "had asked the Redskins not to consider him for the job of head coach."

Bryant's prepared statement said: "Mr. George Marshall (Redskin president) and I have been good friends for many years and I feel I owe him a debt of gratitude for the help he has given me on numerous occasions."

Feels Obligated to Kentucky

"However, I am under contract to the University of Kentucky and I also feel a strong obligation to the Kentucky players, the coaches, the administration and to many friends who have supported us loyally."

Thus the Redskins' head coaching position was thrown even wider open than when Turk Edwards, for three years head coach, recently moved into the front office as executive vice president.

The suspicion was, as a matter of fact, that the Redskins didn't have the vaguest notion where their next coach was coming from. Seven of them have served in the last 16 years.

Marshall was unavailable for comment on the Bryant decision, but General Manager Dick McCann limited his sentiments to "That's too bad."

Marshall High on Paul

Marshall had repeatedly expressed a preference for Bryant, who has acted as an unofficial scout and adviser to the 'Skins since his Maryland coaching days in '45. Marshall would not say that Bryant was offered a Redskin contract but it was admitted the hus[illegible] former Alabama end had sat in on "discussions" with the 'Sk[illegible] here last weekend.

M[illegible]n, asked last night who the m[illegible] most likely candidate was, and when he will be signed, said he didn't know.

"We'll sign the best man available, as previously announced," he said, "as soon as possible. But without undue haste."

Justice Ailing but Expected to Start In Sugar Bowl Today

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

New Orleans, La., Dec. 31.—Charlie Justice's year-end tummy ache, panicking North Carolina supporters, tonight was the prime topic of the final, pregame hours before the unbeaten Tar Heels moved into the Sugar Bowl against Oklahoma U. tomorrow.

Out of the North Carolina camp at nearby Hammond, La., came the disquieting news that All-American Justice for two days has been a victim of intestinal grippe and until tonight there was doubt that he would start.

Coach Carl Snavely and his aides deny that it is a bear story and point to Justice's absence from the final workout today. "He'll start, and I'm hoping he won't be in weakened condition," said Snavely. Justice spent most of the day in bed.

Oklahoma, already on the scene and with a workout in the big stadium already under its belt, only smirked at the report of Justice's illness. "We're going into the game counting on meeting up with Justice for as much as 60 minutes," said Coach Bud Wilkinson.

Clear Weather Predicted

For the fourteenth Sugar Bowl game, between high-scoring Oklahoma and point-grudging Carolina—a collision of the best split-T formation and a top single-wing team, more than 80,700 fans will jam their way into the Tulane stadium.

Ticket speculators were still asking as high as $25 per seat, with the game ostensibly sold out as far back as last June. The weather man has promised a clear day for the battle, with a bit of zip in the air but the threat of rain vanished.

The dry field will be a blessing to Oklahoma, with its tricky ball-handling and running plays, Coach Wilkinson admitted. "Without rain, I think we'll do all right," he said.

With the betting commissioners, Carolina still rules the favorite despite reports of Justice's illness, though the margin is slim—at a point and a half.

Rodgers Also Reported Ill

In addition to Justice, Carolina's No. 2 back, Hosea Rodgers was also reported to be stricken by migraine headaches, a chronic ailment, but he also will start. Rodgers, on previous Saturdays, has transferred those headaches from himself to the opposition, with the exception of William and Mary which held the Tar Heels 7-7.

Not since the opening game against Santa Clara has Oklahoma tasted defeat and has rolled to an average of 33 points per game despite the lack of a high-powered passing attack. That's the test Oklahoma's running game against a Carolina team that has yielded only two touchdowns all year to runners.

Oklahoma is offering as its opposite number to Justice, Quarterback Jack Mitchell, superb play-caller, ball-handler and ball-carrier who sends such as George Thomas, Lindell, Pearson and Leon Heath

Wildcats Rose Bowl Choice; Walker Cavorts in Cotton

By Ted Smits

Dallas, Dec. 31 (AP).—Oregon and Southern Methodist, two high-powered football teams that like to toss the ball around, meet tomorrow before 69,000 in the thirteenth annual Cotton Bowl game.

Sharp clear weather is in prospect. The athletic associations of each school will receive between $105,000 and $115,000 and the players will tget the glory.

Oregon, cochampion of the Pacific Coast Conference with a record of nine victories and only one defeat, presents Norman Van Brocklin, one of the finest of collegiate passers, and Southern Methodist, the Southwestern champions, counters with Doak Walker, twice an All-America and in addition throws in Gil Johnson, considered by some as Van Brocklin's equal as a passer.

SMU is raed a 6½-point favorite. Both teams are in fine physical condition. Only Fred Goodwin, SMU center, is out of action. He has a torn knee cartilage. A free scoring game appears likely.

Oregon is rated the stronger in the line, and Southern Methodist better in the backfield.

The Oregon line is big and rangy. Dan Garza, senior end, stands 6 feet 2 inches and weighs 198. Brad Ecklund, 214-pound 6-foot-3-inch center, is a workhorse. In 10 years of football he has never failed to start a game, but behind the Oregon line there is only Van Brocklin who is considered up to SMU's best, although George Bell is a driving back and Johnny McKay is a breakway runner.

SMU is said to win football games with only a backfield. Walker, an inspiring field general, leads it. Johnson is the passer, and Kyle Rote and Paul Page are both dangerous runners.

Oregon under Coach Jim Aiken uses the "T" formation, but does not substitute a complete team at a time. Aiken usually sends in about six or seven men on the change from offense to defense.

Southern Methodist under Coach Matty Bell uses the single wing, and likewise substitutes in smaller groups.

Oregon		Southern Methodist
Garza	L. E.	Folsom
Dotur	L. T.	Ethridge
Meland	L. G.	Lewis
Ecklund	Center	Wood
Chrobot	R. G.	Halliday
Stanton	R. T.	Hamberger

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 31 (AP).—Northwestern University's football stock took a slight turn upward today but California's Warriors of the Blue and Gold remained confident of victory in the Rose Bowl game tomorrow.

The two elevens—Northwestern here and the Berkeley Bears at nearby Riverside—took final light exercises and were pronounced in top physical shape for the thirty-fifth edition of the Tournament of Roses grid classic.

Clear weather and a field that may range from slightly soft in spots to fast were promised, and a sell-out crowd of 92,500 fans, some of whom paid scalper prices as high as $60 for a pair of tickets, awaited the kickoff at 2 o'clock, Pacific Standard Time.

The Wildcats from the shores of Lake Michigan appeared to be frankly confident of turning in the third triumph in a row for the Big Nine since this bowl pact was signed with the Pacific Coast Conference.

Illinois started the string by walloping UCLA and last New Year's Day Michigan's superb machine humiliated Southern California and the Coast Conference with its 49-0 victory.

Undoubtedly the knowledge of these topheavy successes, plus a recollection that Northwestern looked solid, well-balanced and tough, if not spectacular, in socking out a 19-0 decision over UCLA in neighboring Los Angeles just last September 25, has influenced the sporting bloods.

And while both California and Northwestern have looked well in practices leading up to the Rose

Big Stadium Planned Here

Alan J. O'Brien, building engineer for Tex Rickard in New York 27 years ago, yesterday announced plans to build a concrete stadium for Washington to seat 40,000.

He said he is receiving financial backing from a New York syndicate, headed by two owners of major league baseball teams. Cost of the project will be about $650,000, exclusive of land and utilities.

Design will be similar to the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills, Long Island, in which the Davis Cup tennis matches have been held. It will be shaped like a horseshoe and will be suitable for football, boxing, hockey and tennis.

O'Brien said he planned to locate the structure on about 5 acres of land at the outskirts but easily accessible from the center of the city.

O'Brien recently moved to Washington from New York. He is a District sales manager for the Irvington Form and Tank Corp.

Caps, Stags Play Tonight

The New Year and Bones McKinney's thirtieth birthday arrived simultaneously this morning, and the Washington Caps and Chicago Stags celebrate both tonight in their 8:45 Basketball Association of America clash at Uline Arena.

A heavy advance sale indicates that the largest home crowd of the season will watch contest between the two divisional leaders. Washington, with 22 wins in 26 starts, has been leading the Eastern Division all season, while the Stags just took over Western's first place last Thursday.

The Stags have their work cut out for them tonight. The Caps have been unbeatable on their home court for their last 17 games. And they've been reinforced by 6-foot-7-inch Jack Nichols, former All-America center at the University of Washington, who signed this week.

Last team to beat Washington here was the Stags, who accomplished the feat last March 10. After that game, the Caps won their last three 1947-48 season home games. And they've swept their first 13 this season.

Big Nichols will be a valuable help to 6-foot-6-inch McKinley and 6-foot-8-inch Hermsen in recovering rebounds for the Caps. And his scoring punch will be welcome too. Jack set a Pacific Coast Conference scoring record last year with 265 points in 16 games. He scored 39 points in a game against Idaho.

Pacing the Stags will be Max Zaslofsky, the BAA's leading scorer last year. Max has averaged 19.6 points per game this season. Also in the Stags' lineup is Ed Mikan, the 6-foot-8-inch brother of Minneapolis' George Mikan, the scoring leader of the league.

Morton Quits VMI, Goes To Miss. State

Special to The Post

Lexington, Va., Dec. 31.—Coach Arthur (Slick) Morton, 34, has resigned as football coach at VMI after two seasons to accept the head coaching job at Mississippi State, it was announced today by Frank L. Summers, VMI director of athletics.

Summers said Morton had requested his release, although he knew the school planned to give him a new contract with "materially better terms."

That the parting was on the friendliest terms was evidenced by a statement by Summers: "Not only the institute authorities but also the corps of cadets and the alumni will regret losing Coach Morton who had endeared himself to VMI, its friends and alumni through his successful handling of football and his splendid human relations with all hose who knew him."

Morton, 1937 captain and star back at Louisiana State University, coached high school football then took over at Southeastern Louisiana College. He returned to L.S.U. as an assistant coach in 1943 and stayed there until he came to V.M.I. in the spring of 1947.

In two years, Morton's V.M.I. teams won nine, lost eight and tied one. Last fall, the Keydets won six and lost three. Defeats were dealt out by William and Mary, 31-0; Virginia, 26-14, and Tulane, 28-7.

Morton's 1947 record at V.M.I. wasn't nearly as bad as the 3-5-1 figures indicated. The Keydets were overpowered by Virginia and Georgia Tech but lost to William and Mary by only 28-20 and dropped two games by 1 point. Richmond won, 21-20; The Citadel, 7-6.

At Mississippi State, Morton succeeds Allyn McKeen, coach for 10 years. And one thing's sure, McKeen's over-all record will be hard to top. His teams won 65, lost only 19 and tied 3 in the tough Southeastern Conference.

Last season State won four, lost four and tied Baylor, 7-7. Close defeats were inflicted by Alabama, 10-7, and Tulane, 9-0. Clemson's Gator Bowl team won, 21-7. But Mississippi, its big rival, crushed McKeen's State club, 34-7.

It was the final game that caused dissatisfaction with McKeen. Although he was said to have "resigned," settlement was made on his contract which had three years to run.

O'Keefe Paces Hoyas' Victory With 21 Points

Special to The Post

Cleveland, Dec. 31.—Georgetown University possessed too much speed and shooting ability for John Carroll tonight and beat the Blue Streaks, 73-53, at the Cleveland Arena.

The Hoyas moved into the lead early in the first quarter and remained on top throughout. Paced by the sharpshooting of Tommy O'Keefe, the Washington team led 25-12 at the first quarter and hiked the margin to 41-24 at the intermission and 56-35 as the final period opened.

O'Keefe, Jersey City product, led the Hoyas with 21 points while John Mazziotta was second with 16. Tom Doyle with 13 and George Reilly, a 6-foot, 8-inch center, with 12, led Carroll.

The Hoyas had scored victories over Fort Belvoir and Penn State and lost to New York University before tonight. The Blue Streaks had four victories in five starts, including a triumph last Wednesday night over Cornell.

60,000 See Texas, Georgia Clash in Orange Bowl Today

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 31.—The eyes of Texas will be on Georgia tomorrow, but the Bulldogs are expected to hoodwink the Longhorns often enough to produce a football victory in the fifteenth annual Orange Bowl classic.

Despite the influx of thousands of Texans with thousands of dollars, Georgia remained a strong 7-point favorite, the same margin accorded the Southeastern Conference champs when the lineup for tomorrow's clash was first revealed.

The weather will be ideal—not for Miami, but for football. The forecast is for a bright cool day with the thermometer flirting with the 60-degree mark, considered frigid weather in this winter paradise.

Blind Date For Both

Several thousand of the 60,000 available tickets are still for sale, but they must be purchased from speculators who are asking and getting $25 and up for $6 seats.

The clash between the once-beaten Bulldogs and the thrice-thrashed Texans is pretty much of a blind date for both teams. Neither had an opportunity to scout the other, but the exploits of the individual stars of the rivals were well known to the coaching rivals, Wally Butts of the Bulldogs and Blair Cherry of the Longhorns.

Quarterback and passing star Johnny Rauch, a Pennsylvania sharpshooter who made good in Dixieland, is the chief reason Georgia closed its regular season with nine victories and only one loss, a 21-14 setback by North Carolina.

When Rauch isn't passing, Halfback Joe Geri, Fullback Joe Tillitski and Scatbacks Eli Maricich and Floyd Reid are whizzing their way by the opposition's defenses.

The Bulldogs aren't big as teams stack up today. Their line averages only 190 pounds per man, a mark the Texans top by almost 18 pounds. But Butts' disciples make up for this deficiency with their terrific team speed, a trait of all Butts-coached teams.

Butts Fearful of Upset

The Bulldogs are in perfect physical shape. Mentally, they're A-1 also except for head-man Butts, who envisions a Texas stampede.

Six of the Longhorns have been down with flu, but all have recovered and will be in the thick of things when the whistle sounds for the 2 p. m. kickoff.

The season has been anything but a successful one for Coach Cherry's Texans. This was the Texas club that was rated one of the finest the cattle country had ever corraled.

But what happened to it is another story. The Longhorns were drubbed by North Carolina, nosed out by Oklahoma, rapped by S. M. U. and tied by Texas A. and M., the conference's weak sister.

The Longhorns were among the more surprised people when they received the Orange Bowl bid. They had even broken training, but quickly reassembled when they got the call from Miami.

Charges of "third-rate club" have been hurled at them by

Weather Clears as Clemson, Missouri Await 'Gator Clash

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 31 (AP).—The fourth annual battle for the Gator Skin tomorrow afternoon matches Southern Conference Football Champion Clemson and Big Seven Runner-up Missouri. Clear, cool weather is forecast.

The Gator Bowl crowd of about 36,000 will see favored Missouri try to live up to the role and batter a fighting Clemson Tiger that swept by 10 opponents in 1948 for a perfect season.

They'll expect to see an offensive batte between Bus Entsminger, quarterback in Missouri's split-T formation, and Bobby Gage, Clemson's single wing formation tailback. Both were standouts all year and won top all-conference honors.

The rest of the backfields balance out pretty well, too. Missouri has as top runner Dick Braznell and Scatback Mike Ghnouly. Clemson has tricky Ray Mathews, who led Southern Conference scorers, and plunging Fred Cone.

Where does Missouri rate its edge, then? In addition to playing a tougher schedule, which included a win over Southern Methodist, the Tigers from the Midwest have a heavier line.

That, the oddsmakers say, gives Missouri an edge of 7½ points. half points.

Clemson's Frank Howard frankly said, "I don't give a damn which is the best team; we want to win!"

Missouri's Don Faurot matched him with, "Clemson was undefeated in 10 games and that obviously makes it the better team; but we want to win anyway."

Bears' Hopes on Burk:

Baylor Favored by 6 Points Over Wake Forest in Dixie

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 31 (AP).—Favored Baylor of the Southwestern Conference and Wake Forest of the Southern match their "T" models in the Dixie Bowl tomorrow with a high-scoring affair forecast.

A crowd of about 25,000 is expected. The weather outlook is for fair to partly cloudy and warmer.

Baylor is favored by a six-point margin.

The Bears won five games, lost three and tied two under Coach Bob Woodruff last season. They downed Tulsa, Arkansas, Texas Tech, Texas A. & M. and Texas Christian; tied Missisippi and Rice, and lost to Texas, Tulane and S. M. U.

Wake Forest, under Coach Peahead Walker fashioned a 6-3 record. The Deacons won from George Washington, William & Mary, Duquesne, N. C. State, Duke and South Carolina, and lost to Boston College, North Carolina and Clemson.

Baylor hopes hang heavy on Adrien Burk, the 185-pounder who handles virtually all of the Bear passing and punting.

The Deacons' main offensive threats are the veteran Tom Fetzer at quarterback, and the pitching battery of Carroll Blackberby and Red O'Quinn.

O'Quinn led the nation last season in pass receiving. He caught 39 aerials for a total of 605 yards and six touchdowns.

Both squads were in excellent condition.

The remainder of the 18 are draftees of this year or previous years. They will appear in a total of nine New Year's games.

Though thousands will watch them in action, only one member of the coachless Redskin coaching staff will see a game. Chief Scout Herman Ball is on the West Coast for the East-West affair in which six 'Skin hopefuls will play. Other games will be scouted by unofficial Redskin observers.

Bill Zakoor Boots Home Both Horses

Tropical Park, Fla., Dec. 31 (AP).—A daily double payoff of $2,386 for $2 made the last day of the year one for today's crowd to remember.

Sue's Special contributed the first half of the long shot combination by taking the opening dash at $23.80, then along came Little Matt, from the stable of Benner & Gonzalez, to capture the second contest to the tune of a $254.70 return.

Apprentice Bill Zakoor, son of owner-trainer Dave Zakoor, accomplished the notable feat of riding both winners, although neither represented his dad.

Just 11 winning tickets were sold on this longest daily double of the meeting.

Little Matt, a trailer in his two most recent outings, was the longest shot in the second race and also paid the biggest straight price of the current session.

Little Matt paid $104.30 for place and $37.40 for show in stealing the afternoon's spotlight.

Years ago a daily double paid more than $7,000 at this track. However, the American record payoff for a double is $10,772.40, which the appropriately named Joy Bet and Merry Caroline returned at Washington Park, Ill., on August 14 of 1939.

Young Zakoor drove Sue's Special to a nose victory to get his remarkable achievement under way. And he had to win the second half the hard way, too. Little Matt, which won a race last September, broke last of the dozen platers in the six furlong second race. The 5-year-old gelding did not seem to have a chance until he suddenly rallied around the final bend.

Driving through an opening along the inner rail, Little Matt electrified the bundled-up crowd by wearing down Breakage in the closing strides to score going away. Mixer was third, three additional lengths away. Day, the choice, gave up his early lead and wound up fourth.

Celtics Edge Rollers, 69-67

Boston, Dec. 31 (AP).—The Boston Celtics broke their three-game losing streak at the Arena tonight as they eked out a 69-67 victory over the luckless Providence Steamrollers before a crowd of 2149, the smallest of the season for a Basketball Association of America contest here.

The Steamrollers trailed at one time by 23 points but came steaming forward in the fourth period and almost caught the staggering Boston team. Providence caged 25 points in the final stanza against the Celts 12.

Boston led 20-9 after the first quarter, 39-24 at the half and 57-42 at the end of the third period.

Kenny Sailors was high scorer with 19 points. Gene Stump led the Boston attack with 14 points.

BAA Ref Can't Take It, Quits to Dish It Out on Air

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 31 (U.P.).—Ronald Gibbs, prominent college and professional football official, quit today as a refree in the Basketball Association of America because "professional basketball is getting entirely out of hand."

He claimed there was too much "booing" at BAA games and that officials "are not getting any support from league authorities" in their efforts to call fair decisions.

Gibbs, who conducts a sports program over a local radio station, read on the air a letter he said he had dispatched to top officials of the BAA.

"There is altogether too much questioning of officials' decisions," he said. "Until the situation is corrected, check my name off the list of officials working for the BAA."

Chubby Dean Sues

Cleveland, Dec. 31 (AP).—Alfred L. (Chubby) Dean, former Cleveland Indians pitcher, sued the club for $4450 today. He claimed it failed to employ him for a year after his discharge from the Army in 1946.

W & M Rated 6 Points Over Aggies Today

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 31 (AP).—The William and Mary Indians breezed in today for their football scramble with Oklahoma A. and M. in the second annual Delta Bowl game here tomorrow—and found themselves favored by 6 points.

But you couldn't say anyone was taking those 6 points too seriously. Most folks looked for a tight, high-scoring game.

Both teams held last-day practice sessions. Both were reported in good physical condition, with only one injured major performer apiece.

Coach Rube McCray reported that Buddy Lex, William and Mary's triple-threat halfback, will be able to play very little despite a rest. He suffered a knee injury several weeks ago.

An the Oklahomans' center, Jean Fitter, won't be able to operate because of a fractured ankle bone he received in practice a few days ago.

But there was nothing wrong with a couple of opposing fullbacks—both from Oklahoma—who may provide a little side play to the main event. They are Jack (Flying) Cloud, the Virginians' leading ground gainer, and Bob (Big Dog) Meinert, who is ditto for Oklahoma.

Cloud spent his boyhood in Britton, Okla., and Meinert is from Lone Wolf.

William and Mary has lost to Wake Forest and St. Bonaventure and tied with North Carolina and Boston College. The Aggies have been beaten by Texas Christian, Kansas and Oklahoma.

East Figured To Win Easily Over West

San Francisco, Dec. 31 (U.P.).—The East is favored to score an easy victory over the West when they clash in the annual Shrine football classic tomorrow—in a bowl game in which crippled children are the chief benefactors.

Favored by 7½ points, the East appeared to have all the prize football weapons, and even the weatherman cooperated by forecasting rain or light showers for the 1949 New Year's All-Star game.

The West's hopes for upsetting the bigger and more-publicized Easterners were built around two lightweight backs, Jerry Williams of Washington State and Jimmy Finks of Tulsa, and a gambling passing attack.

The West's coach Jeff Cravath of Southern California feared that neither passes nor his two 170-pound scatbacks would go well against the East's big brawny line on a muddy field.

The East's T-formation speedsters, Lou Kusserow of Columbia, John Panelli of Notre Dame and Bobby Sullivan of Dartmouth, were expected to be as effective in the mud as on dry turf.

A sellout crowd of 62,000 fans who paid from $2.50 to $5 a seat will witness the colorful New Year's pageant in Kezar Stadium. The net proceeds of the game, some $125,000, will go to the Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children.

The West has won the classic 13 times in 23 years and fought 4 games to deadlocks.

Breakaway Backs Rare In This Bowl

Walla Walla, Wash., Dec. 31. (U.P.).—Two teams of convicts will square off Sunday in the third annual Washington State Penitentiary Stone Bowl game.

Already gridiron fever is at a high pitch inside the grim gray walls, as the Pen All-Stars have been installed six-point favorites over the mighty Braves. Untold numbers of cigarettes have been wagered on the outcome of the battle.

Star of the mighty Braves squad is "Floorshow" Fletcher, a light, fast scatback, who last year led the All-Stars to a 12-0 win over the Comets.

Fletcher, who has been kept "under wraps" for most of the season, exuded confidence as to the outcome of the game.

"We'll moider da bums," he said.

Sunday's game is the culmination of the football year in Washington State Penitentiary. Four teams comprise the Big House League, the winner keeping its team intact to meet an eleven composed of the stars of the remaining three squads.

W. Virginia Tries to Stop Texas Mines

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 31 (AP).—The West Virginia-Texas Mines battle in the Sun Bowl tomorrow will add fuel to an old football argument.

Which is better: A team that rips up and down the field, or a team that stands like a rock wall?

The Texas Miners topped the Nation's colleges in rushing during the regular season with an average of 378.3 yards a game.

The West Virginia Mountaineers were almost a rock wall. They ranked eleventh among colleges by holding opponents' gains to an average of 102 yards on the ground.

The odds makers are giving the rock-wall version their support. They rank West Virginia favorite by a touchdown. But the average fan is calling it a toss-up—a score of 20 to 14 with victory going to the team that gets the breaks.

Individually, the game shapes up as a duel between Fred Wendt, flashy Mines fullback, and Jimmy Walthall, passing star for West Virginia.

Wendt has just finished setting a national record of 1,570 yards for rushing gains. He made 152 points in 10 games. Walthall ranked fourth in the Nation by tossing 83 passes which were caught for 1,136 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Yanks Won't Talk But DiMag Reportedly Collects Fat Bonus

By Joe Reichler

New York, Dec. 31 (AP).—Officials of the New York Yankees today refused to deny or confirm a report that Joe DiMaggio, their star centerfielder, had worked under a bonus based on attendance last year.

Despite the "no comment" attitude, it was learned that not only was DiMaggio's 1948 salary based upon Yankee Stadium attendance but his '49 contract will contain a similar clause.

George Weiss, general manager of the Yankees, could not be reached for comment. He is in French Lick, Ind., working on the players' payroll and mapping out plans for the new season. He is expected back in New York next week.

Only Yankee official who could be reached was Arthur (Red) Patterson, public relations director.

"We neither deny nor confirm the story," he said. "It has been our policy never to discuss players' salary figures. We do not intend to do so now."

Joe Due for Boost

DiMaggio's bonus arrangement last season is understood to have started at the 1,500,000 attendance mark with a boost in salary for every 250,000 cash customers. His basic salary is believed to have been $55,000. The Yankees drew 2,412,201 paid admissions. Under this arrangement, Joe made about $75,000 before taxes.

DiMaggio had a good season in '48, having led the American League in home runs, runs batted in and total bases. He hit .320 and remained in the lineup despite a lame leg and a sprained side when the race was sizzling in the closing weeks.

In view of DiMaggio's fine season, it is not unreasonable to assume that he will receive a boost in pay for next year. It is rumored that Joe will be paid a basic 1949 salary of around $60,000 and play under the same bonus arrangement as last season.

That means DiMaggio probably will earn approximately $80,000 next year before Uncle Sam takes his cut. Of course, all that is based on the premise that the Yankees equal their slightly under 2½-million attendance of last season.

The best known example of the percentage-of-attendance contract is Bob Feller's.

Cleveland's great pitcher is reported to have earned $82,000 last season, more than half of it attendance bonuses. Other known examples were Leo Durocher with Brooklyn, Bill McKechnie with Cincinnati, and Hank Greenberg with the 1947 Pittsburgh Pirates.

Tom Hamilton Leaves Navy

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 31 (AP).—Capt. Tom Hamilton retired today as Navy athletic director after a 21-year naval career.

The 42-year-old veteran of warfare at sea and on the athletic field started a month's terminal leave before taking over February 1 as athletic director at the University of Pittsburgh. He will direct Pitt's new sports reemphasis program.

Capt. Howard Caldwell, 43, Navy Antarctic explorer and combat hero, relieved Hamilton as director of athletics and head of the department of physical training.

"Captain Caldwell has been attached to the Naval Academy for six months with duty as head of the department of mathematics," Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., superintendent, said in a statement. "He also served as officer representative for football during the 1948 season."

Hamilton leaves Sunday on a 10-day trip to the West Coast for a coaches' conference. He will return to Annapolis for two weeks before packing his bags for Pittsburgh.

Caldwell, a classmate of Hamilton's here in 1927, was one of six survivors who were lost for 13 days when their patrol plane crashed near the South Pole on Admiral Byrd's Antarctic expedition in 1947.

Lions in Sunday Debut Here With Hershey Bears

The Washington Lions ring in the new year with American Hockey League games tonight and Sunday afternoon.

Tonight, the Lions invade Cleveland to meet the champion Barons. Tomorrow they and the Hershey Bears are party to Washington's first experiment with Sunday afternoon hockey at Uline Arena.

Initial face-off is at 2:30 p. m., and if a sizable crowd turns out, several more Lions' games will be shifted to Sunday.

The Lions haven't come close to beating Cleveland this year, but have had considerably success against Hershey. Washington and the Bears have each beaten the other twice and tied once.

Georgia Meets Texas Today

Floridians, and this seems to have fired up the Lone Star Staters. They're convinced they're better than the records show and are determined to smear the Bulldogs to prove it.

Their offensive threat is Paul Campbell, a triple threat T-formation quarterback who's rated one of the Southwest's best. Helping him in the running department—he handles the passing by himself—will be Billy Pyle and Randall Clay, 175-pound halfbacks and Ray Borneman, 205-pound bulldozing fullback.

California Confident—Wildcats Favored in Rose Bowl Today

Bowl game, the business-like efficiency of Bob Voigts' Wildcats has impressed even staunch California rooters.

Veteran Lynn Waldorf, the California mentor and former coach at Northwestern when Voigts was a star tackle, has easier-going methods.

Wildcats 7-Point Choice

Ignored, apparently, is California's unbeaten and untied record in 10 games, including wins over a weak Wisconsin eleven of the Big Nine and a 21-7 early season triumph back East over Navy. Forgotten, too, is the Bears' record of only one loss in 20 games the past two regular seasons, and their 277 points scored to opponents' 80 in 10 games, as against Northwestern's 171 points to the enemy 77 in nine contests.

Whatever the reason, whereas the Wildcats have been going along as 6 and 6½-point favorites, today the figure had been boosted to 7, and in some quarters as much as 14 points.

Observers look for a collison on ground forces, featuring rival Fullbacks Jackie Jensen of California and All-America Art Murakowski of Northwestern. Neither team was noted for brilliant passing in the regular season. But spies from both training camps seem to think the outfits have been drilling more on aerial plays than was expected, so a surprise may be in store.

California has a 10-pound weight advantage in the line—213 to 203 for the averages, but the backfields are about on a par.

is nothing they can do to correct the abuses which exist in the industry. However, I feel that their position is open to serious question. I know of no Federal law, regulation, or decision which forces automobile manufacturers to renew the franchise of any dealer whose sales practices injure the reputation and good will of the manufacturer and bring his product into public disrepute."

"I have never been in favor of Government controls. However, I recognize the danger to our national economy and our national safety inherent in all trade practices which add to inflation at the present time. When I make that statement, I am referring not only to trade practices in the field of automobiles but in all other basic industries. We have passed the point where such gouging skims off what merely might be termed wartime savings. It has now reached the point where many must borrow against future pay checks in order to purchase current necessities. This is a most dangerous road to be traveling today, since it leads directly to economic collapse, unemployment, and breadlines, all of which provide a most fertile field in which seeds of communism flourish. I feel that it is high time for American industry to recognize these immediate dangers, and to take all measures consistent with our heritage of free enterprise to correct these abuses.

I feel that a far better and more effective job can be done by industry itself, if it sincerely desires to do the job. I recognize that in a normal competitive market such policing would be unnecessary. However, during this present period of war-created shortages, it behoves us all to conduct our business with that restraint dictated by good business practices founded on sound economic principles."

The Macy report said that the subcommittee survey of operations of 30 Washington area new car dealers for the first seven months of this year produced the following figures:

D. C. Meets 1949 Hopefully

entertainment and dancing but no liquid cheer. Dress was formal at the Wardman Park, but the price of an evening's fun was up $1.30 from last year's $4.55.

Washington society was out in good numbers. The Brazilian, Chilean and Argentine embassies were hosts for 150 guests.

Elsewhere prices tapered down to 35 cents, the standard price of admission in crowded District taverns, where some of the more serious celebration was done. Liquor stores queried reported yesterday that sales were good, maybe a little better than the year before.

The YWCA at 901 Rhode Island ave. nw., and at 17th and K sts., both held formal New Year's Eve dances. The Christ Child Settlement House held its annual dance and entertainment at 608 Massachusetts ave. ne.

For those who faced 1949 with more humility than frivolity, many District churches offered special New Year's Eve programs.

Six Protestant churches in the North Capitol st.-Rhode Island ave. area held their annual joint service at the Bethany Baptist Church, 5009 13th st. nw. Candlelight Communion services were held at the First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw., and the Augustana Lutheran Church, 16th and V sts. nw.

Other churches holding special services included: Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle, nw., Columbia Heights Christian Church, 1435 Park rd. nw., Atonement Lutheran Church, 1433 Webster st. ne., Foundry Methodist Church, 16th and P st. nw., and First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw.

Other churches planned special services for this morning.

In Catholic churches masses were scheduled for the day which is a holy day of obligation.

Washington streets were deserted early in the evening, and police were hoping for a repetition of December 31, 1947, which was characterized as "the quietest ever."

One officer guessed the early quiet could be explained by the comparative scarcity of servicemen, many of whom went home for the holiday, and the comparative youth of those soldiers and sailors in evidence.

The Metropolitan Police were out in sufficient strength to keep the peace, concentrated in the more popular downtown areas: F. st., between 9th and 14th; New York ave., from 9th to 12th sts.; 7th st., north of K st.; and the Taft Bridge end of Connecticut ave.

Policemen who worked from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. yesteray were brought back at 10 last night. They pounded the beats until relieved shortly before two this morning.

Rent Board Plans to Use Single Basis On Increases

Decision Follows Court Criticism Of Methods Used In Previous Cases

A single specific method for computing rent adjustments will henceforth be used in nearly all cases, the District Rent Control office revealed yesterday following criticism by the Municipal Court of Appeals.

In opinions last week which reversed decisions of the Rent Administrator in two apartment house cases, and sent them back to the rent administrator for review, the court said:

"We do not believe that the administrator is entitled to adopt different fundamental bases in passing upon different requests for rent increases in cases where the fundamental facts are approximately the same."

The cases involved the Winthrop House Apartments, 1727 Massachusetts ave. nw., and the Carlyn Apartments, 2500 Q st. nw. In the former case the management had protested as too little an 8 per cent rent increase allowed by the administrator after 10 per cent had been requested; in the latter dispute, 116 tenants had objected to a 7 per cent increase.

Carlyn rentals with the increase range from $58.75 to $155 and the Winthrop range is from $57.50 to $101.50.

A system of computing an average of costs and income over a period of time with adjustment made for discrepancies was used in the Winthrop House case while comparisons over a 12-month period was used as a basis in the Carlyn matter.

This drew the criticism of the court, which also declared the office of the administrator had erred in not explaining just how its decisions were arrived at prior to the filing of its brief in the case.

The criticism was tempered by the court's observation that "we appreciate . . . that the rent administrator has at his disposal a very small staff and at present he is faced with a very large number of applications for rent increases . . ."

Rent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell said yesterday the "averaging" method would be permanently adopted for virtually all cases for the sake of consistency and because it is "most equitable for landlord and tenants alike.

He said one result of the court opinion would be a request by him to the District Commissioners for additional funds to hire more help.

Alexandria Jail Wins Praise in Va. Inspection

Alexandria's old city jail, which has had a hard time passing inspection in recent years, got a good report yesterday from the Virginia State Department of Corrections.

State officials inspected the jail December 14 and called the "continued improvement" in its operation "commendable." They specifically noted that:

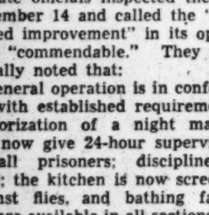

General operation is in conformity with established requirements; authorization of a night matron will now give 24-hour supervision of all prisoners; discipline is good; the kitchen is now screened against flies, and bathing facilities are available in all sections.

$100,000 Given to Aid Greek Refugee Children

American Red Cross national headquarters yesterday announced $100,000 has been allocated for immediate purchase and shipment of clothes and shoes for refugee children in northern Greece.

The supplies will be shipped to the Greek Red Cross at Salonika for distribution. Previous Red Cross aid to displaced children in Greece and other countries includes $300,000 worth of supplies made available through the League of Red Cross Societies.

GHA Dental Care Center Opens Monday

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The Nation's first planned dental program in which subscribers contract for continuing care will begin here Monday under auspices of the Group Health Association.

The pioneering experiment in group practice in dentistry is designed as a "proving ground" for prepay dental programs of the future, said William E. Warne, Assistant Secretary of the Interior and president of GHA.

Initially, however, subscribers will pay minimum annual fees and be billed on a cost-for-service basis, he said. A "tentative rate schedule" has been set up for the services, he said, but "ethics of the dental profession" bar its public disclosure.

Sponsors of the 12-chair dental center ready to begin operations at 1025 Vermont ave. nw., said they expected it would take three full years under the present financing plan to build up an "experience backlog" sufficient to warrant insuring dental care on an annual fee basis similar to present prepay medical plans.

Warne said that about 1500 participants in GHA's medical care program have already applied for dental services, and several hundred more applications are expected in the near future. About 700 of these will be actually enrolled at the program's start, with others absorbed "as the services get rolling," he explained.

The GHA dental staff, headed by Dr. Irving Lichtman, acting director, will consist initially of four practicing dentists, dental hygienists, assistants and office personnel. A full-time director and additional dentists will be added during the coming months.

Subscribers sign up virtually to a "dentist's orders" agreement whereby they accept a complete program of dental care emphasizing prevention.

"Preventive dentistry will be emphasized, particularly the early care and treatment of children's teeth," declared Warne. "All regular treatment services will be provided, including minor oral surgery. Preventive services in addition to full-mouth X-rays, cleaning of teeth, and detailed dental examinations will include instructions on the care of teeth and gums and the application of fluorine to children's teeth."

Minimum fees from which service charges are deducted have been set at $10 a year for an adult and $5 a year for a child. Only subscribers to GHA's medical care plan are eligible to sign up for the dental service.

GHA, organized by Government employes in 1937, is a member-owned, non-profit medical agency, with membership open to anyone living in Greater Washington. It maintains a staff of physicians and specialists and two medical centers in addition to the new dental center. Some 15,500 persons are covered in the organization's medical care program.

Although sponsored by the medical care agency, the new dental program is designed to be a separate, self-sustaining unit, its sponsors emphasized.

Only a few other medical care organizations in the Nation offer dental services, and these only on a treatment basis rather than planned continuing care, it was said.

Legal Battle Highlights Police Trial

Raymond Returned To Duty by Barrett Pending Decision From Board Today

A Police Trial Board hearing over a policeman's recent testimony before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board turned into such a legal battle that Board Chairman Inspector Milton D. Smith at one point called for "the aspirin bottle."

Raymond

Pvt. Edward A. Raymond of the Eighth Precinct, who was charged with conduct prejudicial to the good order of the department, was restored to duty at 4 p. m. yesterday by Supt. Robert J. Barrett, pending a decision by the Trial Board, expected at 10 a. m. today.

In the unusual action of terminating a policeman's suspension before his case before the Trial Board has been disposed of, Barret also transferred Private Raymond to the Third Precinct.

The charge against Private Raymond frequently became lost at the hearing as his defense counsel, Charles E. Ford, clashed with Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert D. Wise, a witness, over the latter's prosecution of the ABC case involved in the charge.

The case arose out of an apparent discrepancy between a report by Raymond to his commanding officer and testimony he gave in the ABC hearing.

Private Raymond had reported to Capt. John E. Fondahl on November 15 that when he and another policeman had responded to a call from the Churchill Grill and Bar, 3709 Macomb st. nw., on November 13 he had arrested Clifford L. Howard of Rockville, Md., whom he found "standing in the aisle in a drunken condition."

Collateral Forfeited

There was a scuffle in getting Howard out of the grill, and he later forfeited $40 on charges lodged by Raymond against him, of drunkenness, disorderly conduct and assault.

As a result, charges against the grill were brought before the ABC Board, where, the transcript showed, Raymond testified, "I would say the man was not drunk, just disorderly."

Ford charged that Wise, who conducted the prosecution in the ABC hearing, "didn't extend to Pvt. Raymond the decency and fairness to let him make full and complete answers," before the ABC Board.

Wise had declared himself "surprised" at Raymond's testimony, set about to "destroy" him as his witness, and finally asked the ABC Board to drop the charges against the Churchill Grill, which was done.

In not "permitting" Raymond to describe Howard's appearance at the ABC hearing, and in "destroying" Raymond as a witness, Wise joined in the "idea that because a man joins the police force, he can become the object of ridicule," the defense attorney asserted.

After he had asked a number of questions of Wise on his conduct of the ABC case prosecution, many of which had been ruled out by the trial board, Wise finally declared:

Objects to Humiliation

"As a member of this bar, I don't intend to sit here and have you humiliate me."

Inspector Smith, who had repeatedly overruled most of Ford's constant objections during the hearing, told defense attorney to keep personal questions and remarks out of it.

In his argument, Ford also attacked Wise for not calling as a witness Pvt. John Andrykovitch, who responded with Private Raymond to the call from the Churchill Grill.

Assistant Corporation Counsel John F. Doyle, who prosecuted yesterday's case, said the statements made by Private Raymond to Captain Fondahl and in the ABC hearing spoke for themselves.

The Trial Board, consisting of Inspector Smith and Capt. Archie F. Winfree and Irvin Umbaugh, are also expected to announce findings today in two other cases they heard yesterday.

In one, Pvt. William B. Piper of the Fourth Precinct, charged with failing to communicate with his station at 7:30 a. m. on December 12 and failing to report off duty at 8 a. m. and declared he had reported in by phone. Six policemen at the precinct testified they had received no such call.

In the other case, Pvt. James A. Stewart of the Fourth Precinct pleaded guilty to leaving his beat and failing to constantly patrol it on the morning of December 18.

Doctors Say Lung Patient In No Danger

Operation Error Brings Criticism From Ruhland on Help Shortage Here

Doctors gave assurances last night that the mistaken operation on the wrong side of a tubercular woman's chest at Glenn Dale Tuesday has not jeopardized her life thus far.

Good reports on the post-operation progress of the woman's case came, however, amid sharp warnings from District Health Officer George C. Ruhland that:

"A similar very tragic error can easily occur again as long as each doctor there is personally responsible for 100 patients—well over the usual load—and the administrator must do clinical work on the wards."

Cites Shortage of Help

Ruhland said he has repeatedly pointed out the "distressing shortage" of nurses and doctors at Glenn Dale. The sanitarium's budget calls for 87 nurses and last month only 43 were on the payroll. At the same time only five doctors were on the staff though the budget has allowances for 13.

Dr. Edgar W. Davis, professor of thoracic surgery at Georgetown University Medical School, who was called in to help save the patient's life and report her condition, said yesterday that she was in no immediate danger.

Dr. Davis said X-rays indicated pulmonary tuberculosis in both lungs, but the disease was centered primarily in the patient's left lung. Through a series of errors two ribs were removed from the right side.

Davis said a seven-rib removal operation on the patient's left side probably can control the tuberculosis in that lung.

Meanwhile a three-way investigation into the broader aspects of the incident, including personnel and operating room conditions at Glenn Dale, were under way.

Representative Arthur L. Miller (R., Nebr.) of the House District Committee said he "had been making careful inquires into the incident, but at the moment it appeared to be something the Commissioners and Dr. Ruhland should handle."

New Report Submitted

Dr. Daniel L. Finucane, superintendent of Glenn Dale Sanatorium has, late yesterday, submitted to Dr. Ruhland another detailed investigation covering the clinical history of the patient. Though Ruhland declined to release this report, it was understood it contained detailed facts on how the erroneously written operative report was made out.

The final Glen Dale study in progress is being conducted by Dr. Davis. It will be a complete study of operating room conditions and procedure at the institution, "covering every possible angle of the situation." This, too, will be submitted to Dr. Ruhland.

"Taking for granted that an error was made in the operation," Dr. Davis said, "those fellows have done a beautiful job n helping the patient to come through."

Patient Evades Nurses, Leaps Two Stories

Fighting his way to a window by brandishing a crutch, a 32-year-old patient at Providence Hospital yesterday leaped from a second-story fire escape to the pavement, breaking his hip and injuring his pelvis.

James Wolf, 3237 Hiatt pl. nw., an engineer for the District Sanitation Department, being treated at the hospital for a knee injury, got up frbm his bed in the St. James ward about 9 a. m. yesterday and ran to the window.

Warding off nurses with his crutch, he tore the screen from the window, climbed out on the fire escape and jumped. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital for treatment and mental observation.

Wolf was admitted to the hospital on December 29 for treatment of an old knee injury sustained while working with the Sanitation Department. Hospital officials at Providence said they had observed nothing unusual in his behavior until his leap yesterday.

Welles Reported Showing Steady Gain in Hospital

Sumner Welles was reported "steadily improving" yesterday at Casualty Hospital where he is fighting effects of hours of exposure in subfreezing weather.

So well has his condition progressed, doctors said, that "barring possible but unexpected complications no major surgery will be necessary."

The former Undersecretary of State was found unconscious in a frozen field near his Oxon Hill, Md., home last Sunday morning. Physicians first feared it might be necessary to amputate his frost-bitten hands and feet.

He had reportedly fallen unconscious during a late night walk before retiring.

25-Year Traffic Safety Record Set in District

Agency Reports

Parking Lot Top Toll Here $2.10 a Day

The District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency yesterday reported some all-day parking lot charges as high as $2.10 here, "numerous" complaints of thefts of cars or contents and unauthorized use of parked cars, and a small amount of "gouging" and "chiseling."

The report, sent yesterday to the Senate District Committee by the District Commissioners, includes five main recommendations on parking regulations, and has been taken under consideration by the Commissioners. It was requested by a joint resolution of Congress passed last June 29.

The survey, which found "a few operators who engage in sharp practices," and grounds to suspect "that some parking attendants engage in petty chiseing practices," recommends:

1. The conspicuous posting of parking rates.
2. The issuance of parking tickets.
3. Gathering of complaints against parking lot operators by the superintendent of licenses, who would send one copy to the operator involved and one to the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency, which would seek corrective action.
4. Reports to police of cars parked continuously more than two days.
5. Licensing of parking lot employes.

Range $2.10 to 25 Cents

The survey, made under the direction of P. Y. K. Howat, chairman of the parking agency, shows that all-day parking prices here range from $2.10 in the heart of the downtown area to 25 cents at the fringe downtown.

These compare with maximum all-day prices in "hot spots"—where parking space is scarce—of $1 in Philadelphia, $1.30 in Baltimore, $1.20 in Pittsburgh, and $1.25 in Cleveland, according to the report.

Complaints of motorists, which were gathered with the aid of the American Automobile Association, Keystone Automobile Club, Police Department, License Bureau, Parking Agency and the newspapers, simmered down to 10 items, the report said.

They included: Theft of contents, theft of cars, unauthorized use of cars, discourtesy, improper handling of cars, poor after-hours handling of keys, lack of claim checks, operator using public space, parking of cars too tightly and refusal to accept cars.

The parking agency believes the licensing of parking lot employes, their fingerprinting and requirement that they wear identifying badges, the recommended handling procedure for complaints, and the reporting of cars parked 48 hours continuously, would help to improve conditions leading to such complaints.

Few Are Far in Lead

The agency says a few operators charge substantially more than regular prices when there is a heavy demand, or even add both daytime and evening prices in the case of cars parked just before the evening rates begin.

To these few are added some attendants who overcharge customers or who fail to report all cars parked during the day, according to the report, which recommends regulations requiring conspicuous posting of rates at parking lot entrances and issuance of parking tickets to eliminate "sharp practices" and "petty chisling."

The parking price situation will be eased, the report indicates, by the agency program to provide more available space, which has increased spaces by 2300 in 2½ years.

The survey of parking in the four other cities, made by C. T. McGavin, indicates that prices for 5 hours or less of parking here average about the same as elsewhere.

Washington set a 25-year traffic safety record during 1948, police officials announced last night.

The year's toll was 67—five fewer than the 72 vehicle deaths marked up here in 1947.

According to Inspector Arthur E. Miller of the Police Traffic Division, it was the safest year since the city started keeping traffic records.

Of the total deaths, 54 or approximately three-fourths were pedestrians.

Of these, 30 were killed by automobiles, 16 by streetcars and eight by buses.

Of the other fatalities, three resulted from falls from vehicles; three from collisions of passenger cars or trucks; two from collisions of automobiles and bicycles; two from collisions of automobiles and streetcars; and one from collision of a motorcycle and an automobile.

Worst month for fatal accidents—ten—was last February.

Miller attributed the year's low record to stricter traffic law enforcement and intensive safety educational campaigns put on by the Citizens' Traffic Advisory Board.

As to enforcement, he said 146,000 traffic arrests were made here during the year, setting another record. In 1947, a total of 143,000 arrests were made, he said, and previously never more than 85,000.

He predicted the city again would take top place among cities of more than half-million population in the National Safety Council's Traffic Safety Contest.

Washington won top place in the contest in 1946, when it had 72 fatalities, but slid to third place in 1947.

He said the city's traffic records go back to 1923.

The past year's record, it was pointed out, contrasts with 123 killed on District streets in 1932, 135 in 1934, 113 in 1935 and 106 in 1937.

The lowest previous death toll in recent years was in 1943 when vehicles crushed out 70 lives. In 1944, the toll was 88 and in 1945, 96.

One serious New Year's Eve accident was reported.

Clemith Turner, 10, of 1136 6th st. nw., was taken to Freedmen's Hospital about 7:30 p. m., suffering head injuries and possible left arm fracture, after he was struck by a car in front of his home.

Police said the boy darted from between parked cars into path of a car driven by Ernest J. Jackson, 31, of No. 23 52d st. se.

'Lookout's' Vision Poor, Raid Shows

A "lookout" with apparently faulty vision obligingly admitted police raiders into a suspected gambling establishment last night, leading to the arrest of 13 men.

Members of the Police Vice Squad, led by Lieut. Roy Blick, dashed into a room on the second floor of 1853 7th st. nw., police said, after James R. Otemes, 54, of 1737 New Jersey ave. nw., sitting on a chair on the second floor landing, operated the buzzer controlling the operation of two first-floor doors.

Melvin Ellsworth Jones, 38, of 2333 C st. sw., who told police he was the owner of the establishment, was charged with setting up a gaming table, operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips.

Otemes was charged with setting up a gaming table and 11 other men found in the place were charged with disorderly conduct. All were booked at the Thirteenth Precinct.

Three adding machines, two radios, two electric clock, a telephone and four boxes of gambling paraphernalia were seized in the raid at 4:45 p. m.

Rector Boy Fails To Improve in Fight for Life

Little Michael Rector continued to hold his own yesterday in his valiant fight for life, but Casualty Hospital physicians said his serious state did not improve.

The 4-year-old, who on November 12 suffered severe burns from his ankles to his armpits, was described as in a "touch and go" status after an almost fatal relapse on Wednesday night.

Area News in Brief

'Tour' of City Costs Student Watch, Car

A Philadelphia art student yesterday told police of an expensive "tour of Washington" that cost him not only his personal effects, but also an automobile he borrowed from a friend for the tour.

Robert M. Pratt, 28, a student at the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts, reported he was abducted at gunpoint at about 1:45 a. m. by two men who forced him into a waiting automobile and robbed him of his watch and a ring. Then, after finding a set of car keys in his pocket, they forced him to divulge the location of his friend's car, he said. To add to his woes, he said he had left his wallet containing $20 and personal papers in the glove compartment of his friend's car.

Pratt said he was forced into the car as he left a restaurant in the 1100 block of 17th st., nw. He said he escaped later by jumping from the gunmen's moving car after the pair separated to permit one of them to drive the stolen automobile. Owner of the missing car, he said, is Robert S. Whitely, 2650 28th st., nw., with whom he had been staying since Monday.

Screams Foil Holdup

An employe's screams into a telephone yesterday routed a would-be holdup man from the Phillip-Louise Dress Shop, 1727 L st. nw.

According to police, a tall man about 45 years old, with his hand in his right-hand pocket, walked into the shop about 5:30 p. m. and admonished the manager, Mrs. Louise Pierce, to "hand over your money or I'll shoot to kill."

While she nervously stalled for time, an employe, Mrs. Dorothy Porter, was talking to a friend on the phone in the rear of the store. Seeing what was happening, she screamed into the phone, "Call the police quick, there's a holdup going on here." The man became panicky and fled. Mrs. Pierce told police.

Bus Driver Fined $50

A bus driver for the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. was fined $50 in Alexandria Police Court yesterday for failing to give a pedestrian the right of way when his bus struck a woman November 20. The driver was Joseph C. Hill, 27, of 827 Wolfe st., Alexandria; the pedestrian, Mrs. Elsie Yowell, Route 1, Alexandria. A charge of reckless driving was dismissed. The accident occurred at King and Pitt sts.

Found With Legs Frozen

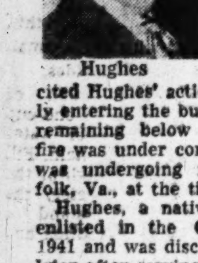

A 70-year-old woman, found alone in her home Thursday night with both legs frozen, was reported in fair condition yesterday at Alexandria Hospital.

Police found Mrs. Emma Watson sitting in a semiconscious condition on the floor of her home at 507 W. Glebe rd., Alexandria. They had forced their way into the locked house after she had been reported missing for several days.

The hospital said she was suffering from malnutrition and exposure, adding that the seriousness of her condition would not be known for several days. Police said there was almost no food in the house, where Mrs. Watson lived alone, although it is believed she is well off.

Hyattsville Man Gets Coast Guard Honor Ribbon

John K. Hughes, 28, of 3900 Hamilton st., Hyattsville, Md., yesterday received the Coast Guard Commendation Ribbon for single-handedly putting out a fire in the galley of the cutter Dione on December 7, 1946.

Hughes

The award was presented by Rear Admiral R. T. McElligott, Chief of Coast Guard Personnel, who cited Hughes' actions in voluntarily entering the burning galley and remaining below deck until the fire was under control. The vessel was undergoing repairs in Norfolk, Va., at the time.

Hughes, a native of Maryland, enlisted in the Coast Guard in 1941 and was discharged six years later after serving on five lifeboat stations on the Maryland coast. He is now a student tilesetter at the New York Technical School, 15th and H sts. nw.

Md. Infant Dies, Barred By Hospital

Baltimore, Dec. 31 (AP).—Parker McMillan, superintendent at City Hospital, said today he would investigate why a 5-month-old girl who died of bronchial pneumonia and malnutrition was twice denied admittance to the hospital.

The child's mother, Mrs. Martha Lee Funderburk, told Baltimore County police the baby was first taken to City Hospital Wednesday on a doctor's orders.

She said City then sent her and the child to Sydenham Hospital. There, she was told to take the baby back to City in the morning.

At city hospitals, Dr. William Keene sid that "the death of the baby is very unfortunate" but added that the hospital does not admit everyone who has pneumonia." He said "they can be treated on the outside."

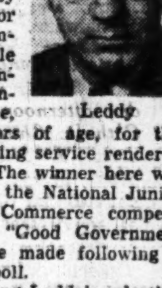

Dr. Arthur L. Johnson, who sent the baby to the hospital, said "it should have been kept in the hospital."

Dr. Keene said he sent the mother and baby to Sydenham after an X-ray indicated the child did not have pneumonia. Sydenham handles contagious diseases and Dr. Keene said he believed the child had whooping cough. Sydenham officials decided it wasn't whooping cough.

The woman and her husband, Hasin, are tenant farmers in nearby Dundalk.

In announcing Leddy's selection yesterday, the State Department said it was based generally on the consistent high standards of his work, and, specifically, on his "distinguished services to the United States Government in furtherance of the aims of its foreign policy with respect to the United Nations Conference on Trade and Employment at Havana, Cuba." Book on Theology Of St. Anthony Is Published

Publication of the "first book ever to cover the theology of St. Anthony of Padua," by the Very Rev. Raphael M. Huber, OFM, of Catholic University, was announced yesterday by the Bruce Publishing Co. of Milwaukee, Wis.

Father Huber, associate professor of church history at the university, is an authority on Franciscan literature, and the book is an expanded version of his lectures on St. Anthony's sanctity and learning at St. Bonaventure College, Alleghany, N. Y., during the summer of 1946.

St. Anthony, a "saint of the people," was declared "a doctor of the church" in January, 1946, by Pope Pius.

Stocks Coast Downgrade Out of 1948

New York, Dec. 31. (AP).—The stock market coasted out of 1948 on the downgrade. Closing prices today showed losses of fractions to more than a point and were at or near the bottom levels of the session.

The market started off on a fairly stable footing, mainly because of buying interest in railroad issues which was touched off by authorization for temporary freight rate increase.

From then on quotations were slowly but persistently marked down. In the final hour selling pressure became a little more acute.

Wall Street's year-end rally blew up before it ever got under way.

Two issues took off on a tack of their own. Gaylord Container jumped more than 5 points at one time and closed 4¾ higher at 21⅛.

The swift advance coincided with disclosure by a director of an oil find on some of the company's property in Louisiana.

American Broadcasting reached a new top for the year during the day and ended ⅝ up at 10⅛. This stock has been in the market spotlight off and on during the month but brokers were a bit puzzled to put their finger on the reason for today's demand.

Superior Oil of California dropped 3 to 167 and Skelly Oil at 125 was off 1½. In the lower price bracket, Montgomery Ward lost 1⅝ at 52½.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined .2 of one point to 64.5, which compared with 64.8 a week ago. At the end of 1947 the average stook at 65.7, a loss for the year of just 1.2 points.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Dec. 31 (AP).—Grains said farewell to 1948 today in a market which was quite typical of the entire year—prices slid lower with dealings more active in declining periods than in advancing ones.

Wheat lost as much as 2 cents. A good part of the selling came from commission houses with Southwestern connections. It was regarded as hedging as it was said that farmer-owned cash wheat held in store at Kansas City had been offered in fairly large quantities overnight.

Grains lacked support from local traders, many of whom preferred to remain out of the market over the long weekend. The Board of Trade will be closed all day tomorrow. Cash houses also were not buying as much corn as in the past three days.

Wheat closed 1⅞ to 2 cents lower, corn was ¾-1¼ lower, oats were ⅜ lower to ⅛ higher, rye was 1½ lower, soybeans were ¼-1½ lower, and lard was 6 to 30 cents a hundred pounds lower.

Final prices for the year, compared with those prevailing at the end of 1947, told the story of a year of generally declining markets. May wheat sold today at $2.26¼ to $2.28¼ against $2.95¼ to $2.97 a year ago and May corn at $1.48¼ to $1.49¼, against $2.51⅞ to $2.53.

New York Cotton

New York, Dec. 31 (AP).—Cotton futures closed steady with gains of 5 to 35 cents a bale in quiet preholiday trading today. Short covering and mill buying accounted for a late rally. The market had dipped temporarily to small losses on New Orleans and local selling.

Some replacement demand was encouraged by the continued heavy loan movement as the latest CCC figures showed an additional 201,976 bales were placed in the loan for the week ended December 23. This brought cumulative entries to 3,789,296 bales. In view of the time lag in the Government figures, traders estimated actual entries to date are better than four million bales. Producers repossessed 2197 bales from the loan in the latest reported period, reflecting development of some business in loan equities.

Sales Records Set for Week, Month, Year

New retail sales records were set here for the week before Christmas, December and for the year, according to figures reported last night by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

For the week ended December 25, dollar volume here "skyrocketed" 41 per cent above the corresponding 1947 period. But don't be too enthused; that was due to a calendar quirk. Because December 25 fell on a Saturday this year, there were five shopping days for the week ended that date. Last year, December 25 came on a Thursday, leaving only three shopping days before Yuletide. But nevertheless, it was a new sales record for the week before Christmas.

Another peak was set for December sales here, with an indicated advance of 8 per cent over the same month of 1947.

For 1948, it was indicated that retail volume here was about 6 or 7 per cent more than in 1947 which was the previous record year.

Nationally and for the Fifth Reserve District, similar sharp gains in sales were shown for the week before Christmas. In the various Reserve districts gains ranged from 11 per cent in Kansas City to 48 per cent in New York.

Many postholiday clearances gave retail sales a strong boost this week. Markdowns were large compared with those of a year ago and consumer response was reported very favorable.

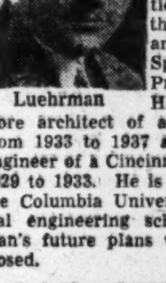

One large Washington department store frankly admitted that price cuts on its present inventory are calculated to spur business during a normally off-season period and to clear stocks before its fiscal year closes on January 31.

RECORD CLEARINGS: Washington bank clearings set another record of $3,661,078,549 in 1948, a gain of 6.8 per cent over the $3,426,622,059 in the previous year. December clearings totaled $341,864,958, a gain of about 3.2 per cent over the same 1947 month. As reported by George H. Bright, manager of the Washington Clearing House Association, check turnover compared as follows for the past two years:

January	$300,050,558	$282,970,821

With The State Societies

No One Need Miss the Fun of Inauguration

By Nicha Soure

FOLKS FROM BACK home won't feel a bit strange in Washington during inauguration weekend. If they can't find a familiar face during the inaugural parade and ceremonies, they can hie themselves over to their own State society headquarters or dances where 10 to 1 they will. And the State societies have been working overtime making gala plans for the quadrennial celebration.

West Virginia has set the Congressional Ball date for Saturday, January 22, in the Shoreham Hotel. During the dance intermission, a reception for the Governor of West Virginia, Okey Patteson, will be held. Preceding the dance, the West Virginia State Society board of governors will be hosts at a dinner for Governor Patteson who is expected to arrive after his own inauguration on January 17.

President Truman's home State, having made arrangements for the Town Room in the Statler Hotel as its inaugural weekend headquarters, is also planning to have Missourians sit together during the parade.

The north side of the Treasury Building has been reserved by the society, and, although there are many seats still available, all members are urged to make their application before January 7 when the unused seats of that section will be released for sale to the inaugural committee. Requests for tickets should be sent to Eric Janssen at 815 15th st. with $6.21, the price of the ticket and its registered return.

All Missourians eligible for membership are urged to make their application now in order to participate in the forthcoming activities. For further information call Ralph Fuhrman, at Franklin 3250.

THAT long-awaited Paul Bunyan Festival of the Minnesota State Society will be held on Friday in the Shoreham Hotel.

Minnesota folk will venture forth in whatever dress suits their fancy, whether it be overalls or tux, with beards, eyebrows and mustaches being furnished at the dance.

Paul Bunyan, coming right from the northern woods of Minnesota in the person of Lem Costley, will be at the party which begins at 9:30 p. m. Mr. Costley, who is well known in Minnesota and neighboring Canada for his Paul Bunyan act, is 6 feet 6 inches tall and has been a lumberjack himself for most of his 40 years. He will have wear the usual costume and whiskers, as well as 4-inch spikes on his logging boots, increasing his height to nearly 7 feet.

Highlighting the affair will be the announcement of the winners of the International Tall Tales Contest which ended December 20. And topping this memorable and colorful evening there will be a special Paul Bunyan breakfast to be served at the close of the festivities, the menu including flapjacks made famous by The Woodsman himself, sausages and coffee.

IT WILL be the first party of the new year when the Georgians gather together on January 8 in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

Preceding the dancing, which will begin at 10 p. m., Representative Sidney Camp will address the society at 9 p. m. on the life and works of Joel Chandler Harris, author of the "Uncle Remus" stories. A musical program will follow under the direction of Mrs. Clark Tate.

The newly elected officers of the society are Mrs. Robert Ramspeck, president; Lucy W. Hinely, Miss Julia Reynolds, Ernest Geeslin and Ben Stembridge, vice presidents; Mrs. Betty Power [illegible], secretary; Mrs. J. W. Thurston, financial secretary, and Mrs. Leone Buchholz treasurer. Official hosts and hostesses are Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. Clark Tate.

Mrs. Ramspeck will be assisted in the receiving line by the new slate of officers. Serving on the young people's reception committee will be Miss Martha Brown, Miss Kay Gassett, Miss Lillian Goggle, Miss Ruby Pike, Miss [illegible], Miss Ruby Holaway, Jack Burke, Wisner Ray, Jack Butler, Emmet Cook, Rollin Trausue and Joe Griffin.

For further information call Mrs. J. W. Thurston at RAndolph 6833.

THE OKLAHOMA State Society will hold open house on Sunday, January 9, in the Women's City Club, 1733 I st. nw., between 4 p. m. and 7 p. m.

The guests of honor at the reception will be the Oklahoma delegation. They include Senator Elmer Thomas, Senator Robert Kerr, Representative A. S. Monroney, Representative Victor Wickersham, Representative Toby Morris, Representative Tom Stied, Representative Dixie Gilmore, Representative Carl Albert and Representative William Howard Wilson.

Mrs. Hurshel E. Underhill, chairman of the open house, will be assisted by Mrs. Walter Emery and Mrs. Elizabeth Bassom.

Among those presiding at the tea table will be Mrs. Harrington Wimberly, Mrs. Paul Walker, Mrs. Gladys Watkins, Mrs. John Moore, Mrs. W. T. Crozier, Mrs. Lucy Walters, Miss M. E. Pool, Miss Malvina Stephenson, Miss Julie Underhill, Miss Helen Emery, Miss Mary Louise Lee and Miss Nelda Wickersham.

THE Society of Virginia is making a strong bid to raise $1000 among its members in order to qualify as one of the Founders of the Woodlawn Public Foundation.

At a special meeting of the executive council, it was determined to throw the full weight of the society behind the movement to preserve the home of Nellie Custis for the American people. A contribution will be made from the treasury of the society and every member of the society will be urged to contribute. So far the society has raised $300 in cash and has pledged $400 more. The society is now undertaking a member to member canvas to raise the amount.

Gen. Robert E. Lee will not be forgotten on his birthday, January 19. The Society of Virginia will lay a large wreath of native Virginia yew and boxwood, with white flowers and the colors of Lee's native State at the base of the Lee statue in Statuary Hall at the Capitol. Rixey Smith, president of the society, will lay the wreath with members of the society's executive council and memorial committee present.

Local Data to Aid Even Use of Fuel

I have read at times in the papers announcements of the percentage of annual fuel needs for home heating which should normally be consumed by certain dates—say, perhaps, 50 per cent by January 15. Can you state this percentage for some four dates during the winter?

J. B. R.

These following percentages were compiled by a large fuel-oil firm and are based on Washington temperatures last winter. Their percentages are: 25 per cent of the yearly fuel should have been consumed by December 11; 50 per cent by January 17; 75 per cent by February 22, and 100 per cent by the end of May.

Please give me the proper method of caring for diapers from the soaking solution in the diaper pail through the rinsing and drying. Also, is it harmful to white cottons and linens to use a chlorine bleach on them as often as once a week? I use a cupful of bleach to a machine full of water and wonder if using it so often will harm fibers.

E. B. H.

Place the diapers in the pail which is filled with clear, cold water to which a handful of borax has been added. When you are ready to wash them, wring the diapers out of the rinse and place in hot suds made by using a mild soap flakes. To the washer full of suds add a cup of household bleach to whiten and remove stains. Rinse three times to remove every trace of bleach. Shake briskly before hanging to fluff them. Dry thoroughly and straighten them as they are folded. Never iron diapers, for that reduces their absorbency.

If the white fabrics are rinsed three times to be sure every trace of bleach is removed, the concentration you suggest, used once a week, will not harm them. However, after the fabrics become absolutely white, using the bleach every other week or every third week is usually all that is necessary to keep them white, if good laundry methods are used.

If you can get your hand into the coffee maker, rub the stained surfaces with steel wool and scratchless cleansing powder. If the opening is too small for this, use cleansing powder on a small brush bent to reach the sides.

A concentrated solution of household bleach such as one cup of bleach to one cup of water also should remove the stain. Fill the glass bowl with enough of the solution to cover completely the stained portions and let stand for 15 minutes. Remove solution and rinse thoroughly.

I wish to use the finger paint recipe printed in your column a few days ago. I think ordinary shelf paper is good for it, but don't remember whether the paper should be used dry or wet. Please let me know. E. G.

Any paper which has a shiny, smooth surface is good for finger painting. In order that the paint can be applied evenly, the paper is dampened before applying it.

Democrats Rename Senate Chaplain

Dr. Marshall

In announcing Dr. Marshall's selection, Senator Scott Lucas (D., Ill.), who will become Senate majority leader when the Congress convenes Monday, said:

"We were not going to set any precedent by mixing politics with the high office of chaplain."

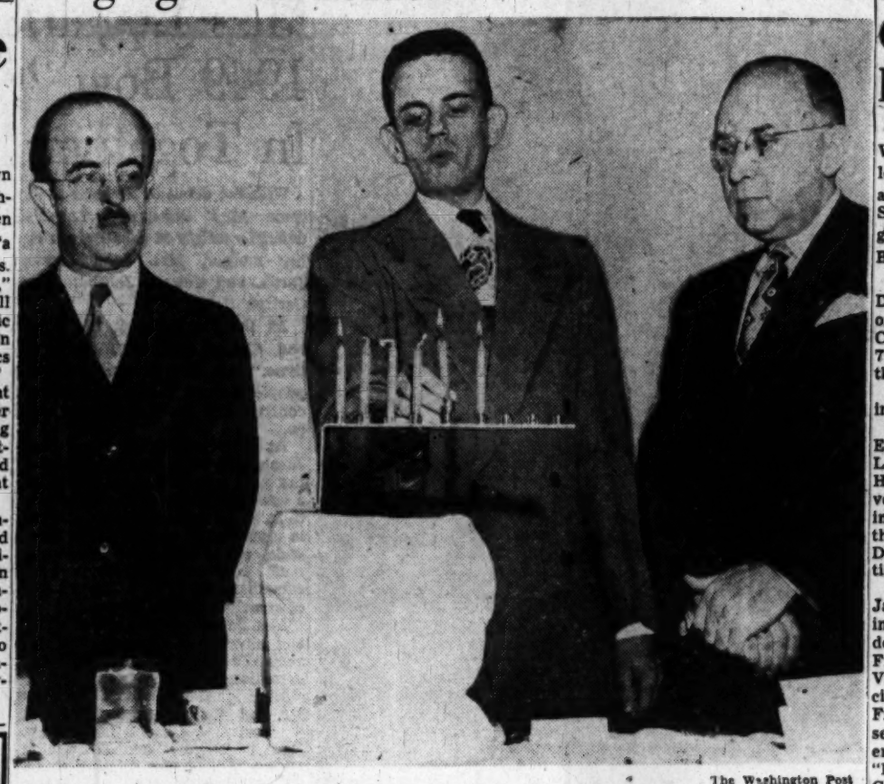

Lucas made reference to the action of the Republicans, who, in appointing Dr. Marshall as chaplain, let out Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry Methodist Church. Dr. Harris had been named by a Democratic Congress.

Lucas described Dr. Harris as "a great man and a great chaplain," but said selection of Dr. Marshall "demonstrates that the Democratic Party believes in the Constitution of the United States, that politics and religion should be separate."

At the time the announcement was made, Dr. Marshall was over in the Senate chamber delivering a prayer, opening a one-day meeting of the old Senate. He declared he had no advance knowledge that he would be reappointed.

The 46-year-old minister, a native of Scotland, is a naturalized American citizen. A graduate engineer, he came to this country when 25 years old to study for the ministry. After graduating from Columbia Theological Seminary in Atlanta, Ga., in 1931, he served in two pastorates in Georgia before coming to New York Avenue Presbyterian Church in 1937.

Schools May Ignore Protest About Class

The Henrico County, Va., school board probably will ignore a petition protesting released-time religious instruction in county schools.

"I'm not going to put it on the agenda of our January 20 meeting," School Superintendent C. K. Holsinger told The Washington Post by telephone from Richmond yesterday.

He added that discussion of the petition, filed by 14 women of Jewish faith, may, however, be brought up by an individual board member.

Dr. Holsinger also said the board planned no formal reply to the petition, filed early in December, because "there's not enough agitation on the matter."

He said the religious education program "is a popular thing in the county," and that no other formal complaints had been received by the school board.

About 44 of Virginia's 100 counties have the released-time program, which permits students to attend classes, sponsored by the Virginia Council of Churches, for an hour a week, with their parents' written consent. Those who do not attend have a study period.

State Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond said earlier in December that he had studied the Supreme Court ruling in the McCollum case and did not believe Virginia schools were violating the ruling by providing schoolrooms for religious instruction.

He advised the counties, however, that classes must be nonsectarian, noncompulsory, nonsupervised by the school and not supported by public funds. Moreover, teachers should take no part in asking parents if they wish their children to attend, he said.

Virginia's attorney general said at that time that "I suspect that in some counties they have gone beyond that line and may be in conflict with the Supreme Court ruling."

The Supreme Court voted, 8 to 1, last March that released-time religious education classes in Champaign, Ill., public schools were unconstitutional.

Services Set To Mark 25th Anniversary

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the ministry of Dr. Robert W. Brooks will be celebrated Sunday at the 11 a. m. service at the Lincoln Congregational Temple, 11th and R sts. nw. Dr. Brooks will speak on "The Command is Forward."

Brooks

Dr. Brooke is a member of the board of directors of the federation and a member of its social welfare department and hospital committee. The Lincoln Temple was the first Negro church to affiliate with the federation, joining in 1935.

Dr. Brooks is the seventh minister to serve the church since its organization in 1881 by 10 members who withdrew from the First Congregational Church.

A native of Memphis, Tenn., Dr. Brooks studied at LeMoyne Normal Institute in Memphis, Fisk University, the University of Chicago, the University of Chicago Divinity School, the University of Michigan and Union Theological Seminary.

Active in civic affairs since coming to Washington, Dr. Brooks has been a member of the Board of Public Welfare for two years. He also has served on the executive committee of the National Council for the Prevention of War, on the board of directors of the Community Chest Federation, on the Washington Housing Committee, and the Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital. He was chairman of the social action committee of the Interdenominational Minister's Alliance of Washington and vicinity and vice president of the Washington Ministerial Union for two years.

Dr. Brooks also has been on the faculty of Howard University for 17 years.

Technic Study Urged for Preachers

"The popular effectiveness of a sermon depends more on its delivery than anything else," Prof. Andrew W. Blackwood of Princeton Theological Seminary, declared in an address before the Speech Association of America.

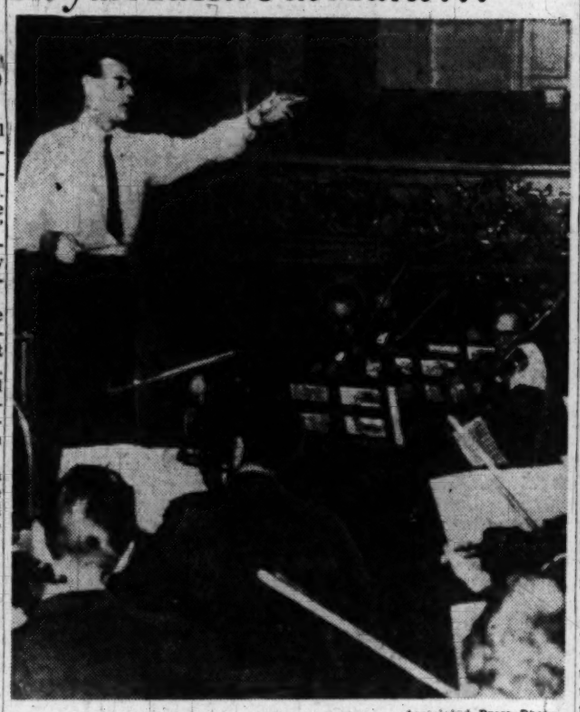

Radio and the broadcast Sunday sermon have made people especially conscious of the minister's voice, he told the SAA section meeting during the group's three-day convention here.

William N. Brigance, Wabash College speech teacher and past president of the speech association, warned that theological schools have been too slow in recognizing the importance of public speaking as a technic.

He called this technic the "bottleneck" through which a minister's ideas must pass, and criticized ministerial acceptance of the maxim that "anybody can talk."

Dr. Blackwood cited as encouraging the return of the "teaching ministry" which devotes its pulpit time to ethics and prayer.

Army Families Ordered to Stop Free Abuse of Medical Aid

The Army and Air Force have ordered families of their personnel to stop calling in military doctors every time junior sneezes.

In a circular made public yesterday all commanders in the United States were instructed to take appropriate action to eliminate abuse of the free medical service available to dependents of service personnel.

The services said the new instructions were made necessary by the increasing shortage of medical department personnel soon to become critical."

"The convenience of medical facilities in certain areas and the fact that there is no direct cost involved," the circular said, "prompts dependents to take advantage of these facilities by requesting treatment for many conditions, often minor in nature, for which they would not consult a civilian physician were they members of a civilian community."

"Military personnel individually will caution persons dependent upon them not to request this type. It must cease so that doctor hours will be available for authorized dependents definitely requiring medical attention."

The circular followed by about two weeks the appointment by Defense Secretary Forrestal of an advisory board of civilian doctors to study medical services of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Among other points, the board is expected to inquire into the possibility of restricting the expensive medical facilities now available to the members of service personnel in the United States. There has been criticism that military doctors and dentists often are called upon to treat cases which could be cared for by the civilian practioners.

Seven Washington area men are among 200 medical school graduates who will be appointed lieutenants (j. g.) in the Navy Medical Corps, to receive a year of interne training at naval hospitals.

Local appointees, who will be commissioned when they graduate from medical school, are: Joseph L. Atchison, 4020 N. Randolph st., Arlington, to Bethesda Naval Medical Center; William E. Crisp, jr., 2311 N. 9th st. Arlington, to Philadelphia; James T. Fahey, 4203 37th st. nw., to San Diego, Calif.; Allan I. Lurie, 1353 Newton st. nw., to Chelsea, Mass.; James J. Lawson, jr., 2134 N. Upton st., Arlington, to Bethesda Naval Medical Center; Joseph E. Norris, 2204 R st. nw., to Long Beach, Calif.; Benjamin F. Perry, jr., 3753 Kanawha st. nw., to Bethesda Naval Medical Center.

VA Cuts GI Insurance Delay, But Beneficiaries Cause Most

By Marshall Andrews

Fifth of a Series

The ultimate, and most important, function of National Service Life Insurance is payment to a veteran's beneficiary upon his death.

So important is this job that in every branch office every death claim is given priority over every other operation. The result is that claims now are being settled 30 to 45 days after the VA receives notice of death. A recent survey by the Richmond branch office revealed that commercial insurance companies in that area averaged 22.8 days in adjudicating a claim and paid within 48 hours after adjudication.

Last November, the Richmond office had 28 claims pending for settlement, but in July, 1947, it had 214 such claims. By September, 1947, it had reduced its time for handling claims so that only 132 were pending, but 31 of these were more than 180 days old.

Last December 1, the Richmond office had only five cases more than 60 days old, of which three were being held up by administrative difficulties within the VA and two by failure of the beneficiary to decide which of four optional forms of settlement to accept. The oldest case on hand at that time, pending since August 30, 1948, was one of the latter two.

It is a fact peculiar to Government insurance business that 75 per cent of all claims are initiated not by the beneficiary but by the VA itself. The VA learns of a veteran's death through a request for a flag to be used at his funeral, from VA hospital records, from newspaper reports, and other outside sources. Work to adjudicate and process the claim is begun immediately without waiting for the beneficiary to take action.

A case in point is that of a veteran who died in Baltimore last November 14, whose family requested a flag November 19. The VA got its claim procedure moving the same day, and on December 6 wrote the beneficiary asking her to choose a form of settlement, upon receipt of which payments would begin at once.

Meanwhile, the beneficiary had filed a claim with a VA contact man on November 30 and found the VA ready to do business six days later. Late in December the claim had not been settled because she hadn't decided which form of settlement she wanted.

No matter what the VA does, however, it still labors under the reputation for delay it acquired during the long period of decentralization, training and confusion. Last November 13 the Richmond office received a letter from a Washington lawyer dated November 9 placing a claim and demanding prompt attention. On November 18, just five days later, the claim was adjudicated, settlement forms were sent to the beneficiary, and the lawyer was notified the same day.

After these forms had been in the mail 24 hours, a letter came from a lawyer dated November 18, charging unreasonable delay and threatening to take up the matter with the Veterans' administrator. Late in December the case had not been settled because the beneficiary hadn't made up her mind about which type of settlement she wanted.

Once a claim reaches the VA, whether it comes from the beneficiary or is initiated within the VA itself, it must be studied carefully against all the records in the case to obviate the possibility of error or fraud. There have been many cases, under the easy reinstatement system, in which a veteran's physical condition was obviously not what it was when he was first insured; in one such case, a man reinstated his insurance while he was on his deathbed.

All homicides (and these are surprisingly numerous) must be investigated to make sure the beneficiary had nothing to do with the insured's sudden departure. In many cases there are several beneficiaries, and all must be located and their right to insurance proceeds under the law established. Occasionally, a beneficiary is a woman other than the veteran's wife, and that usually makes trouble.

Once the claim is adjudicated, the beneficiary is notified and is asked to choose one of four legal methods of payment. This, as has been noted, is a common form of delay, particularly since some forms of settlement require that the beneficiary give her age.

Once the beneficiary has made her choice, an award card is sent to the finance office, which sends a voucher the next day to a Treasury office in the same building. There a check is executed and mailed to the beneficiary on the third day after the claim is settled. In cases of hardship, checks can be mailed the day the claim is settled.

Failure of the beneficiary to select an optional method of payment produces by far the greatest number of delays. In August 1948, there were 10 such delays; in September, 8 were delayed for that reason, 2 for proof of age, and 1 for proof of relationship; in November, 6 cases were delayed for selection of option, 1 because the beneficiary would not give her age; in December, 2 were delayed for selection of option.

The Richmond office now has on hand one delayed case in which the claimant is the third preferred beneficiary. It has been impossible so far to get any response from the first and second preferred beneficiaries, with the result that nothing can be done.

In any event, records in the Richmond office show that claimants are responsible for 80 per cent of delays in making payment. For the other 20 per cent the VA accepts responsibility, but points out that it has steadily cut down these cases.

To what extent VA letters and forms are responsible for delays by the claimant is a matter that often has been brought into question. The VA also has been accused of failure to take advantage of modern machine accounting methods to speed up its processes.

Marines Retire Colonel Miller, District Boxing Chairman

Miller

Miller, who is 60 years old, is also professor of journalism and head boxing coach at the University of Maryland and executive secretary of the National Boxing Association. He has headed the local boxing commission since January, 1946.

He has had 39½ years' service as a regular in the reserve of the Navy and Marine Corps and said last night he had been privately notified of his retirement but had not received official notice.

He began his more than 19 years of active duty in 1906 aboard the USS Constellation, a sailing ship and sister of the USS Constitution. From that date until he was commissioned in 1917 he served in China, Cuba, Mexico, Nicaragua and the Philippines.

Following World War I he organized the first reserve unit of the Fifth Marine Battalion here, which he commanded for 13 years. The unit was mobilized for 13 months before Pearl Harbor. He was again released from active duty in January, 1946, on his return from duty in the Pacific.

Asked about his retirement from the Marine Corps, Miller said, "There's no such thing as a former Marine. No one leaves the Corps. I've been with the outfit for nearly 40 years and I don't feel that I'm giving it up."

A native of Milwaukee, Wis., Miller lives at 4417 Brandywine st. nw. He is a member of the board of governors of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club and national vice president of the Marine Corps Reserve Officers Association.

N. C. Bank Bandits Believed in D. C.

The search for two men sought in a $30,000 North Carolina bank burglary centered in Washington last night, after an automobile believed to be occupied by the pair was spotted by a District policeman.

A description of the car and its license number was obtained by Pvt. M. J. Bridges, when he saw two "suspicious looking" men drive away leaving a valet shop on the 800 block of K st. nw. Later, on checking with the proprietor of the shop, he learned both men had "flashed" large rolls of $20 bills.

FBI Agent J. C. Neely asked police here to broadcast a lookout for the car in the belief that its occupants may be involved in theft of a safe containing about $30,000 from a bank at Aulander, N. C.

The car, according to the description, is a blue Buick sedan, either 1946 or 1947 model, bearing South Carolina license F-2421. The occupants were described only as "large Negroes."

2 Years' Pay

Policeman Shot on Duty Gets $7000

FRED CRENSHAW
Compensated

A New Year's gift of about $7000 yesterday dropped into the lap of Fred J. Crenshaw, 66, former Capitol policeman who was seriously wounded by a prisoner last June 27.

The Senate unanimously passed a resolution introduced by Senator Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.), to give Crenshaw two years' salary. Crenshaw is a native of Walhalla, S. C.

Crenshaw lives with his wife and son, Albert, at 1429 B st. ne. He is able to get about, but not strong enough to work. His only income is $40 a month retirement pension from the Capital Transit Co. (he retired as a streetcar operator in 1945) and $29 a month in Social Security payments.

His assailant, Cleveland Sheard, 22, was convicted of assault with intent to kill and is serving a 5 to 15-year sentence.

Freer Quits FTC Because Of Low Salary

Another resignation because of the inadequacy of Federal Government salaries occurred yesterday when Robert E. Freer resigned as a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

Freer, who had announced previously that he intended to leave Government service, yesterday sent President Truman a letter of resignation saying he had concluded that "my duty to create financial security for my family" required that he end more than 20 years of Government work. The resignation was effective at the close of business yesterday.

Mr. Truman wrote Freer: "You have rendered valuable and unselfish service to the Government over a long period, and I am sincerely sorry that you now feel the necessity of leaving the commission."

Federal Trade Commissioners now receive $10,000 a year. Under the pay increase bill recently drafted by the Flanders subcommittee they would receive $17,500 each.

GI Fiancees Given 8-Day Grace on Entry

Attorney General Clark last night announced an eight-day grace period for the entry of GI fiances and fiancees into this country under special privileges.

The special act of Congress permitting simplified entry of such foreign persons for the purpose of marrying a member or former member of the United States Armed Forces expired last midnight.

Under a strict interpretation, that law required the alien fiance or fiancee to appear in person at a United States port of entry before the midnight expiration. However, Clark said the Immigration Service will admit any such alien up to midnight of January 8, provided he or she obtained a visa abroad for such entry prior to last midnight.

Greek Army Reports Gains On Guerillas

Athens, Dec. 31 (AP).—Military and press reports said today the Greek army is making progress against Communist guerillas in the Peloponnesus region of southern Greece.

Reliable informants said the whole of the northern Peloponnesus, comprising four provinces, has been freed of the rebels' grip.

N. Y. Tugboat Men Refuse 10% Pay Rise

New York, Dec. 31 (AP).—Mayor William O'Dwyer announced tonight that harbor tugboat workers had rejected a 10-per-cent wage boost offer but held any strike action in abeyance until January 12. The workers' contract expires at midnight tonight and a strike had been expected then.

Employer and union representatives had been in session all day, along with city and Federal negotiators.

There are 3500 tug workers, members of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association. Earlier they had turned down a 6-percent pay hike. They want a 35-percent boost. Their pay now ranges from 96 cents to $1.49 hourly.

Citizens' Unit Meets Monday

O'Dwyer said further talks had not been scheduled immediately, but that a citizens' committee, under whose sponsorship the discussions had been proceeding, would meet Monday to decide on further steps.

A 12-day tugboat strike in 1946 left the sprawling metropolitan area paralyzed for days.

The gloomy tugboat picture was partly tempered, however, by the temporary easing of another related labor dispute. The threat of a strike tomorrow by truck drivers who deliver coal and fuel oil throughout the city was removed when the drivers voted to extend their negotiating period for another 12 days.

Commuter Line Halted

The Hudson and Manhattan Railroad, a vital commuter link between New York City and northern New Jersey, was shut down nearly four hours today by a sudden strike of trainmen.

The trainmen, angry over dismissal of a number of employes as a company economy measure, quit work at 3 p. m. (EST).

They resumed train operation at 6:40 p. m. after the company and union agreed to keep things as they were before the strike until a United States mediator could enter the picture. This is expected to be Monday.

The railroad serves 200,000 passengers daily.

The company-union agreement was announced at 5:30 p. m. following a request for such a step from the National Mediation Board.

San Francisco Sailors Accept Pay Raises

San Francisco, Dec. 31 (AP).—AFL sailors today accepted a new wage agreement increasing the seamen's pay by from $23.50 to $42.50 a month.

The San Francisco vote was seen as the forerunner of general acceptance at meetings up and down the coast.

The shipowner terms gave the men straight wage increases of $16 to $35 a month, and an unprecedented "clothing allowance" of $7.50 a month, payable in cash.

It set pay scales for the 10,000 sailors at $193.50 for ordinary seamen and up to $327.50 for top boatswains. Ordinary seamen have been receiving $170 a month and boatswains $285.

ONE'S JUST A PAWN—Cary Grant and Franchot Tone may seem to be suitors for Betsy Drake in Keith's new comedy, but in reality Betsy's just a smart girl. Their blithe little vehicle is titled "Every Girl Should Be Married"

Betsy Drake's Film Debut

Keith's Cary Grant Comedy Is Cute, Coy and Cunning

"EVERY GIRL SHOULD BE MARRIED." RKO-Radio release by Dore Schary. Produced, directed and co-authored by Don Hartman. Screen play collaboration by Stephen Morehouse Avery from a story by Eleanor Harris. Photographed by George E. Diskant. Music by Leigh Harline. At Keith's.

THE CAST

Dr. Madison Brown	Cary Grant

Julie Hudson	Diana Lynn
Annabel Sims	Betsy Drake
Mr. Spitzer	Alan Mowbray

CUTE, coy and cunning are the words for Keith's new comedy starring Cary Grant, "Every Girl Should Be Married."

This suave little trifle is at once about nothing at all and also about the most terrifying notion a man can face. It concerns the chase of a disinterested male by a determined female.

Cary plays the sort of chap he's made his screen trademark—suave, successful, attractive, witty. Newcomer Betsy Drake, who once went to Miss Madeira's here as well as to the King-Smith school, is the huntress who sets her sights on cagy Cary.

What makes the film's plot terrifying to a male is the fact that the lass ultimately succeeds in tracking her prey. All this, of course, has been going on since the world began, but generally under the polite disguises for which this heroine has such contempt. Why, she asks, can't a girl ask a man for a date, take him for a ride in her car and pursue him honestly?

The effect of such a procedure on the shy, retiring sort such as is your reporter can be imagined. An inferiority complex would become so unbearable that "The Snake Pit" would be filled with us. Thin men with long noses and, to allow an understatement, the traces of a double chin wouldn't have a chance. And guys with any chances whatever would be crowding the Turkish baths and men's beauty salons. That's the frightening aspect of Miss Drake's triumph.

She goes after it from her job in a department store with enviable thoroughness. She discovers what Grant likes to eat, drink, smoke, read, wear and think. She breaks the law and the shins of Interloper Franchot Tone. This latter creature she uses with aplomb, but it takes a skilled radio man to finish off the hunt.

In the course of this frankly far-fetched makebelieve the genial Grant plays straightman to the newcomer. Miss Drake here has the sort of role any young player would give 10 years of her life to play in her screen debut. Virtually every scene gives her a chance to be lively, fresh, ingenuous. At all of these traits the girl is good. It remains to be seen from her future screen roles just how closely tailored her first appearance has been and whether she has the stuff a screen career demands.

Diana Lynn plays Betsy's helpful girl friend and you'll enjoy Eddie Albert's zealous fun at the close of the year. It's not without its dry stretches, "Every Girl Should Be Married," but its light frivolity is welcome.

Don Hartman collaborated on the screen play with the late Stephen Morehouse Avery from a short story by Eleanor Harris. The production details are good, as always they are in a Grant effort.

Also on Keith's screen is a worthwhile salute to the nursing profession by the "This Is America" series.

One on the Aisle—

Rooney Amazing, In a Grisly Way

By Richard L. Coe

"WORDS AND MUSIC" at the Palace, is the latest in Hollywood's "Lives of the Terrific Modern Composers" series. Rodgers and Hart, who wrote some of the happiest songs of the last generation, are its heroes and are treated with the lush idolatry always accorded successful music masters by the film capital.

Though I personally think this is one of the most spectacularly gruesome movies I've ever seen, that is leaving out the audience for which it was mechanized. For "Words and Music" was made for the juvenile trade.

My speecific grievance against "Words and Music," apart from its tear-jerking story and a really incredible performance by Mickey Rooney, is that it doesn't do justice to Rodgers and Hart.

You get one phrase of that lovely song, "My Heart Stood Still." You get nothing whatever of "A Tree in the Park," "I Married an Angel," "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered." You get no glint of the sharp satire which "The Roxy Music Hall" might have given. You get none of the sophistication of "Pal Joey." The sparkling humor which made this team the great one the picture insists it was is ignored.

All such originality is presumed, I suppose, to be beyond the appreciation of the audience for which this musical tribute was designed.

"WORDS AND MUSIC," an MGM picture produced by Arthur Freed, directed by Norman Taurog, screenplay by Fred Finklehoffe, original story by Guy Bolton and Jean Holloway, adaptation by Ben Feiner, jr., music by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart, dances directed by Robert Alton. At the Palace.

THE CAST

Another answer to such criticism, of course, is that you can't include everything, especially since there are moments for "There's a Small Hotel," "Mountain Greenery," "Thou Swell," "The Lady Is a Tramp" and—the two hours' most entertaining moments—that "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue" number danced by Gene Kelly and Vera-Ellen.

Love Is All

But the tradition of this "Lives of the Terrific Modern Composers" series is that you have to have a story. If the climb of the heroes is relatively easy (as it also seemed to Hollywood in the previous cases of Gershwin, Kern and Cole Porter), the interest in the human beings is deemed flat. Love must be the only thing in anyone's life worth 50 feet of celluloid.

So we follow the slowly maturing romance of Rodgers, acted by Tom Drake, and that's not too bad. When we come to Larry Hart, a short man, that's the pitch for Rooney. The short man is a fearful psychological problem, as Mickey so often has shown us, and once more we are expected to smile at Mickey dancing with a tall girl, walking with another tall girl, etc., etc., etc.

Mickey's performance as the lyric writer who gets lonlier as he ages is a really lurid job. Until you see him slumped in a chair, his left hand rolled into a gnarled little fist, you haven't seen how grisly screen acting can be.

Miss Sothern Was Miss Lake

Naturally, any touches of fact are tossed out the window. You're given to think that when "A Connecticut Kankee" (1927) was under way, its composer could drift into a theater where Garbo loved Taylor in "Camille" (1936 and, coincidence, from Metro). You're told that Gene Kelly inspired "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue," though it wasn't till four years later, as a chorus boy, he won the lead in "Pal Joey." Though Ann Sothern is in the picture, you're not given a hint that under her original name of Harriette Lake she starred in a Rodgers-Hart hit, "America's Sweetheart." There's nothing about "A Connecticut Yankee" until its ill-fated revival during the war. You get the usual change of scene in a trip to London ("Mother of Parliaments") and a jaunt to a Hollywood that is more fearfully other-world than ever.

Perhaps all this is unimportant, but it certainly isn't making the most of what might have been.

As for the songs, you might as well face the fact that styles in singing change, just as they do in everything else. June Allyson, winsome and sweet as one always finds her, certainly has not the light charm and un-nasal singing Constance Carpenter used to give "Thou Swell." For William Gaxton's zippy approach, you get the soulful moanings of Perry Como, and Lena Horne adopts a leisurely 1948 tempo for her "Where or When" and "Tramp."

That change of singing style is not grounds for criticism, but you can't help thinking that the modern moan misses something, deadens somehow, the crisp fresh air Rodgers and Hart brought to musical comedy.

"Words and Music" is for the younger set, and it won't know what it's missing.

'Andy Hardy' Writer, 41, Kills Herself

Hollywood, Dec. 31 (U.P.).—Screen and Radio Writer Kay Van Riper, 41, who made $1500 a week writing the "Andy Hardy" movies, crawled out of bed and killed herself today, apparently because she preferred death to the pain of arthritis.

The tiny, blond writer visited a psychiatrist yesterday. This morning, her mother, Mrs. Amy Van Riper, found the body beside her bed in their Glendale home.

For 20 years, Miss Van Riper suffered from arthritis and sciatica that doctors all over the country tried to cure. 'About nine months ago the agony became so intense she gave up writing.

Among her hit movies were "Family Affair," "Judge Hardy's Children," "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever," "The Harvey Girls."

Mason Lauds Report on City's Needs

Commissioner Guy Mason last night highly praised the District Board of Public Welfare report highlighting its "slow and inadequate service" to the city's needy.

Raymond F. Clapp, principal assistant of the Welfare Board, prepared the report for presentation at the January meeting of the United Community Services. The board unanimously indorsed the report Thursday. Clapp placed primary blame for the board's failures on lack of funds and personnel.

"It's a good report and I am in full sympathy with it," Mason said. "I have been yelling for new institutional buildings and more welfare personnel for the past seven years, but you cannot have them when the city is living on a shoestring," he added.

Current appropriations for public assistance work is about $2,500,000, but it was learned last night that the Commissioners are requesting Congress for a slightly larger amount for the coming year.

All-American Airways to Move Offices Here

Offices and operational headquarters of All-American Airways, Inc., will be moved to Hangar 12 at National Airport on January 15, the airline announced this week.

Pittsburgh, Pa., is the present operational headquarters of the airlines, while offices are now in Wilmington, Del.

The Civil Aeronautics Board has approved airline plans to extend passenger service to the following seven States: Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Ohio, New York, Delaware, West Virginia and the District. Service on a Washington-Pittsburgh run will begin February 15, the company says.

Wave Yeoman Killed by Propeller Bride of Few Days

Navy officials disclosed yesterday that a 28-year-old Wave killed by an airplane propeller at the Anacostia Naval Air Station Thursday, was returning to duty from a pre-Christmas honeymoon at the time of the tragedy.

Yeoman 3/c Marie Kelly, the Navy said, had been married only a few days before Christmas to Alan Kelly of Philadelphia, and was returing to her base at Pensacola, Fla., following Christmas leave. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Phillips of 2533 Willard st., Philadelphia.

Yeoman Kelly had hitch-hiked a ride to Florida on a B-24 Liberator bomber, and was preparing to board it when she walked under the wing and into the propeller. Her body will be shipped to Philadelphia for burial, the Navy said.

Wholesale Prices Drop to 163.5 Pct. Of 1926 Average

Wholesale prices dropped again during the week ended December 28 to 163.5 per cent of the 1926 average. This point was below the 1947 level for a corresponding period for the first time this year.

None of the major groups of commodities in the index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics went up during the week. Sub groups, like grains, livestock and meats, did show fractional increases.

The index decline during the week was 0.2 per cent. It was 1 per cent lower than the index a month ago.

Barkley Rests From Cold After European Trip

Vice President-elect Alben Barkley (D., Ky.) has gone "down in the country" for a few days to rest from a cold and his recent trip from Europe, Dr. George W. Calver, United States Capitol physician, said yesterday.

Denying reports that the Senator had been admitted to the Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Md., Dr. Calver said his illness was not serious and merely called for rest. Earlier in the day the Vice President-elect missed his scheduled meeting with President Truman and other congressional Democratic leaders to discuss opening of the new Congress next week.

Ex-Official Of U. N. Made British Baron

London, Jan. 1, (NYHT).—Sir John Boyd Orr, former director-general of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, was created a baron by King George VI in the New Year's honors list issued early today.

The list created three new peers—all barons. Thirty-six knighthoods were awarded and 100 women received honors.

In addition to Sir John, the new barons are John Jackson Adams, long-time Socialist, general manager of the West Cumberland Industrial Development Co., and Major General Sir Winston Joseph Dugan, Governor General of Victoria since 1939.

Among the new knights are William Lawther, president of the National Union of Mineworkers, and James Turner, president of the National Farmers Union. Arthur Deakin, general secretary of the Transport and General Workers Union, became a companion of honor.

Among theatrical people honored is Bronson James Albery, a trustee of the Old Vic and Sadler's Wells companies, who becomes a knight.

Mrs. Mary Agnes Hamilton, head of the American Information Department of the Foreign Office, who becomes a commander of the British empire, and Sir William Gilliatt, the gynaecologist who was in charge of the birth of Princess Elizabeth's infant son, Prince Charles, who is appointed to the Royal Victorian Order.

Former D. C. Men Buy Radio Station And 2 Newspapers

Two New York State newspapers and Radio Station WVOS in Liberty, N. Y., have been sold to former Washingtonians, Harry G. Borwick and Seymour D. Lubin, according to anannouncement this week by Arthur C. Kyle, jr., previous owner of the properties.

Subject to Federal Communications Commission approval, the two men have acquired a two-thirds interest, plus management control, in the Sullivan County Evening News and the Sunday News-Republican, as well as full ownership of the radio station.

Borwick was chief of the Washington bureau of the New York Journal of Commerce for five years until 1948, and Lubin, a New York attorney, is formerly of Arlington, Va.

Speech Group Elects Morris New President

President D. W. Morris of Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill., took office yesterday as president of the American Speech and Hearing Association.

He succeeds Martin Palmer, director of the Institute of Logopedics at the Municipal University of Wichita, Kans.

The association is the professional organization of college and university professors concerned with rehabilitating speech and hearing disabilities.

Miss Perkins, Truman Confer

Frances Perkins, member of the Civil Service Commission, conferred with President Truman yesterday about proposed changes in the Civil Service laws.

The President has already come out in favor of a cut in the number of different Federal job classifications.

Miss Perkins told reporters that "if the bill we are working on goes through" the number of grades for Federal employes would be reduced from 40-odd to either 10 or 14. She said there would be "some adjustment of salaries" because of the broadening of each grade.

13 Passengers Believed Dead in Plane Crash

Rome, Saturday, Jan. 1 (AP).—Thirteen passengers and an undetermined number of crew members were believed to have perished last night when a South African transport plant crashed near Florence.

Carefree Parties Mark Birth of 1949 in America

New York, Dec. 31 (AP).—An uneasy world bade farewell to troubled 1948 tonight and welcomed 1949 with the fervent hope it would be the postwar year to bring true peace.

In America, where 1948 has been a bustling, prosperous year, the celebrations were largely gay and joyous. Even so, there were some signs the bloom was fading on the postwar boom.

In Europe and elsewhere there was less revelry. The East-West cold war and actual shooting wars worked against a riotous greeting to the new year.

$50 Held Minimum

In London the highlight was the Chelsea Arts Ball where 6000 revelers filled the Royal Albert Hall and danced beneath a huge painting of the merry monarch Henry VII. They had paid from $12.60 to $210 for tickets.

Crowds collected early at St. Paul's Cathedral to dance around the statue of Queen Victoria. Thousands jammed Piccadilly Circus to greet the Statue of Eros, god of love.

Paris Uncorks Champagne

Champagne was uncorked in Paris for the greeting to the new year. According to custom beer is used for such toasts in Brussels

Police in Denmark and Italy banned the traditional New Year's Eve fireworks. The Italian government has passed a special decree outlawing one of the country's oldest traditions—the tossing of chamber pots and other crockery out of the window at midnight. Economy and public safety were the reasons given for the bans.

In Frankfurt—as in other cities on the continent—nightclubs were sold out. Dinner for two and a bottle of champagne cost at least two weeks wages or about $36.

The Moscow radio said that in Russia colored lights on Christmas trees were turned on for the first time at dusk. The Orthodox Church Christmas falls on January 7.

Workers' parties were held in more than 200 clubs in Moscow alone. There were many dances and carnivals.

Pardon for Three Rape Prisoners Will Be Asked

Baltimore, Dec. 31 (AP).—Attorney Joseph G. Finnerty says he will ask Governor Lane to pardon three men serving prison sentences for rape, because he is "convinced the men were not guilty in the first instance."

The prisoners are James V. La Guardia, whose death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment; Delmar E. Foster, 20, of Atlanta, Ga., sentenced to life; and a juvenile serving a 21-year term.

La Guardia was sentenced to death September 18, 1947, after the three were convicted of raping a Baltimore woman. The Rev. Joseph J. Ayd, penitentiary chaplain, helped bring the case to the Governor's attentino, and the death sentence was commuted the next Christmas.

Woman Admits Hoax to Police In Rape Case

Baltimore, Dec. 31 (AP).—The 33-year-old mother who told police yesterday she had been kidnaped and raped by two men admitted last night the story was not true.

Capt. Henry J. Kriss of the Detective Bureau, said the woman signed a statement saying she had not been attacked and got into the automobile of her own free will.

The statement said the two men picked her up and drove her into a city park, where they made her get out instead of driving her home, he said.

When the car pulled away, she told police she called out: "I'll get even with you." Captain Kriss said doctors were unable to find any evidence of rape.

THE DISTRICT LINE

by Bill Gold

This Fellow Believes in A Stitch in Time

The Inaugural Committee's housing bureau (Sterling 1555) is currently trying to register every spare room in the area, to accommodate Inaugural Week visitors.

Folks who list their rooms are asked what kind of people they'd like to rent to—their age, sex, race and even the State or Nation they're from.

Marian Hammett, who is working with the housing bureau, tells me that when householders are asked to express such preference, amusing complications sometimes result.

One gentleman who called to list a room pondered for a long time about which sex he preferred to have in his home.

He finally settled on "male," and then apparently felt that an explanation was in order. So he put it this way:

"My wife is very pretty, and I'm a jealous husband. But I won't object to renting to a man—provided that you make sure he isn't too handsome."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

How about settling an argument for us? What are the marriage requirements for the District of Columbia? A friend and I have differing opinions.

Cpl. Melvin D. Lewis, jr.
Camp Lee, Va.

Dear Mel:

No wonder you fellows are arguing; our library wasn't sure either, because various reference books give conflicting information.

I went down to the marriage license bureau to get the straight dope for you. Here it is:

Either of the parties may apply for a license, or may send a friend or relative who knows (and is competent to take an oath regarding) all the vital statistics. Applications may not be made by mail.

After a waiting period of five days, the license can be picked up by either party, or a friend or relative. It is never mailed out. The waiting period cannot be shortened or waived without an act of Congress.

Applicants need not be residents of the District, and need not remain here during the waiting period. They can come back for the license any time after the five days are over—five years later, if they choose.

Once they have the license, they can get married whenever they feel up to it.

Without the consent of their parents, men may marry when they're 21 and women when they're 18. But boys as young as 18 and girls as young as 16 can marry if they get papa's okay.

If the father is dead, the mother may give her consent. Otherwise, it's the father's word that counts, even if the parents are separated or divorced, and even if the father hasn't contributed a cent to the child's upkeep for a dozen years. Congress has never gotten around to modernizing this portion of the law, so pappy's word goes.

No blood test is required here. The application costs 50 cents, the license $2, and from there on, buddy, you're strictly on your own and I wish you many happy returns.

Bill

PREDICTION

Since everybody else is looking into the future and predicting what the new year will bring, let me add my own guess:

The year 1949 will be much better than the pessimists think, but not nearly as good as the optimists foresee.

The Communists will denounce decadent western imperialism, and the United States will charge that Russia is blocking a peace settlement. The Nats will buy two "hard-hitting" outfielders, but finish in the second division.

The rich will get richer and the poor will get more numerous. The best Water Gate concerts will be rained out, and Mr. Truman will have almost as much trouble with the 81st Congress as he had with the 80th.

They'll tell us that "one more year" will see auto production catching up with demand; Shirley Povich will still manage to win his golf matches by lucking in 40-foot putts on the 18th green; wheat will be cheaper; but bread will go up another penny a loaf.

The Government will fire tens of thousands of workers in a big economy drive. However, there will be more people on the Federal payroll at the end of the year than there were at the beginning.

Finding an apartment will be just as hard as ever, and Capital Transit will contend that unless fares are raised, the company will lose money.

Sammy Baugh will complete 90 per cent of the passes that don't get tangled up in his beard, and Chiang Kai-shek will offer to resign a few of his titles, on condition that he retain all of his powers.

People who go to Florida in December will still send back cards saying "Having a fine time, wish you were here," and actual work on removing the Benning rd. streetcar tracks will be delayed for just "one more year."

In short, I don't think 1949 is going to differ very much from 1948—except that all of us will be one year older.

READIN' & WRITIN'

Mrs. Margaret Wilker lives at 911 C st. ne. But here lately, she's been getting mail intended for similar addresses on L st. and G st.

So Mrs. Wilker suggests that we should spell out the names of letter streets, phonetically, i. e.: Bee, See, Gee, Eye, Ell, etc.

But W. Gordon Bell, acting postmaster, says he doesn't think it's necessary to go to such lengths, because "although about 50 per cent of all mail is hand-addressed, we have very little trouble with it. There's practically none of it we can't read."

Bell concedes that the practice of writing out "Eye" st. is now well established, and helpful. But he's afraid that the introduction of a whole series of phonetic spellings would merely serve to confuse his men in gray.

MUTINY BEHIND THE BLIGH LUNCH COUNTER

Al Newberry of the Federal Works Agency's Office of Program Reports will be careful whom he kids hereafter.

Al was in Bligh's Restaurant at 1916 Pennsylvania ave. nw. the other day when he noticed a junior naval officer leave the counter without getting a farewell from the proprietor, Patrick Bligh.

In an attempt to josh Pat a bit, Al asked:

"How come you didn't say goodbye to Mr. Christian, Captain Bligh?"

"Because," answered Pat promptly, "he's not Mr. Christian, and I'm not Captain Bligh. I'm Patrick Bligh, one of the captain's descendants."

And Pat wasn't kidding. He and his brother John have the Bligh coat-of-arms as a family heirloom, and have traced the family's history at the Library of Congress.

That news also sent me to the library to check, because I mistakenly thought that Captain Bligh died on a deserted island, and therefore might not have left any descendants.

But I was wrong again. It was the mutineers who stayed on Pitcairn Island; Captain Bligh drifted 3600 miles to Timor Island and after months of incredible hardships lived to tell the story of "Mutiny on the Bounty."

Anyhow—I'd give a cookie to find a descendant of Mr. Christian and be able to march him into Bligh's Restaurant one fine day. I'd love to see the look on Pat's face.

MORNING AFTER

$6842 Given Barney Neighborhood House From Washington Post Golf Tourney Fund

Two officials of Barney Neighborhood House, 470 N st. sw., yesterday received a gift of $6842.23 from The Washington Post—funds which will be used in full-scale renovation of the settlement's gymnasium and playrooms.

Philip L. Graham, publisher, presented a check for the money—last of the funds raised in last Spring's big National Celebrities Golf Tournament—to Mrs. Jean Goodrich, House director.

The presentation was made in the office of Alexander F. Jones, assistant to the publisher, at whose suggestion the money was designated for the famous old settlement. Jones toured the buildings last fall in connection with a one-day face-lifting job done in behalf of the Red Feather campaign and decided that much more work was required to put the facilities in good shape.

Called Dream Come True

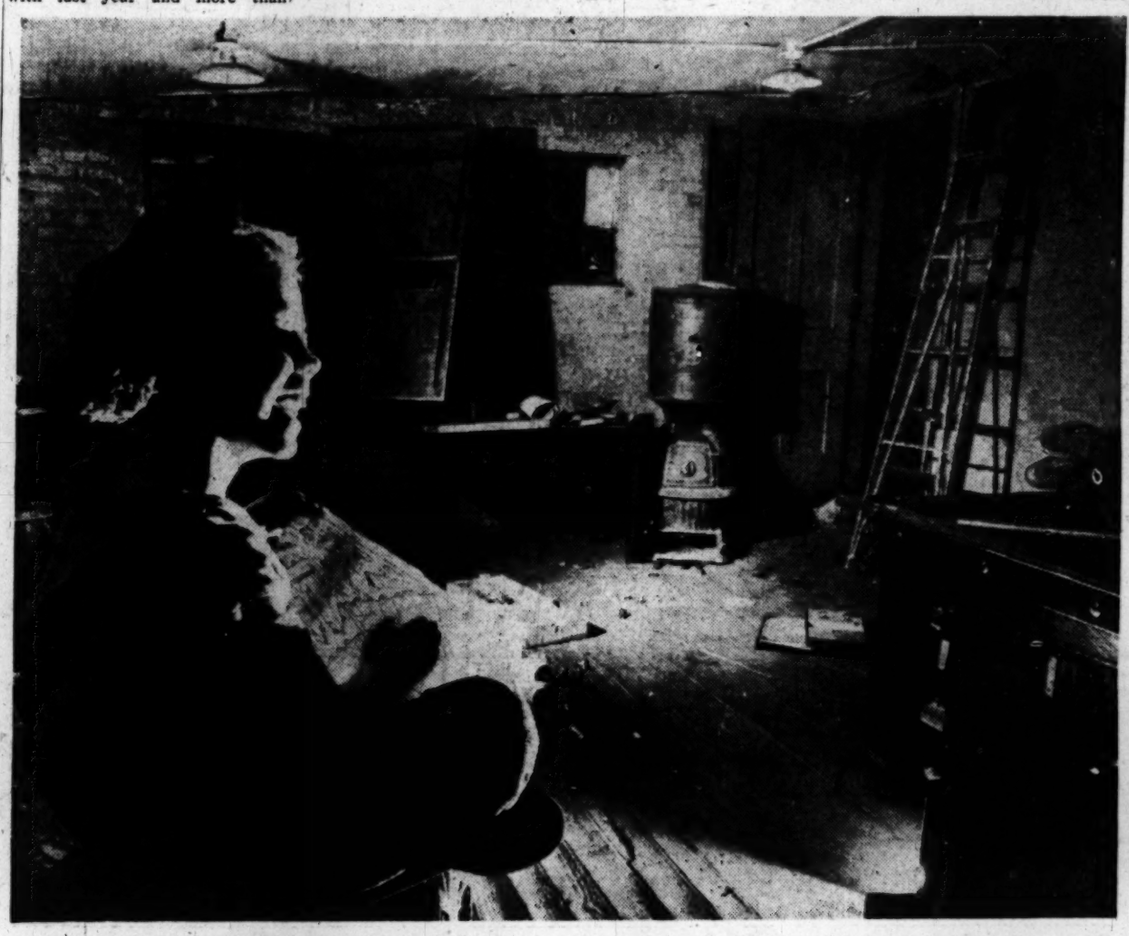

Robert Knepley, assistant director of Barney Neighborhood House, who until recently was boys' activities chief, called The Washington Post's gift "a dream come true."

In addition to providing a nursery, kindergarten, art classes, music instruction, boys' clubs, girls' clubs and several adult subjects, the House offers advice and assistance to hundreds of families in the Southwest area. Over-all attendance from January to August, 1948, excelled 50,000.

The Community Chest has allocated only $30,914 for this year, a slash of more than $4000 compared with last year and more than $10,000 less than the agency requested.

THINGS WILL BE DIFFERENT HERE—John Porter, 8, of 1306 6th st. sw., surveys the dismal attic room in Barney House which is the only one available as a game room for small boys. Funds from The Washington Post's National Celebrities Golf Tournament will provide a new heating unit to replace the outmoded "pot belly" stove, allow the construction of a new ceiling

Heating To Be Modernized

The renovation job will get under way at 7:30 a. m. Monday, probably to last a month. This is what will be done:

Rusty, pot-bellied coal stoves in the old dressing room, boxing room and big boys' game room will be removed and gas heating units installed in their place. Gas heating equipment also will go into the small boys' game room, the shower room, basketball room and lavatory and washroom.

The doorway into the old, makeshift dressing room will be widened, one wall will be cut out and a large lavatory and washroom will be installed.

The old storage room will be converted into a dressing room and shower room, boasting a concrete floor and built-in wooden bins. The gym has had only one shower heretofore and no facilities for washing.

Another Planned For 1949

Held May 16, the National Celebrities Golf Tournament was sponsored by The Washington Post to provide more recreational facilities for children. It was the second; a third is planned for 1949.

Bus Ham, sports editor of The Washington Post, served as director for the tournament. Members of the advisory committee were Frank Jelleff, Daniel Bell, J. Edgar Hoover, Christian Heurich, jr., and Leon Chatelain, jr.

More than $10,000 was netted in 1947. Approximately half went to the Boys Club of Washington—towards the building fund for a new camp; the remainder went to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club for improvements at the 12th and U sts. building.

In 1948 in excess of $15,000 was collected. A breakdown: Salvation Army summer camps for boys and girls, $5000; Merrick Club summer camp, $2500; Walter Johnson Memorial Leagues, for baseballs, $999.75; Barney Neighborhood House, $6842.23.

The Washington Post

FOR THEIR BENEFIT—The young sportsmen of Barney House will have a better gym after the renovation is complete. Gas heating will replace the old coal stove (background), at present the only heat unit in the room. Modern showers will be installed and new lockers will make the gym a more adequate recreation facility

NEW YORK.—Jimmy Cannon was lunching at one of his favorite Broadway restaurants yesterday and saw an arrival who looked like Spencer Tracy "Everyone here looks like someone," said Cannon. Butcher finally succeeded in arranging it—but it was only for the final Benny broadcast before the switch to CBS. And because of a billing error, Butcher's station received only $14.00 for the show, and his telegraphic costs in arranging it were $18.29.

Teresa Wright's recent dispute with Sam Goldwyn over her refusal to come to N. Y. to help publicize "Enchantment" is their second major disagreement. The first was when Goldwyn wanted Miss Wright to appear in his production of "North Star." This was after her husband Niven Busch, had left Goldwyn's employ under circumstances which weren't friendly . . . Miss Wright in refusing to appear in "North Star," explained that she was having a baby and would be unavailable for any movie work. Mr. Goldwyn accepted this explanation but couldn't resist a feeling that the act of God was sheer revenge.

On Sunday night Winchell announced that Michael Todd, the producer who had been on the brink of financial disaster and who still is heavily in debt, now had such a big hit musical that he is making $11,000 a week profit. On Monday morning there was a long line at the Winter Garden Theater where the show is playing . . . Bill Doll, Todd's press agent, saw the long line and said: "That Winchell; what a lot of power." His companion corrected him: "That Todd; what a lot of creditors."

Welles' Mishap Hull's 'Revenge'

By Drew Pearson

According to usual newspaper precedents, this column, published on New Year's Day, should review the achievements and failures of 1948 and express our hopes for 1949. Instead, it will deal with the mystery of why a very great former Undersecretary of State wandered off into a bitterly cold night, a bottle of sleeping pills in his pocket, to be found eight hours later almost frozen to death.

Sumner Welles

The story is not easy to summarize, because it goes back to 1915, when a young man, just out of college, came down to see Franklin Roosevelt, then Assistant Secretary of the Navy, to secure his help in entering the diplomatic service.

A great war was being waged in Europe then, and Sumner Welles, an idealistic youngster who dreamed of the day when there would be no war, wanted to enter the State Department where he could make his dreams come true. So Franklin Roosevelt, at whose wedding Welles had been a page-boy, helped him enter the diplomatic service.

From that day until 1943, no one worked harder at making his peace dream come true than Sumner Welles. He had the finest of background and training. He served in Japan, Argentina, the Caribbean. He was in Santo Domingo when our marines were in control, and saw the futility of military occupation. He became a great friend of Charles Evans Hughes, then Secretary of State, and under him evolved a Central American pact to prevent dictators in the Caribbean.

Start of a Feud

Later, when the Assistant Secretary of the Navy who had helped him enter diplomacy became President of the United States, Sumner Welles became his most trusted foreign-policy adviser.

As the years progressed, however, it became apparent to those on the inside of the State Department that, while Cordell Hull took the official bows as Secretary of State, it was Sumner Welles who really formulated foreign policy. And from this developed one of Washington's bitterest personal feuds.

Actually Welles and Hull agreed on many things. Theirs was chiefly a difference in temperament. One worked at lightning speed, the other liked to debate interminably. One could drop in on F. D. R. and work out a policy in 15 minutes; the other settled down in the President's office for endless conversations.

In addition, basic differences developed over stopping Japan in the Pacific, and moves to check Hitler in Europe. Welles, seeing the war clouds six years before Pearl Harbor, drafted Roosevelt's famous "quarantine" speech proposing preventative measures to block Japan. Hull finally reversed this policy—leaving United States delegates high and dry at the Brussels Conference. (One of the stolen State Department documents still unpublished by the Committee on Un-American Activities reveals this graphically.)

And when it came to talks with Hitler and Mussolini to head off war, Hull resented the fact that the vigorous Welles was sent on this important mission.

He was also resentful when Welles appointed committees of experts to formulate the world peace machinery which later became the United Nations. Hull had written the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on October 21, 1942, that he saw no reason to begin worrying about peace machinery until after the war. But Welles believed the United States should follow the practice of the smart lawyer who collects his fee while his client's tears are hot. We should settle the terms of peace, he argued, while Russia had her back to the wall at Stalingrad.

Finally, in the summer of 1943, Hull served an ultimatum on Roosevelt that either he or Welles must go.

Unhappy Since '43

Welles bowed out gracefully, but he has never been happy since. He has pretended to be busy. He has written books, a weekly column, helped organize charity and educational projects. But his heart has not been in his work.

Across the Potomac River from his Maryland home, Welles can see—on the Virginia side—the National Airport, where Jimmy Byrnes landed after his historic mission to Moscow; where Secretary Marshall, Bedell Smith, General Clay and the others who now formulate American foreign policy go to and fro on their unsuccessful missions to win the peace.

Sumner Welles used to be the man who made those trips. All his life he trained and slaved and studied the know-how of world peace. And now, with his country facing its greatest problems, he has had to sit, arms folded, on one bank of the Potomac, watching generals-turned-diplomats fumble with the difficult, elusive, desperate problem of peace.

Hull's Revenge

Cordell Hull's father, living in Tennessee at the close of the Civil War, got into a fracas with a man who beat him up and threw him over a river bank. Old man Hull waited 30 years, tracked his foe down to Alabama, walked up to where he sat on a front porch and shot him.

His son, now a permanent resident of the Naval Hospital, has growled and rumbled every time Sumner Welles' name came up for possible appointment as an Ambassador, commissioner to Palestine or troubleshooter in Indonesia. Hull's vengeance never relaxed. That was why, in a world where men with know-how are so scarce, Welles' very great abilities were never used.

So, unable to sleep for watching the military-diplomats come and go across the river; unable to sleep thinking of his and his country's lost opportunities, Welles took some sleeping pills and went out in the night to walk himself into a state of sleepful exhaustion—a walk from which he was not to come back for a long, long time.

Could it be that Mr. Hull at long last will say that an old score is now more than settled, that peace is more important than personalties; so let bygones be bygones.

Railroads Will Fight Tuck in Truck Case

Richmond, Va., Dec. 31 (AP).—A recommendation that Governor Tuck enter into reciprocal agreements with other States to suspend certain truck taxes brought a warning today from Sydney Small, chairman of the Virginia Railway Associations, that "the railroads won't take it lying down."

It was indicated that this discussion might lead to a court proceeding on the railroad's part to test Governor Tuck's authority to suspend a tax reimposed by the General Assembly of 1948.

The recommendation to Tuck was made by the State Reciprocity Board after a meeting Tuesday.

Governor Tuck was expected to enter into agreements with other States within the immediate future. Once he does, out-of-State truckers will be permitted to operate in Virginia without paying a Virginia license tax or a gross receipts tax. Similarly, Virginia truckers would have the same rights in reciprocating States.

House Approves Survey of Capitol Heating Facilities

The survey is to be made under direction of the office of Capitol Architect David Lynn. The new study was asked to take care of expanded heating and refrigerating needs when the new Senate Office Building is completed.

Money for the study was asked to take care of expanded heating and refrigerating needs when the neew Senate Office Building is completed.

ARE PRICES GOING UP OR DOWN IN 1949?

Like our customers, we, too have been reading the papers and listening to the radio. Depending on which day of the week we read or listen, prices seem to be going up and down . . . leaving everybody properly confused.

Believe it or not, though, prices really can go both ways at the same time. For instance, while textile prices have dropped considerably the price of steel has remained generally firm.

As we see it at the retail level, a gradual readjustment is going on in the prices of many different commodities, both upward and downward, reflecting supply and demand, changes in basic cost, and many other diverse factors. Some of these changes have already shown up on our counters in lower prices on dresses, on men's shirts, pajamas, women's hosiery, furs and certain items for the home.

At what point these prices will be stabilized we don't pretend to guess. None of the experts can accurately predict the trend of retail prices for the balance of the year, but we do know that Spring merchandise for which stores have to place orders two to three months in advance is being offered at terms that reflect very little downward change from the Fall . . . and in some cases prices are slightly higher due to rising costs.

To repeat: What will happen to prices in the next twelve months is beyond our power and probably anybody's power to predict, but we do know this:

IN JANUARY AT THE HECHT CO. PRICES WILL COME TUMBLING DOWN.*

This is the result of a combination of two things. First, we instructed our buyers to mark down hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of merchandise to stimulate business in a normally off-season month. Secondly, we prevailed on many of our resources to liquidate their surplus inventories to us at prices below their cost of replacement.

The result is a January Sale Program packed with surprises for you! You'll find lower prices on home needs and housewares, fashions, children's wear and accessories. You'll find lowered prices on scores of items in both our Washington and Silver Spring stores.

We repeat: In January at The Hecht Co. prices will come tumbling down! We're not philanthropists . . . we are realists . . . we know it's plain good business in January to keep our volume up! We think this is good news for you who have grappled with the cost of living. It is our contribution to easing your budget. It is our way of wishing all Washington the Happiest New Year ever!

★ Naturally, not every item in our stock will be lowered in price, but we promise you a wide array of savings all through both stores.
